Senate Probe Told Brown Burned Air Mail Records

Hoover's Postal Chief May Be Summoned by Committee.

Charges Involve Prominent Group

Irregularities Alleged in Awards Favoring "Aviation Trust."

Evidence that former Postmaster General Walter F. Brown had destroyed important official correspondence relating to Government air mail contracts was presented to the Senate committee investigating ocean and air mail contracts yesterday.

While Brown, in New York, according to the Associated Press, was denying that he had ordered the department files burned, the Senate investigators were listening to testimony that the former Hoover Cabinet officer also had awarded more than 8,000 miles of air mail carriage contracts without competitive bidding.

Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, indicated that the committee may call upon Brown to explain where the records are, if the testimony of a postoffice employe that he burned them is not true.

High Figures Implicated.

"All we want is the records," said the Senator.

As Department of Justice officials pointed out destruction of official records was a crime carrying a $2,000 fine and three years in prison, witnesses before the committee implicated Herbert Hoover, jr., Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former Assistant Postmaster General Irving Glover, and other Hoover Administration officials in the award of contracts.

Evidence of destruction of the postoffice records was given by James Maher, who has been a department stenographer for 18 years. He said he took the files to the Postoffice Department basement and burned them in the furnace, a few days before Brown went out of office on March 4.

He said he was acting on orders

Fleeing Bandits Seize Woman

Missouri Teacher's Wife Held as Hostage in Battle, Freed.

Hannibal, Mo., Jan. 9 (AP).—Mrs. Roy Carpenter, 40, wife of a Monroe City high school teacher, was released unharmed near Monroe City tonight by four armed automobile thieves, who had abducted her several hours earlier, apparently to shield them from the bullets of pursuing officers.

The band, which fought off pursuing officers, was sought by posses in Marion County tonight.

Officers expressed belief the men would not escape a network of three posses and road guards, and said it was possible the quartet had sought refuge in some farmer's barn.

The men stole a car and fled toward Monroe City. A. J. Schneider, police chief, and J. O. Barker, traffic patrolman, took up the chase.

The robbers' automobile ran out of gasoline near the Carpenter home and the men entered the Carpenter yard to steal another car.

Mrs. Carpenter came from a nearby field to learn who the men were. They forced her to enter the car. The bandits ambushed the officers' car near a bridge in front of the Carpenter home.

The officers leaped out of their car and returned the fire, but the robbers fled with Mrs. Carpenter. The police started in pursuit and met the robbers coming out of a blind lane. Another gun fight followed in which the officers' car was disabled and their ammunition exhausted.

U. S.-Vatican Pact Considered Near

Official Church Organ Indicates Agreement in Offing.

Vatican City, Jan. 9 (AP).—Taking cognizance of comments that the United States and Vatican would resume diplomatic relations, the Osservatore Romano declared today it would be "pure fantasy" to consider such an event as "new or curious."

Diplomats here said they had no knowledge of such a move at this time, but the official church organ devoted two columns to an article by its director, Giuseppe Della Torre, in which it was said that relations between the Vatican and America, technically unofficial since 1867, have been so close that a bridging over of the technical separation would hardly alter the situation.

Burned Official Records, He Says

6 U. S. Planes Set for Dash Over Pacific

Navy Fliers Poised for Hop Today, 'Frisco to Honolulu.

San Francisco, Jan. 9 (U.P.).—Six Six Navy planes, on the first leg of a 2,100-mile flight to Honolulu, flew over San Francisco to land on San Pablo Bay at 4 p. m. today, after a flight from San Diego.

With the four-starred flag of Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, fleet commander, on the lead plane, the six big seaplanes completed the flight from San Diego in six hours. A perfect landing was made on the bay.

Four escort planes accompanied the squadron. Admiral Sellers will not continue to Hawaii with the squadron, which will be commanded by Lieut. Comdr. Knefler McGinnis.

The unprecedented over-water mass flight, characterized by naval officers as a "routine transportation of planes," probably will start at 11 a. m. (Washington time), tomorrow.

Lieut. E. W. Stevens, naval weather observer, recommended the take-off tomorrow predicting good weather over the Pacific will not last much longer. A storm area was reported in prospect. Skies were overcast here. Paradise Cove will provide a six-mile surface for the take-off.

The Navy tug Gannet stood by to furnish supplies. Each plane was to be loaded with 1,746 gallons of gasoline. Food for five men for five days will be in each plane. A radio and a collapsible rubber boat will be part of the equipment.

The twin-engined craft were to be tuned up while the 30 men who will make the flight were ashore resting.

Six Navy ships, at 300-mile intervals were speeding to their positions along the route to Pearl Harbor.

Planes go to Miami Races.

Mt. Clemens, Mich., Jan. 9 (AP). Thirty-six pursuit planes under command of Lieut. Col. Frank M. Andrews left Selfridge Field here today for Miami, Fla., to participate in the annual Miami All-America Air Races. The first stop will be at Dayton, Ohio.

French Riot In Protesting Bank Crash

Royalists' Demonstration Gives Cabinet Heads Anxious Hours.

Paris, Jan. 9 (AP).—Royalists rioted near the Chamber of Deputies this evening in angry protest against what they alleged to be the part of high-placed officials in the $40,000,000 collapse of the Bayonne pawnshop and in the death of its founder.

Shouting "down with the thieves, down with the assassins!" and swinging canes, the irate crowd launched a series of attacks on policemen stationed as guards in the district, ripped up iron tree protectors, broke lamp posts, and blocked traffic over a mile-square area.

Scores of persons, including many women, were taken to police stations, but were released shortly, and hundreds of spectators were massed in the big Place de la Concorde to watch the bitter demonstrations which taxed police facilities to the limit.

The reorganized cabinet paced the lobbies, trying to negotiate a truce with angered legislators and hastily patching fences to avert a threatened overthrow.

The tide of sentiment, nevertheless, seemed to be turning in favor of Premier Camille Chautemps after Serge Stavisky, the mysterious captain of underground finance, shot himself—or was shot by secret service men, as the opposition newspapers charged in order to prevent him from telling too much about the pawnshop scandal—when captured yesterday at Chamonix.

A heavy guard of mounted and foot police was rushed to the Place Bourbon to surround the Chamber Error Costs Him Ten Years.

New Orleans, Jan. 9 (AP).—Robert Richardson, 42, Negro pick-pocket, who unfortunately picked Associate Justice Fred H. Odom, of the State Supreme Court, as his victim on a crowded street car, today was sentenced to 10 to 15 years in the penitentiary.

Emma Goldman Wins Permit To Visit Kin—If She's Good

Emma Goldman, once considered America's most dangerous radical, today was granted permission to reenter the United States for 90 days to visit relatives.

The permission was granted by the Labor Department on Miss Goldman's promise not to engage in any political activities while here. Miss Goldman was in Toronto pending action on her application.

After 33 years of activity as an anarchist, Miss Goldman, now 64 years old, was deported to Russia in 1919. Her deportation followed a short prison term on charges of obstructing the draft and for her alleged activity with "Big Bill" Haywood and William Z. Foster in connection with a steel strike.

Miss Goldman is a native of Russia. She was born in Kovno, Russia (now in Lithuania). She came to this country at the age of 15.

Miss Goldman, who is an anarchist, not a Communist, violently disagreed with the Soviet and left the country. She has lived most of the time in England.

Miss Goldman, who obtained entry into the United States under her married name of Mrs. James Colton, first attracted attention when she was alleged to have been connected with the Haymarket riots in Chicago in 1886.

During the steel strike in 1892 Miss Goldman was connected with

City Rum Law By Week-End Up to Senate

Substitute Calling for Dispensary System Shows Strength.

A District liquor bill, more liberal than even its sponsors expected, was passed by the House late yesterday by a viva voce vote.

The measure goes to the Senate, carrying a series of minor amendments, a majority of which tended to liberalize it beyond the form in which it was reported by the District committee.

There is every possibility the Senate will pass the bill, giving Washington a licensing system and permitting sale of liquor by the drink in hotels, restaurants and clubs, before the end of the week.

While the House passed the law without division or roll call, test votes forced earlier in the afternoon by Representative Howard W. Smith (Democrat), Virginia, found the measure winning over a proposed substitute, providing for a dispensary system, by a surprisingly small margin.

Foes Defeated, 90 to 48.

A final attempt by Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), Texas, to have the bill sent back to committee, was defeated, 90 to 48. Patman, with his fellow Texans, Blanton and McFarlane, tried vainly throughout the afternoon to prevent the more liberal phases of the law, which were voted, occasionally with vociferous enthusiasm, by the House.

Representative Smith moved to strike out the enacting clause of the District Commissioners' private license bill, which would have permitted him to offer his Government dispensary bill as a substitute. The House defeated his motion on a standing vote, 77 to 62, and on a teller vote by 118 to 91.

After defeat of the Smith motion, the bill moved swiftly toward passage, with frequent amendments only serving to make it what Representative Frank Oliver (Democrat), New York, called "a liberal, tolerant act."

Debates Dubbed "Hooey."

Opponents of the measure, asserting it would be used as a model by many now withholding action on laws of their own, concentrated their attacks upon the premise that the bill was inconsistant with the Democratic platform. This led to repeated verbal clashes over the definition of the "old saloon"—most of which were summed up by Representative Everett M. Dirksen (Republican), Illinois, as "a lot of hooey."

Except for occasional brushes with the Southern Democrats, who concurred in Representative Blan-

Ford Is Victor In New U. S. Tilt

McCarl Refuses to Pay for Cars Where Low Bid Was Ignored.

Because 12 automobiles bought by the Interior Department were not purchased from the lowest bidder, Comptroller General J. R. McCarl yesterday refused to approve payment. The lowest bidder was the Ford Motor Co. The Interior Department refused to buy Ford cars, it explained, because Ford was not a member of the NRA.

Several of the 12 cars were bought at Caspar, Wyo., and the others at Salt Lake City. They already had been delivered and now presumably must be returned.

The ruling was significant because the Interior Department last Saturday opened bids for 700 automobiles and again Ford was the low bidder. The bid in this instance was submitted by the Northwest Motor Co. of Bethesda, which has figured in frequent controversies with the Government over purchase of Ford cars.

Last November McCarl ruled it was not necessary that a concern doing business with the Government sign a code, but that products must be manufactured in accordance with code provisions. The Ford Motor Co. contends it is operating under code provisions.

Austrians Arming To Crush Nazis

Troops Mobilized in Final War; Vienna Tense

Vienna, Jan. 9 (U.P.).—Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss ordered mobilization of 1,000 members of the Heimwehr (home guard) in Vienna tonight as his first move in what was expected to be his final war against the rising Nazi influence in Austria.

The men, all picked troopers, reported for duty at their headquarters in the national capital. Rifles will be issued tonight and tomorrow.

Silver Champion's Daughter Named As Gold Hoarder

Denver, Jan. 9 (AP).—Edith Thomas, daughter of former United States Senator Charles Thomas, one of the West's outstanding advocates of bimetallism, was indicted on a charge of gold hoarding by a Federal grand jury which reported here this afternoon.

Miss Thomas, 45, is charged with hoarding $3,000 in gold. As defined in the order, the offense is punishable by a maximum fine of $10,000 and a maximum penitentiary sentence of ten years.

G. O. P. Leaders Avoid Tirade On Democrats

Deaf to Committee Urging for Attack Now; Delay Advised.

By Raymond Clapper.

It appeared last night as if Republican leaders in the House and Senate would balk at the suggestion of the Republican National Committee that without further ado they tear into the Administration with hammer and tongs.

Cheers from Republican Senators and Representatives were so faint as to be inaudible.

The Republican National Committee, in a broadside, had urged all Republicans in Congress to oppose the Administration spending program and go back to Coolidge economy.

For Republican members whose mail from back home makes them daily aware of President Roosevelt's popularity, the advice of the Republican National Committee was like that of the city editor who told his reporter to "go back and tell the guy who threw you downstairs that he can't intimidate me."

Nothing to Inspire Them.

Every Republican in Congress is conscious of the public works projects which have been set up in every State, of the millions of constituents who have been given work by CWA, and of the millions of dollars which have been distributed in the wheat and corn country by AAA. It is not a situation that inspires them to partisan denunciation.

Discussion of the National committee attack among Republicans on Capitol Hill developed sharp differences of policy. Ranking House and Senate leaders wish to move cautiously. They prefer to select specific proposals for attack rather than to broadside the whole Administration program. The first fight may come in the House over the proposal to extend the lending life of the RFC. It is chiefly the spear-carriers in the back row who are pawing to get into action.

Await Clearer Program.

While not inclined to make the minority party situation more difficult by openly criticizing the National committee policy, the feeling was voiced privately that it was unwise to throw bricks indiscriminately. Sentiment among leaders appeared to favor delay until the Democratic program becomes more clear. Then when attacks are made, they should be accompanied by alternative proposals, it was generally felt.

Several members objected to what they regarded as an absence of constructive suggestions in the Republican attack. Some Senators also felt that the National committee could be of more help by rais-

Wells Tells Britain To Aid Roosevelt

London, Jan. 9 (AP).—H. G. Wells believes that Great Britain, rather than pursuing a policy of isolation "until scavenging forces of the world pick us up and clear us away altogether," should cooperate with President Roosevelt's recovery program and try to understand Russia.

"Although the failure of Mr. Roosevelt in his effort to rally American economic life would mean disaster for all the world," the writer asserted, "there is not the slightest sign of any real attempt on the part of our leaders to cooperate with him and understand his aim and methods.

"Bold and great as the schemes are, I do not believe he can carry them out if he has to carry them out in the United States alone."

Three Killed in Crash Of Private Airplane

Childress, Tex., Jan. 9 (AP).—Three persons were killed today when a stunting monoplane from Mangum, Okla., crashed from about 500 feet and burned on a ranch 14 miles west of here.

Paul Powers, pilot for Dr. G. F. Border, Mangum physician, and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Smith, friends of Powers, lost their lives.

Dallas, Texx., Jan. 9 (AP).—John Charles Thomas, barytone, cancelled a recital here last night because his fee of $1,500 was not forthcoming. Mrs. Harriet Bacon MacDonald said that when Thomas demanded his fee yesterday morning, the local management had only $250 available.

Roosevelt Refuses Raise In U. S. Pay Before July 1; Battle Taken to Congress

Life of RFC Is Extended For One Year

Billion More Asked by Administration Cut by Committee.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Deciding to keep a close check on activities of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Senate Banking and Currency Committee yesterday refused to agree to prolong the institution's life beyond one year, giving it an added $850,000,000 borrowing power, although $1,000,000,000 was asked by the Administration spokesman.

The committee came to this decision during an executive session of more than an hour with Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, who submitted the tentative draft of a bill calling for a three-year extension of life, unless terminated at a prior date by proclamation of the President.

The bill presented by Mr. Jones did not specify the amount of increased funds desired by the RFC, but he told the committee, it was explained, that an increase of $1,000,000,000 in its borrowing power would be desirable.

The committee members, however, took the view that $850,000,000 more would be sufficient during the next year, and pointed out that at the end of this period the RFC could again seek Congressional sanction for continued existence as well as funds.

Other RFC Bill in House.

Under existing law the lending authority of the RFC expires on January 22. Consequently legislation prolonging its life for one year at least will be rushed in both House and Senate. Representative Henry B. Steagall (Democrat), Alabama, introduced in the House a bill similar to that presented to the the Senate committee by Mr. Jones, except that it called for an added $500,000,000 of borrowing power.

Mr. Steagall will call the House Banking and Currency Committee together today to hear Mr. Jones and to act on the bill. Democratic Floor Leader Byrns has failed to get Republican Floor Leader Bertram Snell to agree to consider the bill by unanimous consent and he is ready to seek a rule to carry it through the House.

Whether Mr. Snell's refusal to assist in the expedition of the bill presages a Republican attack on the measure is not known. But such an attack would be in line with that party's opposition to making further large sums available for expenditure.

Incidentally, the $850,000,000 extended borrowing power for the RFC does not figure in the total of proposed appropriations and gets into the budget only when disbursed or as an estimated expenditure.

RFC Liked by "Brain Trust."

Should the Republicans, however, attack the extension of the life of the RFC, they will be assailing the

WALTER J. CUMMINGS.

Chicago Bank Post Assigned To Cummings

Deposit Insurance Head Is RFC Choice for Continental Post.

Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, will become chairman of the board of the Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co., of Chicago., it was announced yesterday.

Cummings will be elected at a stockholders' meeting Friday when the Reconstruction Finance Corporation casts two-thirds of the votes. The RFC owns $50,000,000 of the preferred stock in the bank, representing a two-thirds interest, and has demanded its right to name the board members.

In addition to Cummings, eight other board members will be elected Friday. The names of these members have not been announced.

Announcement that Cummings would head the bank was no surprise. It was known he was being considered for the place by the RFC in spite of opposition of some of the directors and stockholders.

One Director Resigns.

A group of directors of the bank came to Washington Monday to confer with Jesse H. Jones, head of RFC, on the election. Jones let it be known after the first session with the bankers that the RFC would insist on naming the directors of banks in which it holds a controlling interest, and that it would exercise its right to vote for directors of all banks in which it is a stockholder.

In spite of differences with the RFC, which led to the resignation of one of the bank's directors and the withdrawal of the man who had been chosen by the directors to act as chairman, J. R. Leavell, president of the bank, expressed himself as pleased with the outcome of the conferences.

Came Here in March.

"I am very happy with the results we have achieved," he said, "and feel confident that the leadership of Mr. Cummings will be of inestimable value to the Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co. The entire organization shares with me these statements."

Jones announced that the directors selected Cummings unanimously.

Cummings, a resident of Chicago, is director of the American Car & Foundry Co., and president of the Cummings Car & Coach Co. He was brought to Washington last March by Former Secretary Woodin to assist in handling bank affairs following the holiday.

Olson Signs Liquor Tax Bill.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 9 (AP).—The Minnesota liquor tax law, which, it is estimated, will bring in at least $4,000,000 annually to the State treasury, was signed late today by Gov. Floyd B. Olson. The act was passed at a special session of the Legislature.

Holds Advance in Cost of Living Doesn't Justify Increase.

Bills Are Drafted For Aid at Once

By Leon Dure, Jr.

Hopes of Government employes for at least a partial restoration of salaries at this time were dashed yesterday by an Executive order continuing until June 30 the 15 per cent reduction provided in last spring's economy act.

This was made necessary, irrespective of the undisclosed wishes of President Roosevelt, by the long-awaited National cost-of-living report, which showed an increase of only 5.2 per cent—still 21.1 per cent below the 1928 base period.

The White House issued a brief statement with the Executive order, explaining the Department of Labor had reported two sets of figures—the first covering wage earners in 32 cities; the second, Government employes in Washington. Living costs of the latter were etsimated at only 14.6 per cent below the 1928 level.

National Costs Dictate Pay.

Despite the relatively high-price structure in Washington, as this difference tended to indicate, under the economy act the salaries of the thousands of Government employes in the District are fixed in accordance with the National cost index.

Under the law, the President had no choice, although his budget message for the year beginning July 1 proposes restoration of 5 per cent of the reduction, after which increases still would be contingent on the cost-of-living survey, taken semiannually.

Although living costs would have had to increase almost 10 per cent during the last six months to bring about any restoration of wages, Government employes remained hopeful up to the very hour of announcement. Their only recourse now is to Congress, in which numerous champions plan to press bills increasing salaries.

Percentages Cited.

Concerning the two sets of findings of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the White House statement said:

"The first, based on the cost of living for families of wage earners and lower-salaried workers in 32 cities scattered throughout the

Hongkong, Jan. 9 (AP).—Heavy casualties were inflicted today as Nationalist troops, behind deadly bombardments, moved steadily toward Foochow, center of an anti-Nationalist revolutionary movement.

Nanking military leaders claimed their forces had advanced to within 25 miles of Foochow, capital of Fukien Province, and were ready for a final crushing thrust at the rebels.

Crippled communication lines cut off Foochow itself from the outside world. To islands near it, large numbers of foreigners, including at least 144 Americans, were said to have flocked for safety. The American destroyer Fulton was in the Foochow Harbor.

The Nanking foreign office said it had informed foreign governments that it "already had done its duty in warning foreigners to evacuate Foochow" and that "if they refuse the Chinese government can not be responsible for their protection."

Reports reaching Nanking said the insurgent chieftains were in flight from Foochow, except Gen. Tsai Ting-Kai, commander of the famous Nineteenth route army and chairman of the Fukien Military Council, who was said to have been left alone to direct the defense of the capital.

Shrine Curators Reveal 2 Men Wrote "McGuffey Readers"

Oxford, Ohio, Jan. 9 (AP).—Two men wrote the famous "McGuffey Readers," so admired by Henry Ford and thousands of others, curators of a shrine to the authors here pointed out today.

Interest in the "readers" and their history led Ford to a McGuffey homestead near Washington, Pa., not far from Pittsburgh. But it was here, seat of Miami University, that much of the work on the readers was done by William H. McGuffey and his younger brother, Alexander.

A shrine to them has been established in what was the town's only hotel back in the 1830's, when the readers first were published. It is largely devoted to relics of the elder brother, a teacher in Miami University. Among them are his family Bible, many of his books, his spectacles, the study-table at which he worked, and the bed, with its cornhusk mattress.

Primarily, the readers were designed to help younger minds through the complexities of the English language. But the McGuffeys filled them with moral precepts as well.

There were six "McGuffey Electric Readers," and a spelling book. William, the elder, wrote the first four, and his younger brother the fifth, sixth and the speller. The first appeared in 1836, and revisions for years thereafter.

Data on Living Costs in Error, Workers Say

A barrage of criticism from Federal employe organizations, the American Federation of Labor and other groups yesterday greeted President Roosevelt's order extending the 15 per cent pay cut another six months.

The National Federation of Federal Employes, the American Federation of Government employes, the A. F. of L., and the National Association of Letter Carriers declared strongly against the decision.

"It is useless to attempt to minimize the shock to Federal employes throughout the United States occasioned by the order, the National Federation of Federal Employes declared.

Cost Decline Assailed.

Referring to the finding of the cost of living survey as showing a 21 per cent decline in living costs since 1928, the statement added:

"Federal employes will have great difficulty reconciling this conclusion with their present financial condition, due to the fact that for several years past they have practically, without exception, had their expenditures largely increased due to the necessity of their contributing financial support to others."

Attacking the validity of the cost of living survey, the American Federation of Government Employes asserted:

"The President's decision not to restore any part of the salary reduction shows the fallacy of the cost of living method of setting salaries. It is a matter of common knowledge that prices have increased very appreciably."

Sum Called Small Factor.

Addressing a memorial to Congress, the letter carriers' association asserted the sum saved by the wage cut is "unimportant and unnecessary as a means of balancing the budget and fallacious in moral and economic principles." It declared the cut placed the Government in an "insince and inconsistent" position, and that the Bureau of Labor Statistics cost of living index is "antiquated and misleading."

The order was announced as officials of the A. F. of L. met to confer about restoration of the cut. Calling attention to a statement by A. F. Whtiney, international president of Railroad Labor Executives, the conference ordered the chairman and secretary of the A. F. of L. legislative committee to secure immediate introduction of a restoration bill in the House and Senate.

Approval was given Mr. Whitney's declaration that "our organization did not and does not approve of such wage cutting and backward steps with respect to working conditions."

given him by Kenneth MacPherson, personal secretary to Brown.

Initial indication of the disappearance of the records was presented by James A. Doran, postoffice inspector, who said he had discovered the loss when committee investigators asked to see the files.

Documents Not Revealed.

Although the specific nature of the missing documents was not revealed, Chairman Black said htey dealt with aid mail contracts, but that the committee was not aware of the exact information they contained.

Pursuing his inquiry into what he termed the "aviation trust," Black presented evidence that practically all the air mail contracts had been awarded to three big companies, each hte result of many mergers.

He listed them as the Aviation Corporation of Delaware, controlled by the Cord interests; the United Aircraft & Transport, Inc., and the North American Airways, Inc., under control of General Motors.

Erle Halliburton, former operator of an independent passenger air line, testified that he sold his company to the American Airways for $1,400,000 after he realized the he would not be awarded a mail contract.

A ruling of Comptroller General McCarl, he said, made night flying one of the requirements for a contract, although the law granting this form of subsidy contained no such provision.

Charges Merger Blocked.

Since his was a passenger line and could not qualify under the night flying prerequisite, he sought a merger with the North Western Airways, which then held a contract. But the North Western president said that if the merger went through Postmaster General Brown threatened to cancel the contract, declared Halliburton.

Later, he said, both Brown and his assistant, Glover, told him that he must sell out to the American Airways, which later became the Aviation Corporation.

" 'I'll ruin you if it's the last act of my life,' " the witness quoted Glover as promising him. " 'You've tried to block this thing all the way through and I'll get you.' "

The only reason Halliburton could advance for the vehement attitude of the Postoffice officials was that he offered to carry the mail too cheaply.

He said in December, 1929, he made an offer to the Postoffce to carry mail for 70 cents a pound for the first 1,000 miles. He estimated that if his bid, which he made in conjunction with William G. McAdoo, now Senator from California, would have saved the Government several millions of dollars a year.

Asked if he had been in a financial position to make such an offer, Halliburton replied:

"Sure I was. I had an income of $3,000 or $4,000 a day then."

Received Double Price.

Although he finally sold out for $1,400,000 Halliburton estimated the assets of his company as having a value of nearer $700,000 or $800,000.

Relative to the presence in Washington of Herbert Hoover, jr., the former President's eldest son, engineer with the Western Air Express at the time a mail contract was under consideration for his line, a letter from Halliburton to Patrick J. Hurley, Mr. Hoover's Secretary of War, was introduced. It concluded:

"If the contracts are awarded," referring to the alleged intention of Brown to award contracts to the Western Air Express and the Transcontinental Air Transport, "I am certain it will result in the investigation of the Postoffice Department, and due to the connection of Herbert Hoover, jr., with the Western, which they will play up in connection with the operation, I am sure it will result in serious criticism of Hoover himself, and for this reason I am passing this information on to you for whatever purpose you may care to use it."

King Said Hoover Talked.

Lawrence King, former newspaper aviation writer, admitted that he once wrote Halliburton that "young Hoover is in Washington and is talking too much."

Black introduced additional correspondence revealing that King had deemed it "unethical" that young Hoover be in Washington when a mail contract for his line was under consideration, and that he suggested that the President's son leave town.

King made a public apology to Hoover, saying that since that time he learned he had made a mistake. He vehemently denied a question by Senator Austin (Republican), Vermont, as to whether he thought there had been an "ulterior motive behind young Hoover's presence in Washington at that time."

Edward T. Clarke, former secretary to the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and Calvin Coolidge until the former President's death, told the committee that in 1930 he represented Halliburton.

"I advised him to sell out as the better choice between actual cash and a complete loss. He didn't have a chance in the world of getting a mail contract, no matter what he bid."

Protested Night Clause.

He testified that he protested vigorously against the night-flying ruling, and in connection with it said he had frequent conferences with various Administration officials.

Paul Henderson, former Assistant Postmaster General in the Coolidge Administration, and now vice president of the United Aircraft and Transport Corporation, told the senators that in May, 1930, when the McNary-Watres air mail bill was passed, there were 14,000 miles of air mail routes.

By May, 1932, the mileage had increased to 26,784 miles through extensions by Postoffice order, without competitive bidding. In some cases, he said, the routes had been increased two and a half times their original length allowed in the competitively secured contract.

He revealed that Mrs. Willebrandt, Brown, Glover and himself had participated in conferences dealing with drawing up the McNary-Watres bill.

Henderson will continue his testimony today, in addition to Fred Coburn, former president of Aviation Corporation, and D. M. Schaefer, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, which was interested in the Transcontinental Air Transport Line.

Negro Benefactor's Rites Here Today

W. H. H. Hart to Be Buried in Harmony Cemetery.

William H. H. Hart, formerly of 216 Arthur place northwest, who died Monday in Brooklyn at the home of his daughter, will be buried at 2 p. m. today at Harmony Cemetery. For more than 30 years he was professor of criminal law at Howard University, concluding his services there during the administration of Dr. J. Stanley Durkee.

With W. E. B. Dubois, Monroe Trotter and W. H. Richards, he organized the "Niagara Movement" out of which grew the National Association for Advancement of Colored People. He won fame in his successful defense of himself before a Maryland jury when he was ejected from a carrier under the State "Jim Crow" car law while in possession of a ticket qualifying him as an interstate passenger.

He established the Hart Farm on property sold to him by former Senator William Evarts, of New York, and developed it as an institution for delinquent colored youth, the present Industrial Home School at Blue Plains being the outgrowth of this project.

Doomed for Murders, He Flips Coin in Court

New Orleans, Jan. 9 (AP).—Apparently as indifferent as when he was convcted oif the murder of Sheffield Clark in a local hotel, Louis Kenneth Meu, 26, one-time cabaret singer and confessed slayer of two men, today did tricks with a flipping coin while District Judge A. D. Henriques sentenced him to hang.

"Good luck to you, judge, old fellow, and good-by," Meu said, catching the coin with a gesture of finality as the passing of sentence was completed. He smiled at the crowd as he was taken back to death row.

CONGRESS YESTERDAY

Senate.

In adjournment.

Banking and Currency Committee in executive session considered various nominations and discussed extending life of RFC with Director Jesse H. Jones.

Interstate Commerce Committee in executive session considered various nominations.

Black investigating committee opened hearings into air mail contracts, revealing destruction of official records by order of former Postmaster General Brown.

House.

Met at noon and adjourned at 5:15 p. m. until noon today.

Passed District liquor bill, providing for licensed liquor control, after approving numerous changes and rejecting dispensary substitute.

Postoffice Committee favorably reported bill allowing postal employes compensation for use of own automobiles; gave bills strengthening postal savings law preferential status on committee calendar.

Speaker Henry T. Rainey answered Republican National Committee attack on Government spending, declaring recovery costs insignificant compared with billions spent in war.

Chairman Henry B. Steagall of the Banking and Currency Committee introduced bill authorizing Reconstruction Finance Corporation to float $500,000,000 in new obligations, discountable at Federal Reserve Banks.

Ways and Means Committee heard appeals for nuisance tax repeal. Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), Texas, asked more tax publicity.

ing money to assist in election campaigns such as the impending Vermont senatorial fight, where the party is seeking to pile up as much of a majority as possible for psychological reasons. It was indicated they had not been particularly successful in getting such help.

Senator Charles L. McNary, Republican Senate leader, and Representative Bertrand H. Snell, House Republican leader, are seeking to hold the minority on an even keel until they know in which direction to head. Senator McNary especially has been maneuvering for harmony. He stepped in to help thwart the recent move to shake up the Republican National committee and supplant Everett Sanders as chairman.

Hastings, Dickinson Linked.

Senator Daniel O. Hastings, of Delaware, chairman of the Senatorial campaign committee, and his vice chairman, Senator L. J. Dickinson, of Iowa, are the most important members of the Republican Senatorial group who favored a heavy slugging policy. They would keep constantly before th ecountry the $7,000,000,000 deficit, the $10,000,000,000 borrowing program for the next six months and the prospective $31,000,000,000 deficit.

All of this is sweet music to Democratic ears. Fo rthe most part the majority party in Congress is content to let the quarrel across the aisle to go merrily on.

Speaker Henry T. Rainey, however, did take cognizance of budget criticism in a brief retort:

"The cost of winning this economic war is inconsiderable compared with the result we will accomplish," Speaker Rainey said. "It is sheer nonsense to call attention to the fact that the National debt is going to be $31,000,000,000. In less than two years of the World War we spent $41,000,000,000. When we have finished the present war we will have expended less than $12,000,000,000.

"Adding together the National debt and the debts of all of the States, we get a total debt of $270 per capita. Great Britain's internal debt figures $700 per capita."

May Shift from Figures.

There are indications the debate over the budget will shift away from the actual figures and swing more directly around the question as to whether the Administration will be able, after the next fiscal year, to taper off sharply on its emergency expenditures. Democrats are banking on business recovery to make this possible.

Yet on the other side, it is suggested that during the peak of the boom period, farmers were clamoring for relief and there were several million unemployed. The question being asked is whether it will be possible politically to with draw AAA and CWA aid when there are too many farmers raising more than the country can eat, and when technological development is tending to reduce steadily the number of men per unit of industrial production.

1,000 Architects On CWA Payrolls

Entire Quota Is Filled for Historical Survey.

All of the 1,000 architects authorized to be hired on the civil works survey of historic American buildings will be on CWA pay rolls when district reports from all over the Nation are received tomorrow, it was announced yesterday at the meeting of the National Advisory Board.

The program has met such enthusiastic approval, the board said, that many more projects have been been submitted than can be handled and the supply of competent architects is far greater than the number which can be used. More than 200 men had been given work up to last Thursday.

Discussion of technical details consumed most of the two-day session, concluded yesterday. In the afternoon the board of eight members, headed by Chairman Leicester B. Holland, inspected the old Ford Theater on Tenth street. At the close of the meetin the board was received by Secretary of the Interior Ickes.

$742 Error

Contractor Puts Decimal Point in Wrong Place.

An error of a decimal point almost cost the Warren F. Brenizer Co., Washington construction firm, $742.50, yesterday when the District Commissioners awarded a contract for paving New Hampshire avenue northeast between North Capitol street and the District line.

The company, it developed, bid $0.15 a cubic yard on a contrete retaining wall when it was intended to be $15. The totals were $7.50 and $750.

Brenizer was still low bidder at $55,469.25 after the correction was made.

Two CWA Men Are Reinstated; Get Back Pay

Pair Were Discharged for Distributing of Handbills.

Two CWA laborers, allegedly dismissed for distributing handbills in the interest of an organization meeting, were reinstated yesterday by the District Commissioners following an executive hearing.

While restoring also the back pay of the two workmen, Sam Brown and Robert Powell, both colored, the Commissioners uphled the foreman who discharged the men on the ground they refused to work.

"The chief purpose of the CWA is to provide employment and self-respecting relief to deserving men an dwomen," a statement by the District heads said.

"In these particular cases the CWA authority is willing at this time t opass over what they hope was a temporary delinquency in refusing to work with the most moderate diligence, and for which these men were very properly discharged, and to authorize the reemployment of these men, and their continued employment so long as they render reasonable, earnest service. If failure to render service again occurs, discharge will be made final."

It was disclosed yesterday that the foreman on highway work, W. F. Zirkle, who had dismissed the two men, had also dismissed a third workman for circulating the handbills, only to have the men restored by a CWA officer at once.

When deportation proceedings were brought in 1919, Miss Goldman contended she was an American citizen, on the ground that she was at that time the wife of Jacob Kersner, an American. The courts held otherwise, and she and 247 other aliens were transported. She was sent to Finland because the United States had no official relations with Russia. From there she went to Russia, to receive a public welcome.

Gas Firm Seeks New Value Boost

Figures Construction Costs at Present Rates.

The Washington Gas Light Co. made another attempt to boost its valuation through mathematical manipulation yesterday when it estimated construction costs as of today. The result was to add $381,843.

Original cost of financing was figured at $215,427, but the cost today, witnesses said, would be $597,270, or almost twice as much. Over objections of William A. Roberts, special counsel, the commission admitted the figures "for what they may be worth."

The day before the gas company raised its own valuatoin figures about $4,250,000 by restating the reproduction cost in 1932 dollars.

U. S. Pay Raise Refused; Fight Up to Congress

United States, reveals that the average cost of living for these groups in our population was, during the last half of 1933, 21.1 below the average of the base period of December, 1927, and June, 1928. In this set of findings the decline in the cost of living in the District of Columbia for simiiliar familes was 17.9.

"The second set of findings resulted from a special study of the cost of living of Government employes in the District of Columbia and was made during the last three months by the Labor Department. These show a decline in the cost of living of 14.6 per cent.

"In view of the above and because the law provides for index figures covering all parts of the country, it is necessary to continue the present scale until June 30, 1934."

Discrepancies Revealed.

Mr. Roosevelt's executive order cited the index figure of 171 for the six months ending June 30, 1928, and then gave as 135 the figure for the half-year period ending December 31, 1933. His order establishing the pay cut last July 1 gave 128.3 as the index figure for the first six months of the year. This was 24.9 per cent below the 1928 base period.

Thus, while the index figure improved 7.7 points during the last six months of last year, it would have to reach 145.4 for any restoration of salaries. That is the approximate figure for 15 per cent below the 1928 cost-of-living level, which would have to be passed to effect a reduction in the pay slash.

Coincident with the Executive Order, the Department of Labor made public the report of Dr. Isador Lubin, commissioner of labor statistics, on the cost of living in statistics, on the cost of living in Washington. Besides showing that Government employes' costs in December were only 14.9 per cent below 1928, this report disclosed an increase of 6.5 per cent in costs for District wage earners, whose index figure was 17.9 below the base period.

Figures Called NRA Boost.

The unexpectedly small increases in living costs, which will be given in detail by the Labor Department in the next few days, were seen by friends of the Administration as evidence the NRA and other recovery agencies had not raised prices to the extent its detractors have claimed. The last six months' period covered by the reports coincides roughly with the life of the NRA.

Before signing his Executive Order President Roosevelt returned the reports to the Labor Department several times for summarization. At the time they were rushed to completion, he warned newspapermen against predicting an increase, evidently aware the figures would not permit any change.

Traffic to Change On 13th Tuesday

One-Way Plan Will Rule in Rush Hours.

Plans for converting Thirteenth street into a one-way thoroughfare during morning and afternoon rush hours, will become effective next Tuesday at 8 a. m., it was announced yesterday by Assistant Traffic Director M. O. Eldridge.

Signs will be erected this week, Eldridge declared, on both sides of the street from Kansas to Massachusetts avenues northwest. From 8 to 9:30 a. m., only South bound rtaffice will be permitted. North bound traffic will flow from 4 to 6 p. m.

During these hours no parking will be allowed on either side of the thoroughfare, Eldridge said. Enactment of the program, scheduled for last month, was postponed until after the Christmas holidays.

Term of RFC Extended Year By Committee

only agency created by the Hoover Administration that President Roosevelt has taken over, lock, stock and barrel, without revision or modification. All others, except for the Home Loan Bank Board, have been abolished and the latter's structure has been greatly revised.

The Roosevelt Administration has developed a deep feeling of fondness for the RFC and on occasion has heaped it with fulsome praise. In recent months members of the President's "brain trust" have discussed making the RFC a permanent agency of the Federal Government, charged with carrying on certain kinds of long-term financing as a means of breaking the hold of bankers on industry.

Berle Article Cited.

It is in connection with this background that the action of the Senate committee in rejecting a three-year extension of life for the RFC becomes significant. Such a period would permit experimentation that one year would not allow. Moreover the committee even rejected Mr. Jones' suggestion, after his first proposal was disapproved, that the corporation be extended to July 1, 1935. The committee set the limit at February 1, 1935.

The feeling among the Roosevelt "brain trust" that it might be used as a permanent agency to diminish further the importnace of the bankers was reflected in a recent Yale Review article on "High Finance," by Adolph A. Berle, the member of the "brain trust" whose specialty is banking and finance.

Praises RFC's Record.

"I question whether the country will care to dispense with this bit of machinery (RFC)," Mr. Berle wrote. "For it can be demonstrated that the nert result of the RFC has been to save the entire country as least as much as the $2,000,000,000 it has lent, most of which it will recover; and that, in the large view, it was the instrument which took financial control of the country away from the hands of a group which did not enjoy public confidence, butting it into the hands of a Government which could command that necessary trust."

"It must be condede that the efforts to reduce finance to the place of an honored servant instead of a discredited master have been fumbling in the extreme. The most effective, according to the observation of the writer, has been the RFC; although the possibilities inherent ni that mechanism are as yet only barely conceived."

Jones Lists Needs.

Mr. Jones told the committee he did not seek any new functions for the RFC, beyond the power to borrow more. He explained that at this time the agency had only $15,000,000 of its funds—in the aggregate totaling something more than $4,000,000,000—uncommitted. He estimated repayments into the revolving fund at between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 a month during the next six months.

He estimated the need for funds as follows:

Loans to open banks, to receivers and liquidators to reorganize banks and to unfreeze deposits	$500,000,000
Loans to mortgage loan companies	$75,000,000
Loans to railroads	75,000,000
Loans to finance agricultural exports to foreign countries	75,000,000
Loans to refinance obligations of drainage, levee and irrigation districts	33,000,000
Rediscounts for regional agricultural credit corporations	30,000,000
Loans to building and loan associations	10,000,000
Loans to insurance companies	10,000,000
Loans to joint stock land banks	5,000,000
Loans to private agricultural and live stock credit corporations	2,000,000

Puts Needs at $815,000,000.

Mr. Jones thus estimated that the RFC would need about $815,000,000 of new money during the next six months. He did not include any figure for the purchase of preferred stock in banks because the agency is authorized to borrow whatever amount it needs for this purpose. A statement of the RFC's finances showed the sum disbursed for this purpose at the end of last year totaled $816,811,850, with about $250,000,000 more committed but not yet disbursed.

This statement showed that the commitments of the RFC during its life totaled $4,959,719,826. Of this sum $589,048,898 has been authorized to thaw frozen bank deposits. The total disbursed during the life of the corporation was $4,064,574,581.

The agency at the end of the last year owed the Treasury $2,350,000,000, in addition to the $500,000,000 advanced for capital stock and to banks holding the agency's debentures $101,299,666. Repayments for the period between February 2, 1932, and December 31 last totaled $1,030,631,194.

Agency Earns $39,015,366.

The earnings of the agency were set at $112,587,531, including $112,136,563 from earned interest, $448,451 from dividends on preferred bank stock and $2,516 from other sources. Expenses were put at $73,572,164, including $58,786,369 paid in interest on debentures held by the Secretary of the Treasury. The net earnings above expenses were listen at $39,015,366, with the notation that no reserve had been set up for probable losses.

Mr. Jones reported the agency held collateral valued at $533,995,965 to secure $337,079,621 outstanding in railroad loans. He pointed out, however, that there appears at this time a deficiency in the collateral securing loans to 14 railroads, including six in receivership and bankruptcy. The deficiency was estimated at about $30,000,000.

Fugitive From South Also Helped Build Hidden Hovels.

By Felix Bruner.

Washington's inhabited alleys are a result of a combination of conditions and circumstances peculiar to this city.

The blame for the existence of these hidden communities, where disease and crime breed, belongs primarily to Maj. L'Enfant, who with great skill and artistry, but with little foresight, laid out the City of Washington. His original street plan called for large blocks. If the blocks had been as small as those in some cities, there would be no alley dwellings today.

The next circumstance that brought about present-day alley conditions was the fact that Washington residents owned slaves. Alley houses of today are successors of the slave quarters of early Washington.

The third circumstance was the Civil War. Southern Negroes, suddenly finding themselves free, and many finding themselves without homes or means of support, flocked across the Potomac to Washington, the city of their benefactors, seeking help, much as the bonus army came to Washington.

Build Hovels.

Just as did the bonus army, these invading people built shacks and huts and hovels. Some of them settled on the sites of old forts—the Government was lenient—and their descendants still occupy these districts. Many more simply moved in on the territory already occupied by Negroes.

The large blocks were occupied in the early days by wealthier residents. Their houses were at the front. Their slave quarters to the rear. Their driveways led to the back. The big houses are gone. They are replaced by row-houses, apartment buildings and tenaments. These completely surround the old slave quarters. But these latter districts still exist, hidden from view, accessible only by passages that probably originally were the driveways.

Almost immediately after the Civil War agitation against the alley districts was started. The districts must have been particularly miserable in those days. The alleys were unpaved. Many of them were in swampy districts. There was no attempt at any kind of sanitation. The buildings were mostly wooden shacks.

Improved Slowly.

So Washington alleys, bad as they still are, have improved. Their improvement has been the result of almost uninterrupted warfare against them since 1871. That they still exist in any form has been the result of inertia, reluctance of Congress to act—and to the fact that unless their existence is repeatedly brought forceably to public attention, they are likely to be forgotten. Few people, other than their inhabitants, ever visit the alleys.

One of the exceptions was the first Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. When the story of the final rescue of Washington's alley dwellers is written, her name will appear large in the account. She worked for alley legislation and she partially succeeded. Among the last acts of her life were those in behalf of alley dwellers. The present Mrs. Roosevelt also is showing interest in the alley problem. Her blue roadster has been seen in some of the worst of Washington's alleys, where she has gone to get first-hand information.

Congress in 1871 created a Board of Health. That is the first event of record in the warfare against alleys. Immediately afterward the board enacted an ordinance declaring unfit dwellings "nuisances injurious to health" and providing for their abatement. In his report of 1872, the health officer describes "many shanties and hovels unfit for habitation," some of which he caused to be vacated. In 1874 the board condemned 389 dwellings; in 1875 it condemned 198 dwellings; and 371 were condemned in 1876.

Plight About the Same Now.

In the report of the Board of Health for 1877 is this description: "Down in the alleys, below grade, with combination roof of tar, felt, shingles, rags, tin, gravel, boards and holes; floors damp and broken; walls begrimed by smoke and age; so domiciled are families with all the dignity of tenants having rent to pay * * *."

The description of some of Washington's alley houses today might be almost the same. The difference is that most of the wooden houses are gone and the alleys are paved. The outward appearance of the alleys has improved greatly. It is doubtful whether there has been much improvement in the interior of the houses.

Up to 1877 the Board of Health apparently was making rapid strides in the right direction. In 1878, Congress did one of those inexplicable things for which Congress is noted. It abolished the Board of Health. When the health ordinance of 1880 was legalized the section under which unfit dwellings were condemned was omitted.

Only a Few Carry On.

The unofficial fight continued unabated. A few Washington people, who knew how much crime came out of the alleys, how much disease they harbored, how high their death rates were, continued to demand action. It took them 12 years to get any.

In 1892 a second important blow was struck. Congress enacted a law prohibiting erection of dwellings in alleys less than 30 feet wide and not supplied with sewers, water mains and light, and providing that any dwelling thereafter erected in any alley should be 20 feet back of the center line of the alley, and that any alley on which a dwelling was erected must run straight to and open at right angles upon a street with at least one exit 15 feet in the clear.

That put an end to most alley house construction. But it in no wise put an end to alley menace. The houses now occupied in Washington alleys were built prior to 1892, but they still are occupied and will continue to be occupied for many years to come, unless the Government steps in and tears them down.

Tobacco Holiday Ends in Virginia

Burley Warehouses Open by Pollard's Order.

Richmond, Jan. 9 (AP).—Gov. Pollard today officially proclaimed the burley tobacco marketing holiday in Virginia ended, after he had been advised that similar action had been taken by the Governors of Kentucky and Tennessee, effective yesterday, and that warehouses at Abingdon has begun selling again.

The warehouses closed after Gov. Pollard's proclamation December 18 because of low prices. He issued his first proclamation at the request of growers, and his action today was taken after he had been asked to follow that course by the growers and by State officials.

W.A. Strohm Slated For Annapolis Post

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 9 (Spl.).—The Democratic State central committee for Anne Arundel County today endorsed William A. Strohm for postmaster of Annapolis to succeed Joseph M. Armstrong, Republican, who will retire January 28.

The committee's action was forwarded to Representative Stephen W. Gambrill (Democrat), Fifth District, whose approval is expected soon.

Mr. Strohm is a member of a business firm here and for several years has been a member of the county board of education.

Liquor Blamed in Panic That Killed 70 Japanese

Kyoto, Japan, Jan. 9 (AP).—Liquor was held largely responsible by railway authorities today for a panic in which 80 persons lost their lives.

The authorities said unsteady drinkers of sake caused the commotion in the Kyoto Railway Station yesterday which resulted in a stampede. More than 1,000 persons had jammed the station to bid farewell to naval recruits.

D. C. Rum Law This Week-End Up to Senate

House Liberalizes Liquor Bill, Passes It by Oral Vote.

ton's charge that the law was "a disgrace to the National Capital," and who drew, in turn, accusations of "fanatical intolerance," the debate, limited to two hours, was marked by tolerant good humor.

A series of amendments offered by Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York, permitting public display of spirits and embodying other features more liberal than the commissioners' plan, were accepted by Chairman Mary T. Norton (Democrat), New Jersey, for the District committee.

When the measure finally was passed, Mrs. Norton was congratulated on the floor by Majority Leader Joseph W. Byrns (Democrat), Tennessee, and other House leaders.

Committee Acts Today.

Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, chairman of the Senate District Committee, who was in the House when the measure passed, announced it would be considered by his committee at 10 a. m. today.

The measure will be reported to the Senate Thursday, after an attempt has been made in committee to substitute a Government dispensary system for the licensing system. Senator King, who, with Senators Thomas P. Gore (Democrat), Oklahoma, and Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, favors a dispensary system, believes a majority of his committee will uphold the bill in its present form.

The Democratic Steering Committee of the Senate has placed the measure second on the legislative program to the National liquor tax law, and it is expected to pass Saturday if the senate meets on that day.

Among the new amendments the bill carries to the Senate committee are the following:

A change in the definition of wines, to conform with Government regulations and NRA codes, and a reduction in the taxes on wines of more than 14 per cent and abolition of the tax on light wines, offered by Representative George Burnham (Republican), California;

Raising of license fees for rectifying plans and distilleries from $2,000 to $3,500 by Representative O'Connor;

Display Ban Lifted.

Elimination of the ban on display of spirits and wines in places selling liquor by the drink, by Representative O'Connor;

A requirement that druggists, on prescription, must sel only spiritus frumenti, or bonded liquor, by Representative O'Connor;

Permission for hloders of certificates for bonded liquor in warehouses to get it out without resorting to wholesalers who have licenses, and charge for the service, by Representative O'Connor;

A final important amendment, also offered by the New Yorker, striking fro the bill all of section 28, which prohibited drinking in public places except hotels, restaurants, clubs and, in the case of beer, taverns.

The part of the section which the House voted to eliminate was declared by Representative O'Connor to have been taken verbatim from the District's prohibition law of 1917. It read:

"No person shall * * * drink any beverage in any street, alley, or publicly owned space, or in any vehicle upon the same, or in or upon any depot, platform, or waiting room of any public carrier, or in any hotel, tavern, restaurant, store, or place of business to which the public is invited, or at any public gathering, except that beverages may be drunk upon premises for which a retailer's license class 'C' has been issued, or beer may be drunk upon premises for which a retailer's license class 'D' has been issued."

Ridicule Brings Deletion.

After Representative O'Connor had ridiculed this part of the bill, the Democratic steering committee agreed to its elimination.

The 90 to 48 vote against Representative Patman's motion to recommit the bill followed, and the, measure was passed on an oral vote at 5:10 p. m.

Representative Blanton opened the debate by declaring he would stop passage of the bill if he could, and that he opposed "filling the District of Columbia with liquor saloons from one end to the other." He also attacked the proposed salaries of the control board.

Representative Gale H. Stalker, of New York, ranking Republican member of the District committee, favored the dispensary system as productive of cheaper liquor and elimination of the bootlegger.

Representative Patman declared "if the hotel people of Washington could have elected a committee to give them an monopoly on sale of liquor, they could not have done better than this bill. He maintained the measure was opposed to the Democratic platform in that it didn't eliminate the old saloon, promote temperance or "bring the liquor business into the open."

Texas Objectors Chided.

The suggestion that perhaps Texans "don't know prohibition has been repealed" was made by Representative Dirksen, who described the dispensary system as a "ghastly experiment in putting the Government into the liquor business."

Experience showed, he claimed, that while a man drank three glasses of whiskey in 15 minutes, standing at a bar, he, consumed only three in an hour when seated.

Representative Smith pleaded for the dispensary system, challenging supporters of the committee's measure to show the difference between "the old situation, and the new, where liquor is sold by the drink."

Representative Loring M. Black, jr. (Democrat), New York, opposed the dispensary system, and defended the committee bill as "a pretty decent and servicable proporsition."

Bringing liquor business into the open, he said, meant taking its control from the underworld, "not forcing everyone to drink in Garfinckel's window.

Tax Rehearing Pleases House In W. Virginia

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.). Prolonged applause in the House of Delegates today greeted the news that the State Supreme Court had granted a rehearing of the tax test case in which it previously had voided the Legislature's second effort in a year's struggle to enact a tax system under the tax limiting amendment to the State Constitution.

The rehearing had been asked by Fred L. Fox, State tax commissioner, after legislative and administrative leaders had declared their inability to unravel the tax tangle. A legal taxing and tax collecting system is necessary before $25,000,000 in property revenue can be made available.

When a motion was made in the House to have its finance committee report out a revenue-raising measure to keep the public schools going, Delegate R. D. Holt (Democrat) Lewis County, announced that the State Department of Education had submitted a bill for transfer of $1,700,000 of impounded utility taxes to the general fund for teachers, salary payments.

Bill Again Up Today.

The bill provides that the money shall be advanced to county boards of education until April 1. Technical obstacles arose and the bill went over until tomorrow. Delegate John L. March (Democrat), Ohio, said the attorney general had advised that no one had authority to distribute the impounded utility taxes until a tax collection bill was passed.

Passage of a bill requiring the State to pay the costs of feeding prisoners held in county jails while awaiting transportation to the penitentiary, was recommended by the House Judiciary Committee.

Purchase by the State of highways and road building machinery in the secondary road system, previously under control of the counties, was proposed to the House by Circuit Judge B. F. Howard, Mingo County. The plan was submitted in response to an appeal by Speaker Ralph M. Hiner (Democrat), Pendleton, for help in solving the State tax muddle.

Uniformed Deputies Asked.

Another effort to require deputy sheriffs to wear uniforms has been started in the Legislature. Delegate E. R. Reed (Republican), Clay, introduced the bill. A few counties already have uniformed deputies as the result of a movement started by Sheriff W. B. Grimm, of Harrison County.

The House has received a proposal from Speaker Hiner that Pendleton County Court be reduced from six to three members.

17 Judgeships Up for Action By Legisature

Virginia Assembly Must Reappoint or Name Successors.

Richmond, Jan. 9 (AP).—Judges in 17 Virginia courts whose terms expire before the convening of the 1936 General Assembly must be reappointed or their successors named by the Assembly which convenes tomorrow.

Among them is Judge Thomas B. Robertson, of the Hopewell Corporation Court, who withstood an effort to oust him in 1932 and who has announced for reelection. He does not have the support of the Hopewell Bar Association.

Judges whose terms expire in 1934 or 1935 are:

Circuit courts—Judge Marshall Peterson, Lawrenceville, Third Circuit, 1934; Judge J. T. Clement, Chatham, Seventh Circuit, 1934; Judge C. Vernon Spratley, Hampton, Eleventh Circuit, 1934; Judge Frederick W. Coleman, Fredericksburg, Fifteenth Circuit, 1934; Judge Benjamin Haden, Fincastle, Nineteenth Circuit, 1934; Judge John J. Stuart, Abingdon, Twenty-third Circuit, 1934; Judge John E. Nottingham, Franktown, Twenty-first Circuit, 1935; Judge Needham S. Turnbull, jr., Victoria, Thirty-fourth Circuit, 1935.

Corporation courts—Judge Frederick W. Coleman, Fredericksburg, 1934; Judge Thomas B. Robertson, Hopewell, 1934; Judge W. H. Sargeant, Norfolk, 1935; Judge Kenneth A. Bain, Portsmouth, 1935; Judge Ker, Staunton, 1935.

Law and chancery courts—Judge Beverly Berkeley, Roanoke, 1935.

Civil justices—Judge Reginald J. B. Page, Norfolk, 1934; Gordon B. Ambler, Richmond, 1934.

Bar Backs Jones, Report.

Richmond, Jan. 9 (AP).—The Richmond Times-Dispatch today says all except three members of the Hopewell Bar have indorsed Archer L. Jones, a former Commonwealth's attorney, as a successor to Judge Thomas B. Robertson of the Hopewell corporation court.

Judge Robertson is quoted as saying "I'm still a candidate."

The paper asserts that "members of the Hopewell Bar Association, with David A. Harrison, jr., president, presiding, agreed to urge Mr. Jones as Judge Robertson's successor," and says the Jones appointment will be urged upon the General Assembly.

Both Mr. Harrison and Mr. Jones assisted M. J. Fulton, of Richmond, in defending Judge Robertson before the 1932 General Assembly against charges of malfeasance and incompetency preferred by 14 members of the Hopewell bar.

House Speaker J. Sinclair Brown, unopposed for reelection, declares the only sources of revenue contemplated were additional levies on the receipts of public utility corporations and expected income from legalized liquor sales. Accordingly the opinion persists that any general sales tax proposal will be defeated.

GLORIFYING THE AMERICAN AUTO.

When you read an automobile advertisement or listen to a car salesman describe the models at this year's automobile shows you can't tell whether you are listening to a description of a motor car, a cigarette or a mattress.

• • • •

• • • •

You are told about "periodicity of movement," "bump ratios," vibrations, aerodynamics, air flow, skirts, art, psychology and knees, but very little about brakes, gears, shafts, ball bearings and mechanical gadgets. Cylinders are hardly mentioned.

• • • •

Nobody has yet proclaimed a model that will soothe the throat or provide you with a necessary vitamin, but the year is young.

• • • •

Automobile manufacturers, having produced the nearly perfect car mechanically, have centered their efforts on turning out a bus so beautiful you can put it in the living room as a better ornament than the player piano.

• • • •

The models offered to the public this year combine all the features of a Napoleonic bed, Cinderella's coach and the Flying Carpet of Bagdad.

• • • •

The designers and engineers were told to create something that would make all previous automobiles look like grandmother's old upright piano, and they went the limit.

• • • •

These 1934 buggies are going to make every automobile owner want to throw his old car over a fence and buy something that will convince the neighbors he believes in the New Deal.

• • • •

Nobody asks "What engine?" any more. They inquire about the "air resistance." Nobody wants to know about such trivial things as brakes and gears. All they want to know is whether it has "knees" and a perfect "ventilating system."

• • • •

This year's emphasis is on springs. Now that all the roads in the country are almost perfect, the manufacturers are solving the spring problem. They are now giving you a bumpless auto just in case you run over a traffic cop or a bird dog.

• • • •

They are giving the buyer an automobile that will make him proud of it even when it is upside down in a ditch. They have produced a car that will be a thing of beauty even when twisted around a telegraph pole.

LINES AFTER VISITING THE AUTO SHOW.

I remember, I remember
The cars of yesteryear,
When I could tell which end was front
And which end was the rear.

I remember, I remember
When a low door made you fidget
And to get into a car you did
Not need to be a midget.

Dr. Moley says that all the money the President asks for to restore prosperity will cost ten billions less than we spent in the World War. Yes, and nobody's urging you to save peach pits.

Twenty-four thousand dollars was paid for a Francis Scott Key manuscript of "The Star-Spangled Banner." That goes to shatter the idea that there is no money in a song the public can't sing.

Walter Carter Killed by Train

Front Royal, Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.). Walter C. Carter, sr., 48, banker and landowner, was killed today by the Washington - Strasburg passenger train as he was motoring to his estate 7 miles from here. It was indicated Mr. Carter saw the train just before he reached the crossing, but was unable to stop until his automobile was across the rails.

Last week the same train with the same engineer, William Goode, of Strasburg, at the throttle, struck an automobile in which two persons were riding near Haymarket. One of the motorists was killed.

Mr. Carter was a son of the late George H. Carter, owner of Carter Hall, near Stephens City. He was a Shriner, past president of the Front Royal Rotary Club, and a leader in civic affairs.

Surviving are his widow, the former Miss Sue Hansbrough, a niece of John Barton Payne, National Red Cross leader; a daughter, Miss Catherine Carter, who is a student at Randolph-Macon Woman's College;" a son, Cadet Walter C. Carter, jr., of Virginia Polytechnic Institute; four sisters, Mrs. Eva Nisson, Winston-Salem, N. C.; Mrs. James W. Tabb, Charles Town, W. Gasoline Bootlegging Newest Boston Racket

Boston (U.P.).—Gasoline bootlegging is the newest racket hereabouts. Employing the same tactics that netted fortunes in bootleg liquor, the petrol racketeers are diluting gasoline until, in some instances, it is only 25 per cent gasoline and 75 per cent kerosene and other adulterants.

Experts estimate that the amount of bootleg gasoline in Massashusetts alone is close to 20,000,000 gallons annually. If that is so, it represents a loss to the State of $600,000 in taxes.

Court Orders Turkey Knob Orchard Sale

Firm Decreed Insolvent; Debts to Be Paid With Proceeds.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.). The Turkey Knob Orchard Co., Inc., of Mount Jackson, Shenandoah County, which owns 500 acres of highly productive apple orchards and in 1919 paid its principal stockholder a return of $45,000, has been declared insolvent by a decree entered in the Frederick County Circuit Court.

The decree, signed by Judge Philip Williams, authorizes the sale of both real and personal property of the corporation by four special commissioners. The late Artemus Ward, of New York, was the principal owner of the corporation.

For some years, Judge Frank S. Tavenner, Woodstock, and Attorney Herbert S. Larrick, Winchester, have been operating the company under a receivership. For several years, United State Senator Harry F. Byrd and his brother, Thomas B. Byrd, Winchester, have had the Turkey Knob orchard under a lease.

During the receivership, $25,500 in receivers' certificates have been issued as a first lien against the property. These certificates are held by Shenandoah Valley financial interests. Artemus Ward's estate holds a first mortgage of $150,000 against the orchard property and on this lien there is accrued interest of $33,705.

Receivers Tavenner and Larrick are instructed to sell all personal property of the company except that needed for the operation of the place. From the sale the receivers are to retire, so far as possible, the receivers' certificates.

Firm To Be Dissolved.

The remainder of the personal property and real estate is to be disposed of by the following special receivers: Elwood W. Kemp, jr., New York; Judge Frank S. Tavenner, Woodstock, and Attorneys Burr P. Harrison and Herbert S. Larrick, Winchester. These receivers, acting under bond of $25,000 each, are to wind up the affairs of the company.

The decree stipulates that the liquidation should not conflict with the terms of the Byrds' lease.

Turkey Knob Orchard is one of the famous spots of the Shenandoah Valley. It is now about 30 years old and in prime condition. On the 500 acres there are about 20,000 apple trees.

Rum, Revenue Before Virginia Lawmakers

Liquor Bill, New Income Sources Are First on Program Today.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Richmond, Jan. 9.—Legislation for liquor control and creation of new revenue sources assumed a commanding position tonight as the hour approached for convening of the Virginia General Assembly here tomorrow.

Gov. Pollard added finishing touches to his message, to be delivered in person before a joint session soon after organization of the House and Senate.

Outstanding issues to be decided at the 60-day session, in addition to liquor and new revenue, include redistricting, salaries of school teachers, proposed reduction of real estate taxes and horse racing with a pari-mutuel wagering system.

State Dispensaries Seen.

Administration leaders predicted prompt passage of their liquor-control plan, calling for exclusive sale by State-operated dispensaries. Hotels and restaurants, however, still hope for revision of the program to authorize them to sell liquor by the drink.

Lawmakers were divided whether the liquor control board would have one or three members and the amount of their salaries. Gov. Pollard has argued for one-man control. Speculation continued over how liquor revenue would be divided by the State and political subdivisions.

Officials have estimated prospective whisky revenue income at $1,675,000 a year. The only other new source of revenue approved so far by Democratic stalwarts would involve additional taxes on public utility corporations, expected to yield more than $1,000,000 in the next two years.

Face $2,131,000 Deficit.

Before voting new appropriations, the Legislature must arrange for elimination of an anticipated $2,131,000 deficit by the close of the fiscal year, June 30.

Redistricting legislation, necessary to reduce by one Virginia's 10 Congressional Districts, promised to precipitate sharp debate. A movement was reported on foot to add Clark, Frederick, Warren and Rappahannock Counties and the city of Winchester to the Eighth District.

Colonists 300 Years Ago Today Were Slowly Nearing Maryland

Ark and Dove Traced by Terecentenary Group as Observance.

Baltimore, Jan. 9 (AP).—Week by week the staff of the Maryland Tercentenary Commission sticks little red thumb tacks in a map to show the progress of the fathers and mothers of Maryland as they made their way from Cowes, England, across the Atlantic Ocean—300 years ago.

Today—speaking as of 1634—the Good Ship Ark is at Barbados, not far from the northeastern shore of South America, waiting for the smaller vessel, the Dove.

The gentlemen on the Dove—who rated somewhat higher socially than those upon the Ark—left Cowes at the same time, but two days later turned back on account of the storm. The move delayed their arrival at Barbados but gave the gentlemen the added advantage of a second farewell party which was said to have been well worth the delay.

On January 24—still as of 1634—the two ships will head north and a month and three days later will anchor off the shores of Virginia, a province at which they looked with considerable suspicion.

It won't be until March 25 when they will end their trip at what will soon become the Free State of Mary Land. Soon thereafter they will begin the development of famous cooking, distilling, dogs and a passion for local self-government which will still be the subject of fiery oratory by members of a political party as yet undreamed of, 300 years hence.

College Costs Declared Low

Coloradan Discovers $380 Will Send Student for One Year.

Boulder, Colo. (U.P.).—The cost of a college education is not necessarily high, Fred E. Aden, registrar and chief counselor at the University of Colorado, has proved.

Aden estimated that a student can attend many universities for a year for $380, including tuition, fees, board, room and all necessary expenses. This amount may be cut in half if a student is employed for his board.

Good health, high ambition, reasonable ability and some financial assistance will enable any student to obtain an education if he "plans wisely and gives of himself without stint," Aden said.

Thirteen per cent of the men and 2.5 per cent of the women in the University of Colorado are dependent wholly on their own resources, Aden said, and 29 per cent more of the men and 15.5 per cent more of the women are earning part of their way.

AN INTERVIEW

Concerning

"THE NAKED TRUTH ABOUT MEN'S CLOTHING PRICES"

James Rotto is the Director of Sales and Publicity at The Hecht Co. Charles B. Dulcan, Sr., is the General Merchandise Manager and Vice President of The Hecht Co.

MR. ROTTO: Mr. Dulcan, I have received considerable trade comment from around the country, from business publications and merchants about the advertisement which we ran a few weeks ago, headed, "The Naked Truth About Men's Clothing Prices." I would like to ask you to disassociate yourself from your capacity as General Merchandise Manger f The Hecht Co., and permit me to ask you some questions, man to man. I will try to ask the questions that the average customer might put to you.

MR. DULCAN: Very well, go ahead.

MR. ROTTO: What do you mean, The Naked Truth About Men's Clothing Prices?

MR. DULCAN: Here's what I mean. Whether you know it or not, the average store places its orders for merchandise months in advance. This is particularly true in men's clothing. We've placed our orders already for Spring, 1934. Prices will be higher, and make no mistake about that. And here's why—Since July, labor and wages have risen 55%, woolens have gone up 50% to 75%. There's been an increase of 80% to 110% in linings and trimmings. And furthermore, hours of labor have been cut from 44 to 36.

MR. ROTTO: Am I to take it that your present prices are extremely low in comparison to those coming in the Spring?

MR. DULCAN: Correct. And the reason for that is that we bought our present stocks months in advance of this Fall and Winter's rise.

MR. ROTTO: If your merchandise now is seasonable, and I take it that it is, why don't you hold it until Spring, put it in with your new merchandise and make an extra profit?

MR. DULCAN: In the first place, it wouldn't be keeping faith with our customers. Secondly, what about present business? We can't close up shop.

MR. ROTTO: But this is Winter—why should I think of Spring buying now?

MR. DULCAN: Perhaps it would be wise for you, as a customer, to follow the example of a clothing merchant. We bought present goods early, we bought low. Since prices are on the up trend, you save if you buy early.

Ritchie Hailed At Party Rally; Mute on Plans

Jackson Day Dinner Scene of Wild Acclaim With Harmony Promised.

Baltimore, Jan. 9 (AP).—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, warmly cheered at the Concord Club's Jackson Day dinner last night, had the large crowd practically eating out of his hand as he reviewed his record and predicted party harmony for next fall.

It was at the club's banquet two years ago that he announced his candidacy for the Presidential nomination, but last night he made no announcement of his political aspirations in the future.

The governor, however, admitted he had discussed public office "with many people," but declared the time had not yet come for any public statement from him as to the office he would seek.

The governor got many times the applause of other speakers on the program—including Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore, Senator Millard E. Tydings. Moreover, there was less interruption to his speech.

One Heckler Heard.

"The exgovernor of Maryland!" shouted someone from the back of the audience as the governor's speech began.

But shouts of "you tell 'em Al!" drowned out any other opponent present and ready to express opinions.

"We are here in brotherly love," said Mayor Jackson, most mentioned as a possible opponent to Ritchie for the Democratic nomination for Governor. The crowd cheered. He sopke of peace, love, tranquillity and success to the Democratic party," and the crowd roared again.

Senator Tydings spoke of the government of the city, which he described as a "beacon to all municipalities." The crowd roared. He spoke of Ritchie as "one of the greatest Governors this State has ever had." There was more shouting.

Jokes About Rift.

Ritchie opened with a joke about the recent difference of opinion—concerning the State's appropriation to city relief—between himself and Jackson. The men and women around the tables thought it was a big joke. Then he said that it would soon be time for Democrats to get together.

"Next fall it will be our duty to break out into real warfare—against the Republican party," said the Governor. "Fifteen years is a long time to be Governor of any State," I recognize the right of all citizens to aspire to that office. I also recognize the fact that I have the same right in that respect that they have."

It was at this point that the pro-Ritchie gathering indulged in its greatest applause.

Machinist Charged With Wife's Death

Woman's Dying Statement Names Husband.

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 9 (AP).—E. Russell Koons will have a hearing tomorrow before Magistrate Richard H. Sweeney on a charge of slaying his 33-year-old wife, Mrs. Catherine Maughans Koons, last Friday.

The formal charge was placed against the 35-year-old machinist Saturday when his wife died in the Washington County Hospital.

In a deathbed statement to State's Attorney J. Lloyd Harshman, Mrs. Koons accused her husband of shooting her following a quarrel at their apartment. Police found a pistol with three discharged shells in its chamber.

Koons also was taken to the hospital, suffering from a slight scalp wound. He has maintained the shooting was accidental.

Taxes Delinquent, Land Is Auctioned

Virginia Sells More Than 1,000 Parcels.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.). Approximately 48,000 Spotsylvania County tax delinquent acres were today publicly auctioned by N. B. Kinsey. Several hundred persons, mostly landowners, attended the sale, at which more than 1,000 parcels were put on the block.

Livingston reported the greatest number of delinquencies, 403, followed by Courtland, with 261; Berkley, with 230, and Chancellor, with 177.

The list published by County Treasurer Irvin Clore revealed the largest single tract delinquent was 948 acres.

Berryville Taxpayers Face 2 Levies Again

Berryville, Va., Jan 9 (Spl.).—The old controversy centering around the payment both of corporation and county taxes by the people of Berryville remains unsettled and it appears the double levy again will be collected from taxpayers in 1934.

Berryville is one of the few towns in Virginia that pay both taxes. To have the double taxation obliterated, it will be necessary to have the Legislature amend the Berryville charter. To date, no definite action has been taken.

Fatal Railway Wreck Laid to Fouled Switch

Malicious tampering with a switch caused derailment of a Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train near Fruitland, Md., August 12 last, the safety bureau reported to the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday.

The wreck resulted in the death of four persons and injuries to six others.

Aged Cobbler of Falls Church Has Plied Trade for 63 Years

George Washington Thomas, 86, colored cobbler and former Fairfax County slave, is Falls Church's oldest working inhabitant. Not 5 feet tall, he holds old wooden forms—almost as large as himself—on which he stretched and shaped his hand-made leather boots 63 years ago.

One-Time Slave Believes Hand-Made Shoes Were Best.

Shoes are leather-bound storybooks to George Washington Thomas, 86, of Falls Church, Va. Each split sole and run-down heel tells its tale to this white-haired, colored man who has spent 63 years as a cobbler in a tiny, white frame shop on the Warrenton road.

"I know everybody in Falls Church by their boots," he chuckles.

The oldest working inhabitant of this old Virginia town, Thomas labors eight hours a day, and thinks nothing of it.

Nowadays, cobbling has been made too easy, according to Thomas.

"These new-fangled machines ——," he sighs, and thinks of the days when he turned out boots by hand.

"Took about three days to make a good stout pair of farmer's boots. But then, they lasted two years or more. And everybody wore them 40 years ago. you never saw a farmer in low shoes except in summer."

Women's shoes, too, Thomas remembers as flat heeled, sensible and "more comfortable." A practical soul, he looks on the high "spikes" of today in horror.

"Don't see how they get around in them!" he marvels.

Thomas grew up in slavery on the farm of Cooke Fitzhugh, a few miles from Falls Church. In 1871 he began cobbling. Not 5 feet tall, Thomas came to be known through the countryside as "Tiny Tom." Famed for the skill of his fit, people journeyed from all parts of Fairfax County to have their boots made, and mended at Tiny Tom's shop.

Hanging on the wall of Thomas' workshop today are the tools he has used half a century.

In his 63 years of cobbling, Thomas never marked a shoe to identify it.

"Boots fit folks just like faces," he explains. "If I live to be a hundred, I'll still know which belongs to which."

Farmers Loan Office Closed

Federal Land Bank Branch in North Virginia Ceases Work.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.). The Fredericksburg Farm Loan Office, a subsidiary of the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore, established here several months ago, will close January 20, it was announced by A. N. Hodgson, supervisor.

Applications for loans totaling more than $2,00,000 for farmers in the northern area of Virginia passed through the office. The largest was for $46,000, while there were others for $32,000, $30,000 and a number for $25,000.

Ten appraisers will remain in the field to appraise property for which loans have been sought.

Miss Virginia Cassiday and Miss Sue K. Gordon, employed for stenographic work in the office, have joined the office of District Deputy Civil Works Administrator Ray C. Hopkins.

Engineers Sent To Monticello On CWA Jobs

Six Begin Landscaping and Paving Work at Jefferson Home.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.). Six Federal engineers have begun the work of road making and landscaping at Monticello, home of Thomas Jefferson, with money provided through a Federal grant.

The engineers, connected with the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, were ordered here from Luray. Their main task will be to improve the road leading half a mile from the gate through the grounds to the house and back. This road will be widened in places, turns rounded off and a hard surface put upon it.

Thomas L. Rhodes, superintendent at Monticello, said the parking space at the graveyard and at the home would be enlarged. Manual labor will be supplied from the Charlottesville lists of unemployed.

CWA Work Pushed.

Covington, Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.).—With 24 Civil Works Administration projects for Allegheny County and the Town of Covington approved, work is being pushed to completion by the deadline, February 15.

A total of $99,441.48 has been allotted to the county and to Covington. Only one project, the construction of a municipal electric power plant here, has been submitted to the PWA| It has not yet been approved.

CWA Adds Safety Officer.

Woodstock, Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.).—A safety supervisor will be added in a day or two to the CWA personnel for Shenandoah County.

Harold G. Candler, administrator, said today the pay roll of the 550 men last week was $3,600.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.).—Taylor Barr, safety supervisor of all CWA projects in Winchester and Frederick County today began training first aid classes. Mr. Barr is a graduate of the American Red Cross First Aid Training School.

Lynchburg Areas Organized.

Lynchburg, Va., Jan. 9 (AP).—A production credit association was partially organized here by farmers from five counties near Lynchburg.

S. H. Saunders was chosen temporary chairman until January 18, when organization will be completed. A board of directors will control the association.

The meeting was attended by farmers and county agents from Amherst, Nelson, Campbell, Bedford and Appomattox.

Similar associations are being organized throughout the State for the purpose of lending money to finance crop productions, refinance indebtedness and to make available money to buy farm necessities.

The association will be capitalized at $300,000. The farmers will buy 25 per cent of the stock. Minimum loans will be for $50.

Front Royal Schools Open.

Front Royal, Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.). The public schools have just reopened here, the Christmas holidays having been extended a week on account of repairs to school buildings as part of the CWA school project.

Two new teachers, employed with Federal funds, are one the staff. Beginning Monday, Principal Q. D. Gasque said, these teachers will be assigned to classes in two rooms outside the school building, and third-grade pupils will have full-time attendance.

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 9. (Spl.). The population of Hagerstown will have increased by 273 by July 1, the bureau of vital statistics of the Maryland Department of Health estimates. The estimated population July 1 will be 32,021, and the county population 68,448, an increase of 604 in the last year.

Virginia Opens Shorter Route To Richmond

Troy Overpass Now Used Cuts Distance From Charlottesville.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.). The highway overpass across the Virginia Airline Railway on Route No. 5, near Troy, Fluvanna County, has been thrown open to traffic, providing a new short route of 70 miles between Charlottesville and Richmond. Route No. 5 follows the general line of the old Three Chopt road from Richmond and connects with the older highway at Shadwell, several miles from Charlottesville.

The approaches to the overpass have not been surfaced, highway officials said, warning drivers to be careful. The overpass, built of reinforced concrete, is 100 feet long. It clears the Airline Railway.

The old route through Louisa and Ashland was approximately 85 miles.

East Tennessee Gets New Airport

$204,000 CWA Project Near Bristol to Hire 600.

Bristol, Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.).—A $204,000 airport to serve four upper east Tennessee counties—Sullivan, Greene, Unicoi and Washington—was started today.

The site is on U. S. highway No. 33, known locally as the Kingsport-Johnson City highway. It is 10 miles from Kingsport, 10 miles from Johnson City, 19 miles from Elizabethton and 25 miles from Bristol.

The 125-acre airport was purchased jointly by the cities. Labor and a proportionate part of the materials will be paid for by the CWA. Approximately 600 men will be employed on the project.

Anne Arundel Idle Men Put On Sewer Job

Williamsport Commission Named; Camp Ritchie Quota Filled.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 9 (Spl.).—Forty jobless men in Anne Arundel County have been put to work laying sanitary sewers in Germantown, under direction of the Mertopolitan Sewerage Commission.

With this quota, Dr. J. H. Janney, local CWA administrator, announced that no more jobs will be available until other projects are started.

Approximately 5,000 jobless persons registered with the National Reemployment Agency here. Of this number work was found for 1,100 on CWA projects, and for 900 more on other projects.

Commission Appointed.

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 9 (Spl.).—Preparatory to starting work on Williamsport's new sewerage system, which will cost $88,000, Mayor G. A. Miller has named the following sewerage commission: Dr. I. M. Zimmerman, chairman; Maj. Joseph W. Byron and David K. Cushwa, jr. Mayor Miller is an ex officio member.

The Public Works Administration has approved the project and alloted a grant of 30 per cent of the total cost of the system.

Broken Leg Foils Prisoner's Break

Hurt in Danville Leap; Another Escapes.

Danville, Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.).—Ellis Brumfield, a city prisoner, who with Lloyd Fulcher, was serving a six-month term for violating the State liquor laws, yesterday escaped from the city farm. Today he is in the hospital with a broken leg.

The prisoners apparently had a key which fitted the detention room door. Getting out of the room, they scaled a high wire fence. Police who went to Brumfield's home saw him standing on the back porch. The fugitive ran to the second floor and jumped out of a window, fracturing his leg. Fulcher has not been recaptured.

Virginia Students To Hear India Scholar

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.). Dhan Gopal Mukerji, declared to be the best-known interpreter of India in America today, will speak at the University of Virginia Thursday under auspices of the Virginia Quarterly Review. His subject is "The Conflict of the Past and Present in the East."

Lawyer Attacks Collection Firms

Few in Virginia Have Legal Status, He Reports.

Norfolk, Jan. 9 (AP).—G. Walter White, attorney, in a special report to the Norfolk and Portsmouth Bar Association, asserted that practically all collection agencies operating in Virginia do not have the right to bring suits for the collections of debts for clients and they have no legal right to threaten to sue debtors.

White reported further that the judge of the Norfolk Civil Court and his assistant have been dismissing warrants in debt and civil warrants brought into the court by these collections agencies that have been operating beyond their legal rights.

Daniel M. Heefner Funeral Set Today

Waynesboro Business Man Was Church Leader.

Waynesboro, Pa., Jan. 9 (Spl.).—Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon in St. Paul's Reformed Church for Daniel M. Heefner, 76, who died yesterday.

A native of Mount Alton, Mr. Heefner spent the last 50 years of his life in Waynesboro, being associated with the Frick Co. for nearly 40 years. He served as elder and deacon of St. Paul's Church and was one of the members largely responsible for erection of the present edifice.

He is survived by his widow and seven sons: Emry G., Waynesboro; Harvey M., Louisville, Ky.; Dr. Mark L. and Faber W., Waynesboro; Daniel, alumni secretary of Mercersburg Academy; Rhodney P., Washington, and Dr. Henry H., Mercersburg.

Game Reported Scarce In Cumberland Area

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 9 (Spl.). H. Russell Kenney, game warden, says rabbits, deer and bear were scarce this last season but birds were plentiful and some turkeys were bagged.

Kenney said disease took a heavy toll of rabbits. Garrett County reports an abundance of game.

A Letter Of Notice.

The virus which has been affecting letters and acceptances of resignations in Washington recently crept into the notice of dismissal which Clark Griffith, president of the Nationals, sent to Sam Rice, the veteran outfielder who has come to be almost as much of an institution in the Capital as the Washington Monument.

Griffith graciously said that he was "pleased to acquiesce" in Rice's request for release, but Rice asserts he never made any such request. The 41-year-old veteran says that he learned of his dismissal when a newspaperman called him up and asked him if he had another job in view. He doesn't have one, and he has less prospect of getting one, he says, than if Griffith had given him notice before the winter baseball meeting at Chicago. But, if he has no job, at least he has the fulsome good wishes of the club management, expressed in a letter from Griffith, of which an excerpt reads:

> Old War Horse: I have no words that can express my deep appreciation of your wonderful playing, loyalty to service and the 100 per cent effort you put into your work here for those long 18 years you were with the Washington club. You were ever ready and willing to give your best, and oh, what that best was!

Of course, Rice couldn't go on batting .300 all his life. He knew, too, that 41-year-old legs don't get under fly balls as well as 20-year-old legs. He knew, of course, that some day he would have to give way to a young rookie on the way up. But perhaps it would have been kinder if the pill had not been sweetened with so much verbal saccharine.

Fact Outruns Fiction.

On a clear day, one may sit for hours over a bottle of good Macon wine on the balcony of a little restaurant at Chamonix surveying, with growing awe, the majesty of the "monarch of mountains." In one flank of the mighty mass that is Mount Blanc lies the Mer de Glace, luring the adventurous to hurtling death in its treacherous crevices. In another fissure, the friendlier Glacier des Bossons, whose base runs almost down to the valley, creaks and groans as it melts and moves under a summer sun.

Out of one ageless eye, Mount Blanc looks down upon St. Bernard's pass and the plains of Lombardy that lured Hannibal and Napoleon. Out of the other, he looks toward Geneva and the Burgundian towns. Immediately below the mountain is the straggling town of Chamonix, most of whose inhabitants make their living out of tourists. Frequently, as if to assert his sense of personal dignity and his desire for solitude, the hoary old monarch will wrap himself in a cloak of fog and deny his presence to his lieges below. On such an occasion, a friendly waiter, anxious to exercise his English, will assure the visitor that all one must do is to wait for the sunshine; that Mount Blanc is really there and "very up."

In such a setting, in a yellow stucco inn vacant for the winter, Alexandre Sacha Stavisky, the latest of celebrated international crooks, died early yesterday morning with a bullet in his head. Paris whispers that the police of the Surete, France's Scotland Yard, killed him to insure silence. He knew too much about people in high place, the rumors say. Paris detectives say that when they cornered him, after a chase over southern France that lasted more than a week, he killed himself. In whatever way he died, his death was the denouement to one of the sensational financial scandals which periodically shake the political stability of France.

Stavisky was a Russian who had swindled small French investors out of approximately $31,000,000 by selling them worthless bonds of the municipal pawnshop in Bayonne. Police had known him, under half a dozen aliases, for 18 years, as a defrauder, forger and thief. He had served time in jail; even when they allowed him to sell the French people bonds he was under charge of defrauding. He had been barred from Cannes, Deauville and Biarritz for welching. But, he associated with Cabinet ministers and members of Parliament. When he died, he had in his pocket a certificate of recommendation for membership in the Legion of Honor. The mayor of Bayonne was chairman of the board of directors of his pawnshop. When he saw his empire collapsing, Stavisky fled, hoping, like Hannibal, to cross the Alps to Italy.

The scandal has rocked France, for two reasons. One is that her people do not understand how the police and high officials could appear to give countenance to a known crook and swindler. The other is that the French government seems in effect to have given aid and encouragement to Stavisky in his swindle—not directly, of course, but through carelessness. As minister of labor, Albert Dalimier issued a bulletin advising working people and peasants that bonds of pawnshops were good investments. In no country do people of small means so highly regard the financial integrity of their government as in France. The peasants and bourgeoisie are the best market for French bonds and for securities recommended by the government. Stavisky cleverly used the Dalimier bulletin to sell millions of dollars in worthless issues to the public.

Dalimier has been driven out of the cabinet. The French police force, it is reported, is to be reorganized. The cabinet itself is in perilous position. And fact has reestablished her ability to weave a tale as lurid as the weirdest crime-club fiction.

The Supreme Court Decision.

The average citizen, confronted with the wealth of logic and precedent found in both opinions on the Minnesota mortgage moratorium case, will probably form his own judgment by asking a simple question: What would have happened had the Supreme Court decided 5 to 4 against the constitutionality of this law?

The answer to that question is likely to be disconcerting to all, and they must be numerous, who feel that the dissenting opinion of Mr. Justice Sutherland carries more pure legal conviction than the majority opinion as expressed by Chief Justice Hughes. An adverse opinion on this Minnesota case would have had repercussions far beyond the confines of that State and far deeper in character than the particular law in issue. The legality of large parts of the recovery program, based upon the sweeping emergency powers conferred by Congress on the President, would have been immediately called into question. As the situation rests, that program is now strongly fortified to meet its next test of constitutionality.

In other words, the general reaction to this historic decision is likely to be that it was foreordained by circumstances. This feeling will be strengthened by the significant emphasis of the majority opinion upon the temporary and conditional character of the legislation which has been sustained. It is not stated that the Minnesota moratorium law would have been found unconstitutional if its application were more permanent and less "reasonable," but that is the implication. To a pronounced extent it is not the constitutionality so much as the rationality of the legislation which is defended by the majority opinion. Because of this there is a suggestion of inconsistency in the conclusion that the court was not concerned with the wisdom or unwisdom, as a matter of policy, of the legislation at issue. The concurrence of the minority opinion with this conclusion is more convincing than its assertion by the majority.

The decision may well both augment and diminish the prestige of that august body which has been America's most notable contribution to the mechanism of constitutional government. Those with legal training will be apt to feel that the Supreme Court has swung its emphasis to the opportunist side in a case where the issue of constitutionality was nicely balanced. Those who form simpler judgments will probably conclude that the court is a very human body which took the most practical way out of a very thorny situation. There will be many comments on "another 5-to-4 decision." And those comments will hit fairly near the heart of the difficulty.

There will, of course, be no lessening of the high respect in which the justices of the Supreme Court are held both individually and collectively. Even the most cursory reading of both the majority and minority opinions in the Minnesota case reveals the earnestness, the integrity and the scholarship behind both of these opposing viewpoints. But the situation serves to emphasize that these viewpoints are literally "opinions"—not oracular judgments.

At a time when the standing of all institutions is challenged by the flux of circumstance, that of the Supreme Court becomes more anomalous just because it is apt to be regarded as infallible. But when a rigid Constitution comes into direct opposition with an inflexible economic situation, it is not difficult to predict which of the two will yield. The merit of the legal mind lies in its ability to find precedents to show that it is constitutional for rigidity to become temporarily malleable.

A Three Day Policy.

Withdrawal of the order which gave the Budget Bureau a check on emergency expenditures is a significant victory for those officials who believe in unrestrained spending for recovery purposes. The issue was clearly drawn in President Roosevelt's budget message. He informed Congress that control over emergency expenditures had been lacking and that he had "imposed that necessary control in the Bureau of the Budget." But the control remained in effect for only three days.

President Roosevelt's substitute order is a sharp reversal of the policy announced in his budget message. Instead of checking the expenditures of the emergency organizations before they are made, the Director of the Budget will merely receive weekly statements showing the allocation of funds and obligations incurred by the PWA, CWA, &c. If he has any complaint to make, it can be carried to the President—after the money has been spent. In other words, Lewis Douglas may slam the door as vigorously as he pleases as each horse disappears around the corner.

Under any circumstances it would be difficult to justify the expenditure of billions of dollars without the ordinary precautions against waste or loose and illegal spending. The establishment of such checks may have been neglected during the emergency stages of the recovery program in order to avoid delay in the distribution of Government funds. But certainly it can not now be contended that any new crisis justifies the abandonment of budgetary precautions just three days after they were put into effect.

On Leaping And Looking.

The Government of the United States, acting through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, has become the owner of over $800,000,000 of the preferred stock and capital notes of the country's banks. With a stake of this magnitude in the banking system, involving outright control of certain institutions, the RFC inevitably must assume some responsibility for the conduct of policy of the banks in question. Hence the announcement that the corporation intends to exercise its voting powers and participate in the election of directors is not really surprising. The shocked protests with which the news has been received in banking circles merely calls attention to the facility with which we are taking leaps which find no firm landing place, and therefore call for further leaps in quest of stability.

Anybody with a little foresight and a slight knowledge of developments in other countries where governments have had to come to the assistance of private banks is prepared for the changes that are taking place currently in the relationship between the Federal Government and the commercial banks. The conditions under which R. F. C. loans have been advanced to the banks in the guise of purchases of their stock impose an obligation upon the authorities to see that those advances are utilized effectively. In this case, as in so many other developments under the emergency program, the initial step has been taken without adequate advance consideration of its implications.

The tentative invasion of the commercial banking field which is now in progress may prove to be a passing phenomenon, existing only for the period of the emergency. On the other hand, it may easily foreshadow the permanent entry of the Government into the private banking field. The outcome will depend upon many unknown factors, especially upon the extent to which Government planning usurps the place of competitive business systems, under which prices and profits are not subject to public control. Government direction of the operations of private banks, if long continued, might eventually convert the banks into mere state agencies. The fact that nothing of this sort is proposed or openly contemplated should not blind us to the possibilities of such a transformation.

Disappointing.

In continuing the 15 per cent reduction in Federal salaries in effect for another six months President Roosevelt acted in accord with the law. He had no discretion in the matter. As the statute now stands the President may adjust Government salaries only when the cost of living rises to an index figure within 15 per cent of living costs during the first part of 1928.

The special study for the District shows that the cost of living here is only 14.6 per cent below the base period. But the great body of Federal workers in Washington is denied the slight increase in pay thus indicated, because price movements over the entire country must be used as the basis for salary changes.

Since no change was made in salary rates, interest centers in the findings of the Department of Labor as to living costs during the last six months. In the first half of 1933 living costs were 24.9 per cent below the base period; from June to December they were 21.1 per cent below. The average advance in prices and all other elements that constitute the cost of living was only 5.2 per cent.

Inasmuch as this report constitutes a pointed commentary upon the ineffectiveness of President Roosevelt's efforts to raise prices through the purchase of gold it may well be as disappointing to him as to the rank and file of Government employes.

Adjustment For Finland.

The reported intention of the Administration to ask Congress to readjust the terms of Finland's debt settlement would prove an act not merely of generosity but of justice.

The little Baltic country is the only nation which has put its money on the counter every time a due date has rolled around. The installments have been modest, but it is not to be presumed that they have been relatively so much less burdensome than those owned by larger and more recalcitrant debtors. Moreover, Finland has been paying an interest rate of over three per cent—equivalent to that charged Great Britain. This compares with a .41 per cent interest charge for Italy, 1.79 for Belgium, 1.64 for France, and .25 for Greece. Elementary fairness dictates a readjustment of that scale.

Protesting Tree Destruction.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I thank Mrs. Charles Edward Russell, whose letter appears in the January 6 issue of The Post, for her bitter outcry against the cutting down of our glorious trees to make way for more roads?

The offices in which I am employed open on the Mall, and during the five years I have been here I have rejoiced in a group of magnificent oaks just outside of our windows. One tree in particular blessedly shaded us through long summer days when the heat was intense. In winter its wide arms were held up to receive the rains and the winds from heaven so that its youth might be renewed with the coming of spring.

Near the base of this tree I kept a shallow bowl filled with water for the birds and squirrels that play hereabouts. One day a few brief weeks ago a group of men came up to "my" tree, kicked away the bird bath, and proceeded to hack down the great, beautiful oak. It had not one single dead twig or branch upon it. Days were required to cut up the wood that came from its mighty trunk. And now its place is marked by a stretch of grassless, hideous earth, like a scar left by a sickening disease.

Indeed I think the souls of men who permit the cutting down of our splendid trees are very sick. We who looked on at the slaughter of the oaks (a second one, not so nearly perfect as the larger tree, also fell under the ax) were sick at heart. Perhaps sentiment does lie back of people's grief for fallen trees, but can we afford to let go of our sentiments?

KATHERINE ROWLAND.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a citizen of Washington, I wish to protest against the uprooting of the trees along the Mall or anywhere else in the city of Washington. It is an injustice to the people of Washington and also to the people of the United States.

The number and beauty of our trees in the Capital City are a source of pride to all the people, and the uprooting of them is an act of vandalism.

J. M. MacINERNEY.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The trees in Washington are among its chief beauties and it is difficult to conceive that any move toward their destruction should be tolerated by the citizens.

The Mall would not be a lovely place to visit without the trees, and one must remember that a tree is the development of years. A protest from every one can not be too strong against this movement. A beautiful tree that for years has reared its head skyward should be treasured as a precious gift from God.

Appreciation for Post Toys.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On behalf of the American Legion, Department of the District of Columbia, I wish to thank you for the toys, dolls, games, &c., which The Washington Post gave us in connection with the children's Christmas party held in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing on December 22, 1933.

Through your kindness we were able to make many poor kiddies very happy that day.

Please be assured that the Legionnaires of the District of Columbia are grateful for your help in making the children's Christmas party of 1933 such a success.

Washington Alleys.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a subscriber to The Post and a citizen of the U. S. A., I am grateful to you for your campaign against Washington alleys—may it not stop until they are eradicated.

O. P. WILLIAMS.

He Favors Youth Movement.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In today's (Sunday) Post you have a picture entitled: "Mrs. Ickes Talks to Girl Scouts." While this incident, by itself, is interesting, it has a far deeper meaning when taken in connection with some other recent events. I refer to the notable address delivered by Secretary Henry Wallace of the U. S. Department of Agriculture before the college students in their recent national convention. The title of this speech was "The Potentialities of the Youth Movement in America."

It is fine when people like Mrs. Ickes, Secretary Wallace and perhaps others take up this matter of a youth movement. It means more than millions of dollars spent on new buildings or roads or other forms of material wealth. After all is said and done, our youth are the priceless "intangibles," the structure of the new social order which is being born. Anything we can do to help them find themselves, to give them a helping hand without trying to run the whole show is in line with progress.

Today, in America, we are facing a new day. The old order has disappeared. Our schools, to a great extent, have failed to orient the eager, fresh, optimistic spirit of youth toward this new day. We must seize upon this treasure, develop leaders and open up opportunities and places of informal youth gatherings and discussions. For youth has its problems as well as adult life. It should be free to develop itself and work out its own salvation. But it does need help and sympathy from those intelligent elders who can understand youth. This youth movement is the most serious project that confronts the Nation.

I wish to compliment the owner of The Post, Mr. Eugene Meyer, for his interest in youth when he addressed the National Conference of Students in Politics.

"FOR A YOUTH MOVEMENT."

Is the New Deal Here to Stay?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The question is often asked, Are the recovery measures known as the New Deal here to stay, or are they merely temporary measures, stopgaps, designed to tide us over until prosperity returns, if, when, and as it does? It seems to me that it would be more pertinent to ask whether the elimination of the New Deal and the return to the old, unalphabetized order of society would be humanly possible either in the near future or within the vision of anyone living.

That the New Deal could be done away with immediately few, if any, would contend. The abolition of the NRA, the AAA, the CWA, the PWA, &c., the elimination of the multitude of codes, would throw millions of reemployed back into the ranks of the jobless, reestablish long working hours, low wages, child labor, the sweatshop, and unrestrained, cut-throat competition. The improvement which has come to private business and enterprise in the last ten months through the stimulus of recovery measures and reemployment would, if the New Deal were taken from us, immediately vanish.

Peering into the future, it is almost equally impossible to vision a return to the old, unregulated economic order. Tariff barriers and the intense nationalism governing every nation shut off the hope of a very large increase in our foreign trade. Domestic business has certainly improved, but a return to the large-scale production of 1929 appears impossible without the help of the buying power of the reemployed in the recovery administrations and the maintenance of wages and working hours by the code. There will be millions who for an indefinite period will depend on the Government for employment. By the time prosperity returns we will find ourselves in a new and permanent economic system—the Government regulating and supplementing individual effort—from which we can no more escape than a fish can escape from the sea without destruction. The cost may be tremendous, beyond all estimate, in money, in patience, endurance, courage and ingenuity. But go forward we must, following the way we have chosen.

ARTHUR M. SHEPARD.

You Can't Bail Out the Boat Until You Stop the Leaks

By Robert Quillen.

The great tragedy of life is the impossibility of undoing a wrong that is done. Folly's bill must be paid to the last farthing.

But if a mischief can not be undone, there is usually some way to counterbalance it. The man unjustly hanged can not be restored to life, but his widow and orphans can be cared for.

Consider the matter of war debts, and the ever-increasing debt that post-war imbecility added to our burdens.

States, counties, towns and school districts, like the Nation itself, are mortgaged to bondholders. The debt must be paid. And your children's children will groan under the burden of taxation required to pay it. There is no escape.

But if a man can not escape paying interest, he can still make ends meet by spending less for gasoline. If our people can not escape the burden of debt, they can lighten its weight by reducing other expenses.

When our National customs and institutions were in the making, each small community was a little world to itself. Strangers were regarded with suspicion. The authority of the central government was too far away to make itself felt. A criminal could be caught by officers on horses. Local taxes were understood; all others hotly resented. The first purpose of the law was to protect citizens from the tyranny of government.

All changes made as population increased were patchwork. There never was a general house-cleaning. And today we are handicapped and burdened by a system that ceased to be adequate and sensible when ox-carts gave way to improved transportation.

Each of us must support from five to nine governing and tax-levying bodies. Many courts divide one jurisdiction. Many groups of officers, independent of one another, operate in the same territory. Countless public officials duplicate one another's labors. Single States have more public officials than the whole of England.

Soon or late there will be a house-cleaning—a scrapping of the whole system and a new start from scratch.

(Copyright, 1934, by Publishers Syndicate.)

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

THAT is a most embarrassing controversy that two of Mr. Roosevelt's friends—Gov. Lehman and Mayor LaGuardia are engaged in, or rather it is embarrassing both to Mr. Roosevelt and the governor. It would be surprising if the irrepressible LaGuardia didn't get a big kick out of it. He likes good fun—and a fight.

BARGERON.

And you can't get around agreeing with him when he says to the governor that the power he is seeking to put New York City's house in order is no more than Mr. Roosevelt sought and obtained for the country. The governor insists that this is dictatorial authority which no man under our system of government should have.

• • • •

Senator Borah, who is very much worried about what is happening hereabouts, jumps into the controversy with a telegram of warm congratulations to the governor, saying in effect that it is wholesome to see such an attitude of his in these times of grabbing power. Undoubtedly the senator wanted to focus the spotlight on Washington, on the Administration, and he succeeded in doing it.

Well, naturally when this resulted people asked what Governor Lehman was trying to do. Had he split with the President? Did he, good friend as he is of the President, think the Administration should be curbed?

It was most difficult to believe because Mr. Roosevelt went to the bat for him in getting the gubernatorial nomination, at a time, too, when hostile Tammany elements did not want the nomination to go to Lehman. And since the two have been in office, Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Lehman have worked very closely together.

What a pretty come-off this was then that the Governor should be one to point the way Mr. Roosevelt's Administration in the minds of many, is moving.

After the first stir that the controversy raised around here, however, the impression is that the Governor did this unwittingly, that he had no idea that his tilt with the Mayor would be seized upon by the opponents of Mr. Roosevelt, or that if he did have any such idea, that for personal political reasons there was nothing else he could do.

The governor, politically, is in sort of a tight spot. After all, he comes up for reelection this year. Like the congressmen he must again go on the hustings. The Administration's fight on Tammany Hall doesn't make things any too easy for him, but his hope undoubtedly is that Tammany will have been so badly crushed before November that a new Democratic organization will have come to take its place.

But Mayor LaGuardia comes along with a request that he be given authority by which he could dismiss every Democratic job-holder in New York City, a vast army around which the Democratic chieftains hope to rebuild their new machine. The truth is that instead of the governor intending to embarrass the President by calling this requested authority dictatorial, the Administration here is about as vitally concerned in the matter as he.

Jim Farley, the President's political manager, has some very definite plans about rebuilding the Democratic organization in New York City. With LaGuardia invested with complete authority to hire and fire as he pleases, to rule the city with an iron hand, Jim might easily find the going very rough.

So I repeat that the situation is most embarrassing. It is one of those things which the Administration would rather we not talk about. Just let it drop.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors.

Vachel Lindsay.

Some 20 years ago I was on a train in the West and I picked up a copy of the New York Independent, which now, like eight million other magazines, is defunct. In the back of the magazine, among clippings from elsewhere, was a poem called "General William Booth Enters Into Heaven," by an American named Vachel Lindsay. I was thrilled by this magnificent and splendid work of inspired genius, and carried it in my pocket for a year. Later, when it appeared in book form, with other verses, I lost no time in securing a copy and doing what I could to aid its circulation.

Vachel Lindsay was a modern minstrel. He walked from Florida to New Jersey, carrying no luggage of any kind. He would enter a farmyard and make the proposition that if the owners would give him supper, lodging and breakfast, he would recite his poems to them. The wonder is that they did not kill him. Yet on this system he walked successfully not only from Florida to New Jersey, but on a later occasion from Illinois to New Mexico.

His poems are all meant to be read aloud or to be chanted or to be sung. At his best, the poetry is magnificent. Such works as "The Congo," "The Santa Fe Trail," "The Chinese Nightingale," are surpassingly beautiful. They are original, because no other poet, ancient or modern, could possibly have written them.

His prose work, called "A Handy Guide for Beggars," tells of his adventures on the road. Evidently he did not expect his first request to be successful. He said, "Try for supper and lodging about 4 p. m."

West Virginia Resort Ready To Pay Tribute to Robt. E. Lee

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Jan. 9 (AP).—Once more in the mountain "shrine" that keeps alive the memory of "Marse Robert" arrives the time for tribute to the South's great warrior, educator and peacemaker.

On January, 19, the 126th birthday anniversary of Robert E. Lee, the doors of the President's Cottage, at Old White, will be thrown open for a review of his military, educational and social activities.

The cottage is now a museum and has a Lee room filled with relics, photographs and other possessions of the general of all the Confederate Armies.

Spent Summers at Springs.

This old watering place is particularly sacred to the memory of the Southern chieftain because it was in his last years, after the battles of the Confederacy were fought, that Lee and his family spent their summers in White Sulphur Springs. He was then president of Washington and Lee University at Lexington, Va.

Several steel engravings of Lee in full regalia, etched from a photograph by Brady, the Civil War's great photographer, will be presented as part of the ceremony to members of the Lee family and to men who have labored to preserve the memory of the South's hero.

Cottage to Be Opened.

The cottage in which Gen. Lee spent his last three summers also will be opened to the public and there will be an exhibition of photographs, paintings and a minature of Stratford, birthplace of Lee, in the Greenbrier Art Gallery.

The walls of the ground floor of the President's cottage are decorated with murals of antebellum days, and of scenes from Lee's campaigns.

Tragedy at Sea Remains Mystery

Ship Captain Can't Explain Woman's Disappearance.

Baltimore, Jan. 9 (AP).—Officials of the Merchant & Miners Line said today the report of the master of the Fairfax, Capt. A. H. Brooks, had shed little light on the disappearance of Mrs. Sadie Helen Ancker, of Longport, N. J.

Mrs. Ancker, an elderly woman, disappeared the night of January 4, as the Fairfax was en route from Savannah to Baltimore.

She was at dinner after the ship left Savannah. Two hours later she retired. The next morning she was missed. Mrs. Ancker boarded the Fairfax at Miami.

I. J. Mullennex Burial Today.

Staunton, Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.).—Funeral services will be held at the Pilgrim Holiness Church tomorrow at 10 a. m. for Issac J. Mullennex, 79, who died Monday. He was born in Pendleton County, W. Va., and moved to Augusta County 22 years ago.

'Pigs Is Pigs'

3 Supply Meat for Year to Family of 6.

Winchester, Va., June 9 (Spl.).—Hobart W. Whitacre, of Winchester, has produced and stored in the family larder for this year 1,217 pounds of dressed pork, which he produced for $27.85—slightly more than 2 cents a pound.

Whitacre purchased three small pigs a year ago. He fed them on scraps from the kitchen until a month ago, when he bought corn with which to fatten the animals. He says the home-grown meat will be an ample supply for his family of six during 1934.

Teacher Breaks Arm Safeguarding Pupils

Waynesboro, Pa., Jan. 9 (Spl.). Mrs. Helen Wyand, grade school teacher, decided the school grounds were too muddy for the children to use for play at recess and took the pupils for a walk.

Robert Haskins Dead.

Danville, Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.). Word has been received here of the death in Richmond of Robert Haskins, for many years prominently identified with the Imperial Tobacco Co. He once had charge of the company's operations here.

Virginia's Slow Growth Blamed On Migration to Other States

10-Year Increase Only 4.9 Per Cent, or One-Third Nation's Average.

Blacksburg, Va., Jan. 9 (AP).—Migration to other States has long been a factor in the relatively slow population growth of Virginia, William Edward Garnett and A. C. Seymour report in a bulletin issued by the V. P. I. Agricultural Experiment Station here.

Birth rates are much higher than death rates in the State, they point out, but the population increase from 1920 to 1930 was only 4.9 per cent, or about one-third of the 16.1 per cent increase shown for the United States as a whole. During the same period 41 other States showed a greater population increase than Virginia.

Net Loss of 503,531.

There were 834,442 persons born in Virginia but living in other States in 1930, the report continues, as compared to 330,911 born in other States but living in Virginia, or a net loss of 503,531 of whom 4.85 per cent were white and 51.5 per cent Negroes. The net loss from such migration in 1910 amounted to 432,746 of whom 42.2 per cent were white and 47.8 per cent Negroes.

Noting the dwindling Negro population in certain counties in which the Negro population was small, report said the trend was for "white counties to get whiter and predominately Negro countries to get blacker."

In the past 30 years the number of whites declined in 41 counties and gained in 59. There was a Negro increase in 22 counties and a loss in 78.

Southampton, Isle of Wight, Nansemond, Norfolk, Princess Anne and Wise were the only counties having more Negroes in 1930 than in 1860.

Few Foreign Born.

Only 1.2 per cent of the Virginia population is foreign born.

Although the average population per square mile for the State was 40.6 in 1930, 15 counties had densities of less than 25. These are Amelia, Appomattox, Bath, Bland, Buckingham, Craig, Cumberland, Highland, James City, King and Queen, New Kent, Powhatan, Spotsylvania, Surry and Sussex.

With the exception of Bath, Bland, Craig and Highland, more than 40 per cent of the population of these sparsely populated counties are Negroes.

Thirteen counties show a population density of more than 60 per square mile. They are Fairfax, Pittsylvania, Pulaski, Tazewell, Accomac, Henrico, Lancaster Lee, Mathews, Norfolk, Northampton, Roanoke and Wise.

Virginians Slow To Claim Million

Park Area Residents Lax About Filing Claims.

Richmond, Jan. 9 (AP).—State Treasurer John N. Purcell says he has in the Commonwealth's treasury about $1,000,000 awaiting Shenandoah National Park area residents, who do not seem to be in a hurry to get it.

Judges in the park area are having difficulty in getting former owners of property taken for park purposes to apply for court orders by which individual payments are made.

Of the $1,500,000 authorized for payment for the park property, only $500,000 has been claimed. "The money is safe enough here," the treasurer said, but he indicated he wished to close out the item.

Theft Suspect Blamed For Wounding Trooper

Ronceverte, W. Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.). State Trooper H. E. Locke is in a critical condition in the Greenbrier Valley Hospital here suffering from a gunshot wound he received at the State police headquarters in Lewisburg, when it is charged, he was shot by Fisher Boothe, of Catlettsburg, Ky.

Boothe and two companions had been arrested on charges of stealing an automobile at Hinton and were being fingerprinted at Lewisburg when Locke was shot.

The Center Leaves have the finest Tobacco Quality

The first thing people see and like about Luckies is how round and firm they are. The tobacco doesn't spill out and there are no loose ends to cling to lips. That's because we pack each and every Lucky full to the brim with long, even strands of the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos—only the center leaves. Not the top leaves—because those are under-developed. Not the bottom leaves—because those are inferior in quality. We use only the center leaves—because they are the mildest and fully ripe for perfect smoking. That's why Luckies always draw easily, burn evenly—and are always mild and smooth. So smoke a Lucky, a fully packed cigarette. And remember, "It's toasted"—for throat protection—for finer taste.

Parents Study Child Problems In Classrooms

President of P.-T. A. Thinks Fathers and Mothers Are Improving.

The following interview with the National president of the Parent-Teachers' Association, in which she tells of the efforts of fathers and mothers to learn more about their children's problems, is in curious conflict with the opinion of a Washington educator, quoted on this page the other day. That many of the Capital's children from well-to-do families are neglected by their bridge-playing mothers. Within the next few days we hope to publish a symposium of Washington educators' views upon this subject. In the meantime, we should be glad to know what our readers think about it, and will publish the best letters received. Address The Washington Post Woman's Page.

Schools for parents. Regular classrooms where child specialists instruct fathers and mothers in the fine points of parenthood. That is the latest and most significant work of the National Parent-Teacher Association.

"Parents are really eager to learn," she said. "There was a time when people believed that simply because they were fathers and mothers they had a parental instinct which solved all their problems. Now they realize that this is not true.

"Formerly parents hesitated to ask the advice of child psychologists for fear their children would be catalogued as "problem children." All children are problem children. Every boy or girl is a complex individual who presents every day some problem which parents can not solve without training and understanding.

"Our classes are suited to all types of parents. They are not taught in such technical language that only the college graduate can understand them. Our classes which foreign mothers attend get just as gratifying results as those attended only by American women."

Mrs. Bradford said that the economic crisis has done much to pull Parent-Teacher organizations out of their accustomed routine.

"We realize that the present situation demands revaluation both in the homes and schools," she said.

"Both children and parents must be educated in the new order of things. The social revolution we are passing through has shown that many of the ideas we believed in were wrong. We must find other and better ones to take their place.

"We are battling against the cuts in educational budgets which are causing such havoc in our schools. For what use is it to save the world today if our children are not educated to carry on our work?

"Of course, the attacks against educational institutions have brought about one very good result. They have caused the educators to wonder if they have been right in their methods. Too often educators have wrapped themselves in their garments of dignified reserve and have refused to explain their beliefs to the general public or to cooperate with the business world. I think that in the future educators will make it part of their work to convince the public that education is not just a little finishing touch, but that it is good business.

"There is no doubt in my mind that a thorough general education for all citizens well repays the taxpayers. I have seen no greater proof of this than in the recent depression. Just think what a shock this must have been to our children.

"We had taught them if they studied and obeyed the laws of their country, if they were good citizens, their success was assured. And look what happened. Millions of them, out of school, qualified to take their place in the working world, and meeting the cold fact that there was no place for them.

"But one thing their years of training and education has taught them. That there is no need for violence.

"They understand that brains, not bloody revolution, will solve this economic problem. They are willing to follow a competent leader and to be patient until order can come of this chaos. Oh, they are splendid, the American youths. The hope of our Nation lies in their enthusiasm, intelligence and courage."

Manchester Develops Lustrous Cloth of Glass

London (U.P.).—A lustrous cloth which has all the appearance of glass is the latest discovery to be made by Manchester research workers. The invention follows months of experimental work, and the results now justify actual manufacture of the material.

A synthetic glass is used in the manufacture of the product which permits the cloth to be washed or ironed without damages to its design. These designs in colored glass can be applied without laborious handwork to velvet, silk, lace, cotton and fabrics of all kinds, imparting to them the appearance of diamente-studded material.

Barnett Kin Get $100,000.

Lynchburg, Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.).—An estate valued at $100,000 is devised relatives in the will of Mrs. ...me E. Barnett, widow of George ...Barnett.

Madeleine Vionnet, one of the world's most famous dressmakers, began as an errand girl in a dress house and slowly worked her way to triumph. Winter Frocks Borrow Spring Color Scheme

Combinations With Black Make Dresses Useful Later in Season.

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—Though shop windows are full of cruise clothes, designers have not forgotten the women who stay at home and are getting a bit tired of their winter dresses.

They are showing many kinds of in-between dresses that will do now under winter coats and will carry on into the spring without looking like January.

Prints on heavy sheet materials, jacquard-figured silks, and printed satins with geometric figures are all good with furs. Persian prints, plaids in one color, many colors, or black and white, and flower prints on dark backgrounds are spring-like, but not too much so.

Puffed Sleeves Gone.

Sleeves, in these new dresses, have lost their puffs but remain interesting by showing a contrasting color. Necklines are coming down from the choker effect to a more livable state, and there are pinafore effects.

An apron-pinafore of plaid silk, tied at the waistline in back, over a black crepe dress is shown by one designer. Another has a much longer pinafore in the same purplish blue of the dress, but the sleeves are of a soft, bluish red.

Color Combinations.

Another dress, of beige silk and wool, has a printed silk gilet and cuffs.

Mrs. Catt, 75, Looks Out On Brighter World for Women

Susan B. Anthony's Famous Disciple Has Seen All the Stages in the Modern Woman's Struggle Toward Freedom and Equality With Opposite Sex.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, advocate of women's rights, yesterday celebrated her seventy-fifth birthday, an event that brought back memories of her campaigns across five continents, first as the disciple and then the successor of Susan B. Anthony, who started something back in 1848.

At the century-turn moment when Mrs. Catt took Miss Anthony's place as president of the National Woman's Suffrage Association, the latter penned a prophecy which came true.

You may read it any day by visiting the rare book room of the Library of Congress, where Susan B. Anthony's thirty-three scrap books are stacked in a narrow stall. Here it is, dated January 1, 1900:

"This finishes the records of the scrapbooks, thirty-three in number. I now leave the history writing as well as making to my younger friends and coworkers, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and Rev. Anna Howard Shaw. They are the fruit of the early seed-sowing.

"They may not have to work to the end of their days to secure the right to represent themselves, as have so many who began this public movement."

Amelia Bloomer and her dress reform; the battering at college doors for coeducation; the invasion of the professions by women; the year on year of hammering at Congress; the conventions, campaigns—all these Susan B. Anthony with Mrs. Catt's aid pasted into the strongest bindings she could find.

She gave the bicycle much credit in women's cause, writing: "I rejoice every time I see a woman ride by on a wheel. It gives her a feeling of freedom, reliance and independence. The moment she takes her seat she knows she can't get into harm while she is on her bicycle, and away she goes, the picture of free, untrammeled womanhood!"

Carrie Chapman Catt, Susan's successor, is planning on coming to this Capital where the winning of suffrage is already ancient history, to be present Friday night at a dinner where Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will speak.

Nation's Club Women Seek Out and Utilize The Cultural Gifts of the Home Town Folk

They Have Turned the Years of Adversity to Good Account.

The days when clubwomen spent much time and money securing the names of contemporary notables to grace their club programs is decidedly past.

Those hectic nights when small town wives dragged unwilling husbands to hear the inspired words of some world famous traveler and lecturer are a part of history.

Miss Josephine G. Seaman, president of the California State Federation of Women's Clubs, a visitor to Washington, told a Post reporter that the depression has taught clubwomen to use their own resources for education and entertainment.

"Women have learned that in order to be really cultivated, and have an honest appreciation of the arts, they must develop what is within themselves," she said.

Next-Door Neighbor.

"In clubs all over the country women are using their own resources and they are really doing some excellent work. With pleased surprise they are discovering that quiet little Mrs. Brown, next door, has traveled quite as much as the $1,000 lecturer they had last year, and that she can tell about it with contagious enthusiasm. And this discovery has given them a new understanding and a true appreciation which was not gained by listening to imported artists.

"Recently I went to a club meeting in a remote California town. When I arrived I found all the women grouped around a piano. They were listening with breathless attention while a young woman played. I have never heard a better performance, or seen a more appreciative audience. Later I found that this young woman had been trained for the concert stage and had come to this small town because of her husband's health. She found a vast satisfaction in playing for these women, and her music gave them much in beauty which they could not have found elsewhere.

"Of course," Miss Seaman continued, "our work is not entirely along cultural lines. We try to link the civic and cultural side of life. Our immediate purpose is the betterment of local conditions—civic, educational and social.

"There are 40,000 women who are members of Federated Clubs in California alone. Every one of those women is doing some constructive work toward the betterment of her community.

"We help in education, give scholarships, fight the cutting of education appropriations, encourage the best type of women to enter the teaching profession.

"We believe that women should have an intelligent knowledge of politics, that they should study the political situation carefully and do their part in the present crisis.

"One of our greatest ambitions is to encourage understanding among the women of all nations.

"For that reason we send delegates to the International Council of Women in Geneva, and try to keep in touch with the activities of women in clubs in other lands.

"I am very optimistic about the future of women's clubs," she concluded. "The women are intelligent, hard working, representative of the best in American womanhood. I do not think there is a greater force for good in our country today."

Federation Sessions.

What organized women throughout the country are doing in the great national program of economic and social recovery and what opportunities the future holds for further service, will form the basis of much of the discussion at the meeting of the board of directors of the General Federation of Women's Clubs which opens its sessions this morning at national headquarters, 1734 N street northwest, the president, Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, presiding.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will be the honor guest and speaker at a dinner to be given Friday evening at the Hotel Mayflower. In addition to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, whom it is expected will address the board, speakers on the National Recovery Administration will include Clarence Pickett, of the subsistence homestead division, who will speak this morning on "New Homes for the Underprivileged;" Dr. Paul H. Douglas, of the Consumer's Advisory Board, who will explain the purpose and activities of consumers' councils; Dr. Fred C. Howe, consumers counsel for the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, and Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward, director of women's work of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration. The last three speakers will appear on the Thursday evening program, and it is hoped that Gen. Johnson also will be able to speak then.

Price to Speak.

Byron S. Price, chief of the Washington Bureau of the Associated Press, will address the board Friday afternoon, as will Miss Henrietta Additon, sixth deputy commissioner, Police Department of New York City, who will discuss crime prevention. Other outstanding persons who have consented to speak include Miss Jessie Gray, president of the National Education Association, whose address comes Thursday morning; G. H. Collingwood, of the American Forestry Association, who will appear Friday morning to speak on "Conservation Under the New Deal," and Count Rene d'Harnoncourt, of the American Federation of Arts, who soon will begin a series of National broadcasts on art appreciation, under the sponsorship of the general federation's division of art. He will speak Wednesday evening on "Art in the Community." Miss Emily Cuyler Hammond, who has traveled extensively in Germany, will speak to the board Friday afternoon on "Through the Looking Glass in Germany."

Front Flares In New Coats End Discomfort

Paris Designer Effects Unobtrusive Change for Spring.

Paris (U.P.).—Front flares are not bad. Especially in coats. They make the business of sitting down a much more comfortable and pleasant sensation. A lot of material cluttered up under your knees at the rear is anything but conducive to pleasant thoughts. A smooth, sleek posterior is the silhouette. Even from the front the fullness is not obvious as far as outline is concerned. Only when you are in motion does it come into view. Schiaparelli achieves this comfort line most successfully in her new coats that bear her advance stamp of spring upon them.

She has one made of soft green wool, the back perfectly flat, while in the front there is a stand up and out collar with decidedly jutting revers. The circular movement of the coat skirt makes it flare above and below the waistline. With it is worn a shirred and ruffled taffeta scarf in gray, green and yellow. The coat shoulders are still inclined to be boxy, and the sleeves perfectly straight. A flat piece of leather simulating a bow fastens the coat at the waistline.

The front flares for the evening are especially smart, and the gentle swishing of fine fabrics when walking or dancing gives a costume the sort of movement the couturiers have been striving for over a period of months. It is accomplished by expert shirring, pleating, gathering and tucking, and is never visible above the knees.

Children Lose Natural Wave With Neglect

Seemingly Straight Hair Often Develops Curl If Coaxed.

Chicago, Jan. 9 (AP).—There's many an undiscovered wavy head of hair among children, and there's many a headache hidden in a wrong part, said Miss Agnes F. Schmitt, of Lincoln, Nebr., president of the Nebraska State Hairdressers Association, today.

"Yes," she said, "there is many a woman today who would have had wavy hair if her mother, despairing of the straightness of her daughter's crowning glory, had not slicked it straight back, tied it tight or braided it."

Frequently—of course, not always—a seemingly straight head of hair in a child, Miss Schmitt said, will be found to be naturally wavy if it is cared for and rightly trained.

Her suggested method is to water-wave the hair. This, she said, need not be done in a beauty parlor. A mother can learn how to train her child's hair.

Miss Schmitt said that she has found that hair in children wrongly parted sometimes causes headaches.

She objects to long bangs or hair that flops down over the face as causing the child to blink. They are hard on the wearer's eyes, she said.

Curls are not essential to the beauty of a little girl, far from it, she said, calling forward for demonstration a 4-year-old little miss, whose brown hair was cut semi-windblown and waved forward about her face.

Hair ribbons are the outstanding 1934 style note for the preschool and grammar school miss, Miss Schmitt said. Tortoise shell bandeaus and narrow ribbons tied around the head, Alice in Wonderland fashion, are smart.

Great Designer Now Has Hundreds of Apprentices

In Her Immense Paris Establishment Every Gown Bears a Label Carrying Her Fingerprint, to Prevent Others Copying Her Marvelous Creations.

Haute couture! Is there any woman alive, even if she never spoke a word of French in her life, who has not tried her tongue at those magic words, meaning, but in a most magical sense, "great dressmaking?"

Dressmaking has a fascination that is felt by the richest and the poorest. It is the art of encircling a lovely form with its appropriate allure.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

A plump, white-haired woman is finger-printed 25 times every spring, summer, winter, and fall, in a six story building in the Avenue Montaigne, Paris. There are no officers of the law about while this performance is taking place. The white-haired woman, whose name is Madeleine Vionnet, wants to be finger-printed. She insists upon it. After she has made little smudges with indelible ink on 25 rectangular silk labels which bear facsimiles of her signature, the bits of silk are sewed into the Vionnet collection of gowns.

In this way does the most consummate master of the dressmaking art in Paris protect her original designs from theft and piracy. The 25 gowns that have the labels conferred upon them have been weeded out as carefully as candidates for Congress. For her spring, autumn, and two mid-season showings Vionnet creates about 300 costumes. After the designs have become "cold," the couturiere looks them over with an appraising eye and selects a bare 25.

This ability to know when to keep a thing and when to let it go has been the ruling force in Madeleine Vionnet's life. She entered the dressmaking business when she was a youngster with long braids down her back. In the years when most girls her age were engrossed with geography and history, Madeleine was earning a meager living by threading needles and picking up pins from the floor and running errands at the establishment of Callot Soeurs, at that time an important house in the haute couture. Madelein's title, while she performed this work, was "arpette," which, roughly translated, means bell hop.

Those Button Holes.

Next she became a "petite main," an apprentice, who does the simplest kind of sewing. In this capacity, she made miles and miles of button holes, considered valuable preparation for the next rung on the designer's ladder toward proficiency. The next rung is called "seconde main," and when Madeleine had climbed that far she was permitted to sew flat seams and to make the tiny rolled hems for which the French are famous.

Next she became a "premiere main" which means that she was entrusted with cutting models in starched cheesecloth from original designs.

The day after she became a "premiere main" was an important one for the little apprentice. For a long, long time she had gazed with awe at the girls who snipped so nonchalantly into the stiff white pattern material with big, shiny scissors. Most of them had taken courses in cutting schools before they entered the establishment as "arpettes." Just as thousands of American girls go to business college, so do countless French girls flock to the cutting schools.

Quick With Scissors.

Most of them are quite content to remain cutters. Madeleine Vionnet had no intention of remaining one. The position to her was merely a necessary phase to be passed through on her relentless climb to the top. After she had become so expert with the scissors that she could take one look at a gown and then cut a duplicate with a few bold strokes, she was advanced to the place of "premiere," that autocratic person who rules the sewing and cutting rooms.

Then she left Callot Soeurs and went to the house of Doucet as "premiere d'atelier." That was in 1909.

She advised dowager countesses on the kind of costumes that would best conceal their too generaus upholstery and guided frantic mothers of jeune fillies in the selection of clothes that would make their daughters seem like dewy goddesses instead of the gangling creatures they really were. The position of "premiere d'atelier" is an important one. The salary is large as salaries in Paris go, and the authority is next to the grand couturiere herself. But Vionnet, after a few years, resigned from the House of Doucet. She knew when to let go.

Her Own Shop.

With the little money she had saved by denying herself everything bu the barest necessities over a period of years, she opened her own establishment in the Rue de Rivoli. There was nothing elaborate about it. But then, it did occupy a strategic position in the Rue de Rivoli, that famous street with its arcades facing the Tuileries Gardens and lined with little shops selling perfume, lingerie, petit point, and costume jewelry.

Across the way the Louvre Palace art gallery is a mecca for tourists. Throngs of Americans mill up and down the Rue de Rivoli. A Frenchwoman once said laughingly that she had never heard anything but English spoken there.

Vionnet's first collection was greeted with enthusiasm on the part of these visitors to Paris. Her opening was also attended by a number of smart Parisiennes who had selected their clothes at the House of Doucet under her guidance. The new grande couturiere's creations had an understanding of the lyric movements of the body. Because of their bias cuts they clung to the figure in geometrical and logical lines that proved Vionnet has a born sense of architecture. Soon word got about that a new designer had entered the sacred gates of the haute couture—a designer who believed that lines were more important than color and who was a perfect wizard with materials.

And Then—War.

Just as the success of the new establishment seemed to be entirely secure, an interruption to its activities came along in the form of the World War. Vionnet, as most of the other dressmakers, closed her atelier and workrooms. They remained closed until 1919. Within a few months of the reopening she had regained much of her former clientele as well as new patrons from Europe and America. Four years later she moved to her present large establishment in the Avenue Montaigne, in the richest and most fashionable section of the city.

In vast workrooms, fitted with the latest contrivances, approximately 1,000 employes work with needles, patterns, scissors, and luxurious materials, making exquisite gowns from the models created by Vionnet. Promptly at noon the work is stopped and luncheon is served at the expense of the house. Remembering the days when she was a little apprentice, Vionnet has arranged for her girls to attend school under special teachers in one room of the great establishment. They are also given courses in sewing, designing, and cutting. But the grande couturiere herself still works harder than anybody in the place. She can cut and sew many times better than her most proficient employe. This is probably the reason why she has the respect of the haute couture more than any other dressmaker.

Vionnet, whose love for the classic is pronounced, plans her dresses in cotton material on large dolls. After the drapery has fallen into the desired line and after a satisfactory silhouette has been achieved, she completes the model on a living mannequin. Tall, slender women with dignified bearing are her favorite clients. They inspired her, by the long, symmetrical lines of their bodies, to create the unlined dress which revolutionized the dressmaking industry.

It is the white-haired Vionnet who recently led the mode back to feminine elegance. She has a high disregard for so-called fashion and goes on season after season creating clothes that are noteworthy for their poetry, grace, and classicism. Her beautiful gray salon with soft glass ceiling and tall, frosted windows is frequented by society women from all over the world.

A Quaint Study in Rose and Gold

Stiff rose-and-gold moire is the material of this star model of Vionnet's winter collection, which was worn in Washington recently by a distinguished guest at a large White House reception. The dropped shoulder line and draped bertha are unusual and striking in their design.

Modern Remedy Returns Beauty To Marred Skin

By Ruth Anne Davis.

Grecian features and a glory of golden curls are but midway steps to beauty. No matter how graceful the carriage, how piquant the lips, and large and lustrous the eyes, unless the skin is clear, soft, and healthy looking, beauty evades our claims.

Pimples which rear themselves across our chin, or gather in clusters on our cheeks might be minute in size, but they wield a dreadful menace. Unless we take them in hand when they first start, and check their spread, they are likely to make our face a regular happy hunting ground.

If we chase them away without scientific knowledge the results are extremely poor. They might disappear for a day or so, but they leave in their place unsightly scars and bruised spots. But by using an ointment which has recently appeared on the market we can subdue them the first trial, and soon conquer them completely.

The ointment contains much of the Vitamin D, the reconstructive properties of which serve not only to dry up the pimples but to replace the dead tissues with new healthy tissues.

Whereas we don't deny that small electric room heaters are mighty convenient to have around we're forced to admit that in some instances we'd rather have our feet turned to blocks of ice than mar the beauty of our room with some of the unattractive heaters on the market now. A pretty inclusive statement but not without exception, thank goodness. An electric shop on G street has a small heater which is quite ornamental.

It's made of black metal, has a silver rim and is shaped like a desk radio. An inclosed fan blows the heat out and scatters it helter-skelter around the room so that it isn't uncomfortably concentrated on any one spot.

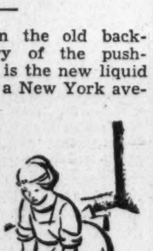
After we've very carefully laundered our hose we sometimes throw them over the backs of chairs, or even across the radiators to dry. Next thing we know they're filled with snags and runs.

After one experience like this we should profit by it to the extent we'd hunt around the shops for a hosiery drier. There's one we know about which looks like a small coat hanger, but has small rubber-covered pegs which hold the hose and protect them from snags.

An F street shop which specializes in the very best of leather bags surprised us recently by bringing to the fore an interesting assortment of evening purses. They ranged from beautifully embroidered bags to the brightest sequin pouches.

One of them which took our fancy over and above all others was a small bag of black silk studded with unusually large rhinestones. We couldn't help picturing this with a long black formal gown, black satin slippers with rhinestone heels, sleek black hair, surmounted with a dazzling tiara.

A far cry from the old back-breaking drudgery of the push-and-tug floor wax is the new liquid polish featured in a New York avenue shop. It requires no rubbing and brushing to shine and glitter and no effort to apply. Dampen a soft cloth with the liquid, rub it lightly over the floor, and the old dullness gives way to a delightful brightness.



Imagine, one moment a dark, dusty looking floor. A hurried application of this miraculous liquid. A 19-minute interim—and, behold, it has completely dried and transformed the floor.

Once the floors have been waxed with this polish it's a simple matter to keep them new looking. The dust gathers on top of the hard surface of the polish and may be quickly and easily removed with a mop. This floor wax is good for wooden floors, linoleum or the costliest rubber tile and marble.

No matter. If we can't board a luxurious yacht and take a leisurely cruise in Southern waters we can take a trip around the world with a geographic game which promises to be among the amusement highlights this spring.

The game consists of a large map of the world drawn on a flat, chess-like board, a set of planes and boats and two decks of cards. Four people can play.

The decks are shuffled and a card drawn, which instructs the player what route to take. The object of the game is to see who can travel from San Francisco to Manila in the speediest fashion.

Children, of course, could learn a few geographical tips, but so can the grown-ups. We might feel that we've traveled and read enough to be fairly conversant with the old sphere, but when we sit down to play this game and receive instructions as to where we shall wend our way it's truly amazing the queer corners of the world which come to light, cities, countries we never knew about.

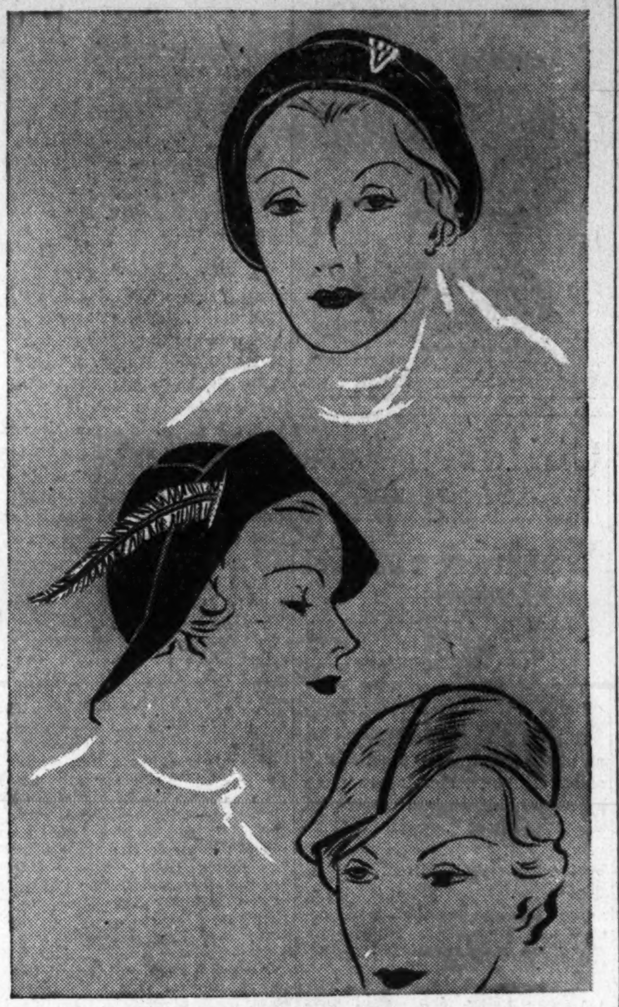
Directed by Amos Parrish

New York, Jan. 10.—Not everybody can go South for their midwinter quota of ultra violet. And if you can't, next best thing to do is to wear one of the new off-the-face hats and let your face at least have the benefit of Northern sunshine.



Hats of the types described are available in Washington in all the better-class shops.

It's not a hard dose to take either. Because although "off-the-face" is essentially a youthful style (and in the extreme versions shouldn't be indulged in by anyone who has a sign of a wrinkle) there are modifications of it which are suitable to many older persons.

Baby Bonnets.

Another one "for unlined faces only" is the fisherman type which Maria Guy evolved. You can see at the lower left how its medium brim turns directly off the face in a most revealing fashion.

Then there are brims rolled up slightly in Breton sailor fashion, still youthful but not quite so exposing as some others.

But more becoming to the older face is the hat with brim rolled off the face to expose only part of the forehead . . . the rest of the brim shading one eye.

Turbans and Berets.

Turbans and berets come in the off-the-face class, too, some of the new turbans worn back on the head in halo effect, often exposing the hair above the forehead. And the new beret has a squarer crown, as you can see in the right-hand sketch.

Neither of these have that extreme, wide-eyed youthful look that some of the others have.

What Today Means

"Capricorn."

If January 10 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:15 to 8:15 a. m., from 10 to 11:30 a. m., and from 3 to 4 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:30 to 9:30 a. m., from 1:30 to 2:30 p. m., and from 6 to 8 p. m.

If you were born on January 10, you are of the type that feels it is your duty to share the troubles, trials and tribulations of all your friends. You are very generous and love to play the host. You will be tempted on this date to spend money for unessential little things. You will have to tighten your purse strings considerably if you expect to be able to accumulate anything for the future. It will be wise for you to take a firmer stand with some of your friends, who feel that they can call on you whenever they feel like it. Do not let them impose on your good nature. You will make a business success in any line that will bring you in direct personal contact with the general public, as, for instance, the hotel or restaurant business.

Women born on January 10, instinctively know how to entertain, and are very methodical in everything pertaining to the home. If you are a woman and born on this date, you will do very well in any line of business which caters to the housewife, and which requires a complete knowledge of her numerous needs. You will want a career of your own, and will be happier if you marry.

Men born on January 10 are very susceptible to flattery. They enjoy meeting people, and are the type that make excellent contact men. If a man and born on this date, you will make money in a business where your personality will be considered an asset. You will do well in any line dealing in foodstuffs. You will make friends readily, and it will be very gratifying to you to find out, as you will, how very loyal your friends will prove themselves. If you do not let your popularity turn your head, you will have a very successful business career. Your home life also promises to be an ideal one.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

The germs of most of the communicable diseases of northern latitudes enter the human body through the nose and mouth. This at least. It is exposing the people to new possibilities of being poisoned. The laws are supposed to give us all the protection we need, but experience has shown that the law does not come until several years of exposure has been experienced and efficient application follows several years later still.

In most instances the protection given by the manufacturer and dealer, the refusal of these gentlemen to make use of improvements and cheaper methods if they were potentially dangerous, has been the best protection available—better than that of the law.

Industry and commerce are now following the century old method of the medical profession for the protection of the public and of themselves—namely, codes. It is hoped that out of the general application of codes improvement of the protection of the public against poisons now used in industry may result.

The American Chemical Society calls the attention of the public to the poisonous qualities of sodium nitrate. Two professors at Davidson College report the death of a child caused by swallowing some sodium nitrate found on a junk pile. They killed rabbits by giving them one grain of this substance. Sodium nitrate is used in quantities around cotton mills and dye plants and it is not labeled poison. They say "the facts presented show the use of sodium nitrate as a meat-curing agent might be attended with great danger."

From California there comes a report of a considerable number of cases of diarrhea and vomiting caused by eating fruits and vegetables that had been sprayed against insects. Fruit and vegetable growing without spraying can not be made profitable. Practically all insect sprays are poisonous to people. The problem for the grower, the merchant and the consuming public is to remove all the spray before having the product come to the table. This can be done by the use of proper dips, washes and solvents and by washing, peeling and cleaning.

The Family Marketer

Real Russian Dishes and Buffet Menu Offer Tasty Treat.

The Marketer went to a buffet supper party the other night, not an ordinary supper at all, but a 100 per cent Russian menu! So she nibbled and drank, sipped and chewed her way through all the delicious things and after it was all eaten up she took the hostess aside and stuttered menacingly.

"You've got to give me the recipes for the paper, I must have 'em!"

And the hostess, always agreeable and anxious to please her guests, did so. The Marketer scribbled the recipes down, made out the menu, and here it is—fresh from the ingenuity of a lady who has lived in Russia and knows how to serve Russsia's food.

Russian Buffet Supper.

Deviled Eggs
Stuffed Tiny Tomatoes
Grated Radishes in Sour Cream
Salt White Fish
Sandre
Swiss Cheese
Black Bread
Sweet Butter
Borstch with Sour Cream
Fruit Mazurki
Demi-tasse

The hors d'oeuvres were served in the upstairs living room with the cocktails. The stuffed eggs were made by adding a little anchovy paste and a dash of tabasco sauce to the yolks, stuffed, and served on a large platter on lettuce leaves. The tiny hot-house tomatoes were filled with a mixture of grated cabbage, chopped olives, and grated onions, topped with mayonnaise. The radish relish consists of two bunches of radishes, grated fine, added to one cup of sour cream.

The borstch was served in large porringers—and it is good!

Borstch.

1½ lbs. soup meat and bone
12 small beets
1½ lbs. cabbage, shredded
½ cup carrots, diced
2 onions, sliced
¼ cup vinegar
3 tablespoons sugar
1 stalk celery
Salt and pepper to taste.

Make stock of meat and cook one hour. Take out meat ond bone, put in the stock the cabbage, onions, celery, carrots and vinegar and cook 10 to 15 minutes, or until the carrots are done. Boil beets separately, well washed, but not peeled, until tender. Peel and add, sliced, 10 minutes before serving with the water in which they were cooked. Add seasoning. Serve with two generous tablespoons of sour cream in each serving.

Fruit Mazurki.

1 cup chopped almonds
1 cup Malaga raisins
1 cup seedless raisins
1 cup figs, chopped fine
1 cup prunes
½ cup candied fruits
1 teaspoon baking powder
3 eggs, well beaten
5 tablespoons flour
1 cup sugar.

Sift flour, sugar and baking powder. Mix fruits and add well-beaten egg, then dry ingredients. Bake in very slow oven on buttered sheet for about 40 to 50 minutes. Serve with or without sour cream.

Cocktail Alexander.

1-3 part cognac
1-3 part fresh cream
Should be served cold.

If you want to serve this menu the Marketer will tell you where you can get the sour cream, black bread and salt fish.

Paste—and Pearls.

I wear a gingham apron—I'm Domestically inclined,
I wear a robe of black and then
I'm pensively resigned.

I'll add a personaliy—
I'm Cleopatra, too!

Smart Attire Seen at Paris Skating Fete

Sports Costumes of Soft Woolens Fitted With Handbag Clips.

Paris—A very chic skating festival was held recently at the Palais des Sports. Many fashionable women were present, and very smart costumes were noted. For active sports there were smart costumes in soft woolens, with most original pyralin button fastenings or clips to fasten the skirt or jacket, the shoulder yoke or even the little muff in the same material, which proved to be a handbag when unclipped.

There were also three-quarter costumes or tailleurs in ribbed or plain rayon velvet, with elaborate fur trimmings, accompanied by little toques with a turned-up effect in front and the brim in fur, often pinned on the crown by a composition motiff. Short jackets in fur and little muffs to match were often worn over rayon velvet dresses.

Those who did not skate wore very smart ensembles consisting of coats with large cape effects in silver fox, with bands sometimes disposed on the hem, on a dull rayon velvet or broadcloth background. There were very elaborate sleeves, entirely made of ermine, disposed on black rayon velvet coat, the collar of which consisted of a scarf in the same velvet passed through a cabuchon in emerald green crystal. The dress beneath was composed of a very long tunic in white rayon satin, showing only the hem of the skirt in the same velvet.

Just Folks

The Dog.

I like a dog at my feet when I read,
Whatever his size or whatever his breed.
A dog now and then that will muzzle my hand
As though I were the greatest of men in the land,
And trying to tell me it's pleasant to be
On such intimate terms with a fellow like me.

I like a dog at my side when I eat.
I like to give him a bite of my meat;
And though mother objects and insists it is bad
To let dogs in the dining room, still I am glad
To behold him stretched out on the floor by my chair.
It's cheering to see such a faithful friend there.

By the wag of his tail is his pleasure expressed.
He pays a high tribute to man when he stays
True to his friend to the end of his days.
And I wonder sometimes if it happens to be
That dogs pay no heed to the faults which men see.

Should I prove a failure; should I stoop to wrong;
Be weak at a time when I should have been strong,
Should I lose my money, the gossips would sneer
And fill with my blundering many an ear,
But still, as I opened my door, I should see

Brush Gives Hair Sheen.

Don't forget that your brush is as vital to the beauty of your crowning glory now that your hair is bobbed as it was when it was long, warns Betty Furness. There is nothing like grandmother's formula of 50 strokes night and morning with a good brush to keep the natural sheen in your tresses.

Washington Women in Welfare Work

Mrs. Cafritz Commends Capital for Humane Activities.

MRS. MORRIS CAFRITZ.

President of the Sisterhood of Washington, member of a national organization with over 300 chapters, and the youngest chapter president in the Nation, is the record of Mrs. Morris Cafritz, enthusiastic Community Chest volunteer worker. Despite her youth, Mrs. Cafritz, who herself came from abroad, was formerly head of the immigration department of the Council of Jewish Women and in that capacity did much welfare work among the immigrants.

Her work with the Community Chest has deeply impressed Mrs. Cafritz with the community spirit developed through the work of the Chest, which has brought together all races and creeds in a common desire to help their unfortunate fellow man.

"It is wonderful to me," she said, "the large number of Washingtonians who virtually give up their own work and own interests to go out and work in behalf of those who are less fortunate. I am especially impressed with the manner in which all barriers fall before the common desire to help those who need our help. I feel that no woman can find a finer avocation than that of giving her volunteer part in the work of one of the numerous welfare organizations in Washington.

"There is so much need and so many opportunities for service that everyone of us can find something to do in connection with welfare work. Shortage of funds has handicapped, to some extent, every Community Chest organization and there is a place for [illegible] for every Washington man or woman who desires to do a real work for those whom misfortune has overtaken. And the [illegible] is there. There are boys and girls who are members of the various clubs, and settlement houses who need the guidance of those older and wiser. This field also offers a great opportunity for service."

Miss Kenyon, Off to Tea, Says Hello!

Doris Kenyon, playing at a Washington theater, was all a-flutter when the reporter interviewed her. And no wonder. She was on her way to tea at the White House—between performances.

Star Is on Her Way to Chat With the First Lady Over a China Cup.

Miss Doris Kenyon is said to speak ten languages and to have seen anywhere from ten countries upward. But she only spoke one language to this reporter yesterday, and very little of that, for she was hurrying off to see Washington in a big way—starting at the White House.

"Hello," she said, happening to see her humble interviewer, who was wedged in among some stage trunks and scenery at the dressing room door. "Come in and have a seat," she said.

She began to smear gobs of cold cream all over her face, her eyes peeped out like surprised blue saucers, and every once in a while white teeth showed in an engaging smile as she rapidly transformed herself from the glamorous "Alice Blue Gown" of yesterday into the sleek actress of today.

Miss Kenyon, it seemed, was off to tea with the First Lady of the Land. For on Saturday night she ran straight into Mrs. Roosevelt, who had gone around to witness an act from back stage. The First Lady, who had just finished a ride on the theater's freight elevator to the upper regions and had landed back down again among the ropes and wires and pieces of flying scenery through which the actress was hurrying on her way to sing.

Well, they met there, and then and there Mrs. Roosevelt invited Miss Kenyon to run up for tea, as we got the story—for the actress herself was pretty excited about it.

"Just think," she said. "tea at the White House! And I with only an hour and a half to spare!" She continued to smear the cold cream all around, making a lovely pudding of it, what with her face powder and mascarata and lip stick getting stirred right in.

"For you see, she explained, with five acts a day to go through with there's very little of an actress left to have tea anywhere! All the same, I just must and shall keep this White House appointment."

She wiped the dessert off her face, revealing an unusually lovely and smiling countenance, and then she turned around.

"About me, you want to know?" she asked. "Why, there's not one single little thing that's interesting about me! No not one thing!"

And then she paused—on her way to that White House tea. Her face grew wistful, and the tenderest expression crept into her eyes.

"The only interesting thing about me," she added, "is my little boy. Do you suppose you could tell about him? Or that anyone would want to know?

"For, you see, it's funny about him! He's just the dearest little fellow! But he can't seem to get it straight in his mind what I do in the theater. He's never been inside a theater in his life. And when I showed him some theatrical pictures of his mamma, he just wouldn't believe it was she!

"But I really must be off to the White House! Is my make-up all off now? Did you enjoy the show? Did you like that song, 'The Alice Blue Gown'?"

She gave herself a long last look in the mirror—and she looked a very little girl indeed to be the mama of a big boy and to be going up to the White House tea.

"Good-by," she said sweetly. "It must be terribly disappointing to interview anyone like me, who hasn't a thing to say. Good-by! I just must be running along—to the White House—"

Culbertson on Bridge

Playing a Freak.

In Duplicate Contract, players should realize that whenever possible without endangering the reaching of the best contract, a hand should be played at a contract where there is a count for honors. Some players are inclined to carry this principle to extremes, however, and disregard entirely the element of unfavorable distribution which may wreck any hand.

In the recent New York State championship tournament held as a preliminary to the Grand National Tournament of the United States Bridge Association now in progress in New York, one of the most interesting hands dealt was the one below. It not only presented an interesting problem in bidding, but in the play only one of the participants in the contest, after reaching the one makable contract, found the method of play that permitted its fulfillment. This player was Mr. Joseph Nagle, of New York. The hand was:

East, Dealer.

N
♠ J 8 5
♡ 7
◇ 9 8 7 3 2

W

The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

East	South	West	North
1♠(1)	Pass	3◇(2)	Pass
3♡(3)	Pass	4◇	Pass
4♠	Pass	5NT(4)	Pass
6♠(5)	Pass	Pass(6)	Pass

1—Although the hand contains but 2 honor-tricks it must be opened in Duplicate in view of the distribution. Both suits are majors, and the seven-card spade suit gives East an opportunity to bid and bid again.

2—Although West has but one of his partner's trump suit, his hand is very strong and certainly suggests that it must be played at a game contract after his partner has opened the bidding.

3—While East would like to rebid his spade suit, in view of his partner's Forcing Takeout, he takes his first opportunity to disclose the distribution of his hand.

4—Of course, West still hopes to play the hand at diamonds, but he makes a Forcing bid of five notrump, showing three Aces and the King of a bid suit, intending to permit his partner to play it in the six hearts if that should be East's response, as he realizes that there may possibly be a heart loser in the hand in view of the fact that East did not offer a choice between hearts and spades on the previous round of bidding.

5—East thought a contract of seven was possible if his partner was very strong in hearts. However, he was unwilling to bid six hearts himself in view of the possibility that he would be faced with the necessity of ruffling clubs at an early stage of the game.

6—West is afraid of a heart loser, and hence does not bid seven hearts. An alternative bid would be six notrump, which could be made with any Opening.

South chose as his Opening lead the club king, and Mr. Nagle was thus early faced with the problem of how to play the hand. Obviously if the hearts broke 2-2 and the trump suit broke 3-2, the hand was a laydown for six-odd; or the hearts could even be divided 3-1, if the singleton was an honor, and still permit the fulfillment of the contract, provided, of course, there were no trump losers. Mr. Nagle, however, felt that the hand was too freakish to be played on the basis of any ordinary or average distribution. There was a possibility, he felt, that the hearts might be divided 4-0 and that even his Ace of hearts might be ruffed.

There was another line of play that offered perhaps not an even but at least a remote chance of success and this was the one which he decided to follow. Whether it is right or not is a difficult question to answer as freaks have a way of defying all ordinary analytical processes. In any event, after winning the first trick with the club Ace, Mr. Nagle laid down the diamond Ace and continued with the King and Queen, discarding on each a heart from his own hand. The third round of diamonds was ruffed by South and another club returned, which the Declarer ruffed in his own hand. Now the entire hope of fulfilling the contract rested upon finding South with two trumps only, so a trump was returned to Dummy and the Knave of diamonds led upon which Mr. Nagle discarded his last losing heart. When South was unable to trump, the contract was made. East returned to his own hand by ruffing to low diamond, drew North's two trumps, and cashed the balance of the tricks.

Bridge Funds To Be Asked From States

Survey Appropriation Will Be Sought of Congress.

The District Commissioners expect Virginia, Maryland and the Federal Government each to contribute $300,000 for construction of an elaborate bridge to replace the Chain Bridge, Melvin C. Hazen, chairman, stated yesterday after it had been decided to include a request for $10,000 for bridge plans in the supplemental estimates to be sent to the Budget Bureau.

"There is no reason why the District should pay the whole bill for such an elaborate bridge," Mr. Hazen said, "when it is obviously intended to be of benfiet to Maryland and Virginia as well as the District. Why, we could replace the present Chain Bridge for about $300,000 if we just wanted to serve tthe District."

While no effort will be made to obtain money from the present Congress for more than the plans, the Commissioners believe that the District should pay about $600,000 of the cost, providing a span such as suggested by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission is adopted.

Plan Library Branch.

The bridge, which would be located at Little Falls, would serve as a link of an accessory north-south artery under the planning commission's proposal.

The District heads yesterday also decided to submit an estimate of $150,000 for a Georgetown library branch along with the other items previously announced: the first unit of the Municipal Center, the site for the Jefferson Junior High School, the Anacostia Junior High School, and the walled group of buildings at the District Reformatory, Lorton.

Two million dollars will be asked to start construction of the first unit of the Municipal Center, which is expected to cost close to $5,000,000.

The other estimates are $205,000 for completion of the Anacostia School, $360,000 for completion of the work at Lorton, and $150,000 for purchase of the unbought land for the Jefferson School site.

Estimates to Be Drawn.

The total agreed upon by the Commissioners is $2,875,000, and several other school items may be added before the estimates are submitted to the Budget Bureau. Among the latter is an addition to the Alice Deal School.

Auditor Daniel J. Donovan was instructed to prepare the supplemental estimates at once. The new estimates are intended to reduce the 1935 surplus which would amount to $5,400,000 were the pending budget to be adopted without change.

Chicago U. Professor Speaks Here Sunday

Dr. Thomas Vernon Smith, professor of philosophy at the University of Chicago, will be the guest speaker in Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel here at 11 o'clock Sunday morning.

Editor of the International Jqurnal of Ethics, Prof. Smith is the author of several books, including "The American Philosophy of Equality" and "The Philosophic Way of Life." The lecture is open to the public.

Howard U. Displays Work of Modern Artists

An exhibition of conservative and modern paintings, selected and circulated by the department of educational work of the American Federation of Art, is being viewed until February 4 at the Howard University Gallery of Art.

The aim of the exhibit is to contrast paintings which, at the present time, seem to represent enduring achievements. Among the artists included are Melchers, Noble, Glackens, Brook, Redfield, Prendergast, Karfiol, Frieseke, Davies, Hassam, Sterne and Coleman.

West Virginians Honor Lawmakers Tonight

The reception and ball of the West Virginia State Society will be held tonight in the Raleigh Hotel in honor of the West Virginia delegation in Congress.

Mother of Three Here Missing Since Dec. 25

Intending to have her sick 18-month-old daughter, Helen, moved from Children's Hospital to Gallinger, Mrs. Compton left her home at 917 E street southeast at 11 o'clock Christmas morning. Her husband, William Compton, an unemployed butcher, said she received a telephone call purporting to be from the Hospital.

Whisky Broker Injured, Three Suspects Held

Victim's Skull Fractured, Also Treated for Alcoholism.

Three men were held last night Smith, a medicinal whisky broker, of the Harrington Hotel, was found critically injured in the doorway of 523 Eleventh street northwest. Smith, taken to Gallinger Hospital, has a fractured skull, physicians said.

The men held gave names of John Quinn, 60, of 310 D street northeast; James Miller, 36, and John Sanders, 26. They said they lived at the Eleventh street address. Officers asserted they confiscated a quantity of alleged liquor.

Smith also was treated for alcholoism.

Police at first expressed the belief he had fallen, althought they admitted he might have been the victim of an attack. His wife, Mrs. Mamie Smith, lives in Brentwood, Md., police said.

Ritchie Attends Dinner Of Soroptimists Tonight

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland will attend the eleventh installation banquet of the Soroptimist Club at 7 p. m. today at the Willard Hotel. Maj. James Stewart Richardson will be the chief speaker.

Tax Sale

Bidding Slow as 7-Day Auction Starts.

The District Government will have to bid in the majority of pieces of property offered at the annual delinquent tax sale, it was indicated yesterday as the seven-day auction opened.

District Tax Collector Chatham Towers said the first day's sale of about 175 pieces of property brought approximately $80,000. Bidding, he said, was slow.

Sale will continue every day this week and through Tuesday of next week. It opens at 10 o'clock each morning in the tax collector's office.

Rep. Hart Named Head Of Michigan Association

Representative Michael J. Hart, of Michigan, has been elected president of the Michigan State Association, it was announced yesterday.

Nail Down Your Houses; This Thief Is Tough Guy

A gigantic thief, with the strength of Hercules and the patience of Job, was sought by police last night.

Their quest started after Alvin L. Aubinoe, a foreman for the Cafritz Construction Co., reported a robber had stolen the five-ton boom from a steam shovel, being used on exacavation work in the rear of 338 Farragut street northwest.

Dern Acts to Guard Potomac Wild Life From Target Firing

Regulations for protection of Washington sportsmen whose favorite hunting and fishing grounds lie in a section of the Potomac near Quantico, used by the Marine Corps as a small arms firing range, were approved yesterday by War Secretary George Dern.

The area which lies between a line running due east from Shipping Point, Va., and a line running from Marlborough, Point, Va., to Maryland Point, Md., will be closed to arms practice from October 15 to May 15, and when the fishing season is at its height.

Local fishermen objected to use of the river as a target range during March, April and May. Both State and Federal Governments were spending large sums in the district to provide breeding and resting sanctuaries for wild fowl, and it was felt firing would drive game birds to other and less important points.

Other regulations limit firing to the hours of 9 a. m. to 4 p. m., require representatives of the Marine Corps to meet and warn all vessels passing through the area during arms practice, and forbid discharge into ther iver of phosphorous or other chemicals injurious to fowl or fish.

Capital Masons Plan Ceremony

20 Units Here to Install Officers at Willard Tomorrow Night.

Under auspices of the advisory board of Masonic clubs of the District, the eleventh annual joint installation of officers-elect of the 20 Masonic groups in Washington, representing several thousand Masons, will take place in the Willard Hotel tomorrow at 8 p. m.

Officers of the advisory board are: Thurston G. Brown, president; Samuel B. Reeder, vice president; Harry Warfield, secretary and E. J. Skidmore, treasurer.

Guests representing the National League of Masonic Clubs, expected to attend include past National President Lynn L. Troutman and M. D. Hensey, Edward E. Berney, personal representative of the National President, and [illegible] officers; Frank U. Day, president; H. H. Barringer, [illegible] son, Jack Mursell and R. H. Thompson, vice presidents.

The committee of arrangements includes Jack Mursell, chairman; G. J. Fehrman and A. O. Burnham.

20 NRA Laundry Complaints Here

Maj. Walter Asked to Act on Violation Charges.

Twenty NRA complaints involving companies in Washington have been turned over for adjustment to Maj. Raymond J. Walter, evecutive officers of the local compliance board, by the local code authority.

The laundry code authority explained that it preferred for the cases to be handled by an individual not connected with the laundry business, to avoid charges of prejudice. A similar procedure is being followed by other local code authorities.

An increase of from 7 per cent to 20 per cent in the trade of small concerns here during December is reported over the same month last year, Maj. Walter said. Virtually all the concerns polled are stressing the need for full restoration of the Government pay cut.

Utilities Body Calls Power Code Unfair

Declares Trust Would Dominate Industry Under Terms.

Letter to Johnson Hits Uniform Rate Idea and Accounting.

Fearing a possible reversal in its existing arrangement with the Potomac Electric Power Co., which has bzrought about annual reductions in rates for nearly a decade and one of the lowest schedules in the country, the Public Utilities Commission yesterday attacked the proposed electric light and power industry code in a letter to Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson.

The Commission charged that the code authority, as proposed in the code submitted by the Edison Electric Institute, would be dominated by the power trust because the membership would be apportioned on the number of kilowatt hours sold.

Gen. Johnson was told that Riley E. Elgen, chairman, and William A. Roberts, special counsel, would represent the Commission at the code hearing Friday at the Washington Hotel.

Under the industry's suggested set-up, the code authority would comprise (1) representatives of the Edison Electric Institute, (2) representatives of the private enterprises not members of the institute, and (3) representatives of the Government-operated power plants.

Apportioning Protested.

The proviisons to which the commission objected, however, was one declaring that "the members * * * shall be apportioned * * * on the basis of the ratio which the total number of kilowatt hours sold during the preceding calendar year * * * bear to the total number of kilowatt hours sold by all members of the industry during such year."

Objection also was made to the provision referring to fair competition practices, on the ground that "there are very few members of the electric light and power company other."

Wages and working conditions which are in competition with each der to the fire. There wasn't any may be familiar in two jurisdictions, the commission points out, but this should not require that consumers' rates be the same, adding:

"In order to eliminate any seeming approval by the Federal Government of language which might be construed to require that consumers' rates be equalized because o fthe uniformity of trade practices, the commission hopes that the language will b emodified to apply only * * * to wage sand working conditions."

The commission also protested against a section designed to encourage the sale of electrical appliances, on the ground it might lead to the interpretation that "such stocks of appliances and facilities for sale should be a part of the rate base on which customers have to pay."

This issue is now confronting the commission in the valuation hearing of the Washington Gas Light Co., which is insisting on including close to $2,000,000 in its valuation for gas appliances.

Accounting Also Factor.

A provision that independent firms of accountants shall adit the books of members of the industry present are subject to audit and examination by duly constituted public authorities," was objected to on the ground that it might lead to a unified system of accounting such as now is applied to the telephone industry.

The commission points out it is now fighting just such a system of accounting for the telephone industry before the Interstate Commerce Commission, claiming it obstructs local regulation.

A section of the proposed code which states that no provision "shall be appllied so as to permit monopolies or monopolistic practices that are contray to law," arouses this comment from the uitlities body:

"The commission believes that this paragraph is either entirely futile or is vicious . . . If literally construed, these words would be futile, but if construed to imply that any monopoly or monopolistic practice not specifically forbidden by law is authorized by the court, it would be vicious."

Mrs. Whitman Cross Honored By Visiting Nurse Society

Named Honorary President of Local Chapter for Life.

Mrs. Whitman Cross was elected honorary president for life of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society yesterday at the completion of her fifteenth term as active head of the organization.

The directors at the annual meeting elected Mrs. G. Howland Chase, 2d, to succeed Mrs. Cross, who will continue as an active member of the board, on which she served 21 years.

Mrs. Chase has ben a director of the society since 1926. She also is president of the Junior League of Washington.

Janet B. Houtz was elected third vice president. Officers reelected were Ord Preston, first vice president; Mrs. John W. Davidge, second vice president; Mrs. Dwight Clark, secretary; Mrs. Joshua Evans, jr., treasurer, and Mrs. Charles W. Pimper, assistant treasurer.

The following were elected to the nominating committee for 1934: Mrs. Frederick A. Delano, Mrs. Emory Scott Land, Mrs. Charles F. Wilson, C. W. Pimper and R. M. Kauffmann.

Marked increase in the number of measles and respiratory cases in the District is making heavy demands on services of the society staff, it was reported. More than 27,000 patients were cared for last year.

Labor Defense Seeks to Save Doomed Trio

Demonstration Planned Tomorrow in Hope of Clemency.

A massed demonstration and final plea for clemency in behalf of three colored men, scheduled to be electrocuted Friday for the murder of Park Policeman Milo J. Kennedy, is planned tomorrow by the International Labor Defense.

Officials of the organization said participants in the demonstration would form a parade from Logan Circle to the White House. There, they said, an appeal will be presented to President Roosevelt for commutation of the sentences to life imprisonment.

Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, executive officer of the Metropolitan Police Department, declared that no application for a parade permit has been made by the labor body. Police will halt the demonstration, he said, if an attempt is made to parade without a permit.

Plans for the demonstration will be completed tonight at a mass meeting in the Young Peoples Congregational Church, 628 M street northwest, Tentative plans, it was learned, call for formation of the parade at 4:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Meanwhile, the convicted slayers await electrocution at the District Jail. They are Edward Holmes, James Joseph Jackson and Irvin Murray. Holmes sent an appeal to President Roosevelt asking he be saved from the electric chair and sentenced to life imprisonment. He said the part he played in Kennedy's murder was "negligible."

The police was slain August 7, 1932, in a gang fight at Logan Circle. It was charged a gang of Negroes beat him to death.

Bethlehem Shepherds To Install Officers

Anna Sabata will be installed as commander of Capitol Lodge, Shepherds of Bethlehem, today at Masonic Temple, Eighth and F streets northeast.

Other officers to be installed are Margaret Michel, vice commander; Myrtle Fuller, marshal; Virginia Johnson, chaplain; Ruby Gray, inside guard; Mildred Stanley, outside guard; Ruth Van Allen, accountant; Margaret Baker, scribe; Ethel Ulrich, treasurer; Margaret Waters, mistress of ceremonies; Ida Stanley, aid to commander; Margaret Deegan, acting past commander. The officers will be installed by Deputy Supreme Commander Emma V. Delaney.

Burglars Obtain $650 Loot in Suits at Store

Gaining entrance by removing iron bars from a rear window of the University Shop, 715 Fourteenth street northwest, thieves early yesterday ransacked the building and escaped with 23 men's suits, valued at $650.

"Mean" Thief Empties Child's Penny Bank

Another candidate for title of "meanest thief," forced entrance to the home of Thomas L. Hume, jr., 2114 Forty-fifth street northwest, early yesterday, and included in his loot the contents of a child's penny bank.

Clothing and jewelry of unestimated value were also taken. Hume told police the robber entered by use of a duplicate key.

Runaway Car Injures Two, Panics Crowd

Careens Over Street Car Loading Dock to Hit Woman.

Starts Wild Dash When Bumped Into Action After Stalling.

A driverless automobile, running wild at Washington's business intersection yesterday afternoon careened over a street car loading platform, struck two women, and created a near panic among late afternoon shopping crowds.

The machine, driven by Hallet Harrison, 4201 River road northwest stalled at Fifteenth and New York avenue northwest about 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Harrison hailed a passing taxi and asked for a push. Before he could regain the driver's seat, however, the taxi bumped his car. Starting suddenly, the auto lurched between passing vehicles and crashed into the platforb.

Harrison finally succeeded in halting the run-away machine. Passing motorists took the injured women to Emergency Hospital. Mrs. Mary Wills, 65, of 2115 I street northwest, was treated for minor bruises and released. Mrs. Catherine Martin, 38, of 3500 Fourteenth street northwest, was admitted with severe injuries to her head. Harrison's wfie, Mrs. Lillian Harrison, 28, who was in the front seat of the car, received treatment for shock.

After questioning by police, Harrison was released.

Clinical Technicians Will Meet Tonight

The District of Columbia Society of Clinical Technicians will hold their first meeting at Gallinger Hospital at 8 p. m. today. Dr. Thomas Cajigas will speak on "Some Laboratory Problems of Interest to the Technician."

The following officers have been elected: Willis R. Adams, president; Miss Mary G. Wolford, vice president; Miss Dorothy E. Hardin, secretary and Edwin G. Thompson, treasurer. The council consists of the four officers and the following five active members: Miss Theodosia Foxwell, Miss Evelyn Morrisette, Miss Margaret C. Bush, Mark N. Linch and Matthew B. Coleman.

New Stage and Screen Stars Coming to Earle—RKO-Keith's New Playing Dates

Many Notables Announced for Warner House

Odditorium Second Week; "Cradle Song" Tomorrow; About Showshops.

Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.

In one of the new year's important announcements, John J. Payette, general zone manager of the Warner Brothers' interests in Washington and vicinity, late yesterday made known an impressive list of new stage and screen attractions to be presented at the Earle Theater within the next eight weeks.

First among the important personalities to reach the stage of the Thirteenth street playhouse will be Ken Murray, noted stage, screen and radio funster, who is being brought back in response to the insistent requests of many patrons. On the same bill will be another favorite from Hollywood in the vivacious person of Fifi D'Orsay, one of the most dynamic young comediennes enlivening the contemporary theater, who will be seen in a program of new songs and fresh laughs.

Another noteworthy booking will be Duke Ellington and his orchestra, just back from a European tour during which they played a special program for the Prince of Wales. Ellington has been booked solid through the key cities of the country and Washington will be among the first cities in America to hear him prior to another tour of the continent already arranged.

A Radio Tenor.

Donald Novis, favorite radio tenor, will soon make his first personal appearance in the Capital at the Earle. Jack Whiting, Broadway musical comedy star, as well as star of many screen musicals, is another ingratiating young entertainer in early prospect.

Mme. Alla Nazimova, one of the most distinguished of the stage's emotional stars, and one of the first of the screen "vamps," will be a headliner at the Earle soon in a Eugene O'Neill playlet. Neither the title of the sketch nor the actual playing date has as yet been revealed. Nazimova's last appearance here was in the short-lived Theater Guild production of Owen Davis' dramatization of the Pearl S. Buck novel, "The Good Earth," in which she was supported, successively, by Earl Larrimore and Claude Rains, star of the unique screen play, "The Invisible Man."

Among the screen attractions which will be seen in conjunction with these distinguished stage bookings will be Cecil B. De Mille's latest production, "Four Frightened People," produced in the almost impenetrable jungles of the Hawaiian Islands and featuring Claudette Colbert, Herbert Marshall, Mary Boland and William Gargan. Mr. De Mille during his recent visit to the Capital detailed at some length the unusual qualities he was able to impart to this picture by virtue of the unique environment in which it was filmed.

A Fashion Feature.

"Fashions of 1934," dealing with the creation and pirating of milady's fashions, is another unusual picture that is expected to create wide comment with William Powell and Bette Davis in the stellar roles.

"Easy to Love" is a comedy that will enlist the services of Adolphe Menjou, Genevieve Tobin, Mary Astor and Edward Everett Horton, and is promised to contain more laughs than "Convention City," the current hilarity at the Earle.

Richard Barthelmess, supported by Ann Dvorak, will be seen in "Massacre," one of the most colorful starring vehicles he has had, in which he plays the part of an Indian; Edward G. Robinson will be screened in "Dark Hazard," Kay Francis in "Mandalay," and "As the Earth Turns," an immensely popular best seller, will present a cast of new screen personalities, headed, in so far as Washington is concerned, by Donald Woods, remembered as one of the most popular leading men ever associated with Stephen E. Cochran's National Theater Players.

Among the surprises one encounters in reading over his stuff in cold type is the utterly original spelling of Chamlee as "Shambley"—an item of sufficient incomprehensibility to deserve a place among the grotesqueries of the "Odditorium," now holding forth in the National Capital!

Engagement Extended.

Speaking of the "Odditorium," after playing to more than 30,000 patrons during the first six days of its local engagement at the Washington Auditorium, Manager C. W. ("Cash") Miller announces that the exhibition will continue in Washington for a second week. Continuous performances will be given afternoon and evening through Tuesday, January 16.

Two, and sometimes three, performances are being given simultaneously each evening to take care of the crowds. This is made possible by the flexible manner in which the "show" can be routined. One member of the lecture staff conducts an audience of several hundred to the end of the rectangle of stages. A second lecturer then starts at stage No. 1. When both have moved comfortably out of earshot, a third performance is started.

At the end of the Odditorium's second week in Washington it will move on to Cincinnati for a ten-day engagement, thence will continue to the West Coast and finally will return to Chicago for the reopening of the World's Fair.

Miss Betty Smythe, of the New York Theater Guild, pays the dramatic department a visit to let fall the word that next Monday night, January 15, when Washington's own star, Ina Claire, opens at the National Theater in S. N. Behrman's comedy, "Biography," a Theater Guild production, the first night's performance will be under the sponsorship of the Association of American University Women. The proceeds of the performance will be devoted to the association's fellowship fund. The cleverness of the play, the popularity of the star and the worthiness of the cause forecast a gala evening in the theater.

Booking Changed.

Contrary to week-end prognostications, the next attraction, opening Friday at RKO-Keith's, will not be "If I Were Free," with Irenne Dunne and Clive Brook starred, but a new comedy, boasting five stars and bearing the significant title of "The Meanest Girl in Town."

The comedy's riotous situations, hilarious dialogue and cagey characterizations—not to mention the brilliantly comical quintet that leads its personnel—are said to have given it a five-star rating in all of the spots where asterisks are measures of superiority.

These five funmakers by whom so much store is placed are El Brendel, ZaSu Pitts, Pert Kelton, Jimmie Gleason and "Skeets" Gallagher.

Small-Town Fun.

The background for the action is a train-a-day town in the Middle West where a local boy who has made good in the town's one-chair barbershop, is a representative citizen, romantically inclined. That would be Mr. Brendel. El's bride is the dolorous Miss Pitts, who believes that, after her day of toil, woman's place is in the home. The pert Pert Kelton is a newcomer to town who can meet all comers for looks, glamor and fiery repartee. She lands a job as manicurist in the village barbershop and from that point on it ought to be a comparatively simple matter to write your own ticket!

From a further scrutiny of Manager Hardie Meakin's bulletin, it is gathered that "Let's Fall in Love," with Edmund Lowe and Ann Sothern, will be the RKO-Keith attraction the week of January 19, with Miss Dunne and Mr. Brook to follow on the twenty-sixth, in "If I Were Free." Then, for the first week in February, will come Wheeler and Woolsey, next week's vaudeville headliners at the Earle, in their latest camera vehicle, "Hips, Hips, Hooray."

No date has as yet been set for the screen debut of Francis Lederer in "Man of Two Worlds," one of the future bookings on Fifteenth street. However, what is already in sight is enough.

With regard to imminent and current bookings, it should be said that the Metropolitan this week violates precedent by inaugurating the engagement of Dorothea Wieck in "Cradle Song" tomorrow morning, instead of on the usual Friday. "Cradle Song," a Paramount production, is a picture of mother love, adapted from the stage play of the same name by G. M. Martinez Sierra, which has been performed in almost every civilized country on the face of the globe. In the supporting cast are Evelyn Venable, Kent Taylor, Sir Guy Standing, Louise Dresser and Gail Patrick. The point of all this, however, is that it opens tomorrow, Wednesday.

Advance Trade Showing.

Comes then the postman with tidings from Charlie Kranz, Washington branch exchange manager for United Artists, that at one hour or another today a Nation-wide advance trade showing will be celebrated of "Moulin Rogue," twentieth century's musical screen play, starring Constance Bennett. This is a rite that will be observed in 32 key cities throughout the United States.

In Washington, the event will take the form of a midnight preview of the picture in the auditorium of Loew's Palace Theater tonight at 11:45.

Exhibitors, newspaper critics and feature writers, radio executives and many others, prominent in the entertainment and journalistic world's will make up tonight's audience. Admittance it may be added, will be by card only. No tickee, no screenee!

Thanks to Max Baer, whom Jack Dempsey came to town to visit at Loew's Fox last night, for a handsome 11-by-14 autographed photograph that ought to give Primo Carnera a moment's pause, if he could see it! Thanks also for the friendly sentiments expressed in the inscription which the photo bears of Baer's. They are heartily reciprocated. A very elegant young fellow, Max Baer.

"An Old Softie!"

Miss Dorie Kenyon, who, in addition to appearing in person at the Earle this week as headliner of the vaudeville bill, is to be seen opposite the youngest of the Barrymores in Elmer Rice's "Counsellor at Law," the screen feature now in its second week at the Rialto, during our Saturday chat commented on the great change that has been brought about in Jack's explosive nature by the unvarying atmosphere of happiness that pervades his home in Hollywood.

Jack and Mrs. Jack, the Dolores Costello that was, according to Miss Kenyon, are an ideally happy couple. All who worked with him in "Counsellor at Law," she says, looked upon the experience as one of the pleasantest of their professional careers. The irascibility, sudden bursts of rage, profanity and all the other legendary qualities of the Barrymore nature have disappeared. There remains only a kindly, helpful and solicitous middle-aged gentleman, who knows how to act and how to help others to do likewise.

Tweet, Tweet, Tweet!

One of the Barrymore hobbies is a huge aviary built on his California estate. The centerpiece is a large and skillfully sculptored fountain which he designed and executed himself.

In this aviary are great numbers of rare birds which the Barrymores have brought back from their voyages on their capacious yacht or acquired from far places through professional collectors. Jack's particular pet is a giant vulture, most repellant of birds. Yet he is the one that Jack always makes a fuss over when he visits his feathered pets.

"How can you bear to have that awful bird near you?" asked Miss Kenyon when the vulture was rubbing the Barrymore cheek in friendly fashion with his head.

"Why not?" queried Jack, in reply. "He is no more repulsive in many ways than most actors!"

L'envol.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Swiftly paced, insistently and almost continuously witty, crackling with spirited music and played with a sustained zest that is seldom encountered even on the high-geared stage of the present day, "Let 'Em Eat Cake," the legitimate successor to the Pulitzer Prize-winning "Of Thee I Sing," is as skillfully contrived a satirical comic opera as has been tooled by native craftsmen in the last decade.

It may lack something of the political pungency of its predecessor and resort to slightly more fantastic extremes to score its points as a penetrating and incisive commentary on the present state of the world, and these United States in particular, but it so perfectly adheres to a deft pattern of satire, clings so tenaciously to a closely knit dramatic narrative and so adroitly harmonizes its broken rhythms and pithy lyrics with the key and the temper of its story that the net result is a rounded and richly amusing period of color, movement and good-natured raillery.

Humor Without Hurt.

The hilarious fun of "Let 'Em Eat Cake" is satirical without being savage; vehement, without being venomous and pointed without being poisonous. It is slightly tinged with ribaldry, but not at all with rancor. It has no axes to grind and offers affront to no one, thereby taking rank as the season's most innocuous as well as most exhilarating exhibit.

The fable unfolded by the Messrs. Kaufman and Ryskind in their amiable charade concerns itself with the debacle of the attempted second term of John P. Wintergreen and his wife, Mary, and that enormously wistful little figure of a man, Vice President Alexander Throttlebottom. The ticket of Wintergreen and Throttlebottom finds itself hopelessly defeated by the bachelor candidacy of Mr. John P. Tweedledee. The President and Vice President and all their cabinet are thrown out of jobs in the midst of the depression and are hard put to it to find a means of livelihood, none of them being master of any profitable occupation not within the gift of the people.

Open Shirt Factory.

They finally organize a factory to manufacture "Maryblue Shirts," modeled after one Mary Wintergreen has made by hand for the President, and to manufacture, in turn, a market for their product, organize a revolution, of which the backbone is the "blue shirt army."

The New Deal of Dictator Wintergreen contemplates the abolition of all political practices formerly in vogue, so that in the end the major contention confronting the government is the umpire's decision in a baseball game played between the otherwise unoccupied Supreme Court of the United States and the League of Nations, as a means of settling the war-debt issue. Poor little Mr. Throttlebottom was the umpire and is condemned to be guillotined. Once more Mary Wintergreen saves the day, but—as she herself exclaims—by a slightly less trying expedient than having twins!

Silliness Taken Seriously.

It all sounds very silly, and is, save for the fact that its extravagantly farcical premises are all treated with such seriousness and its bizarre climaxes, without exception, accorded such respectful dramaturgic treatment that the whole thing takes on the stature of a comic effort of major importance. Gilbert and Sullivan never strove very much more diligently or to any very much more successful effect than the authors of this piece have achieved.

The principal roles are in the same capable hands that shaped them in the earlier "Of Thee I Sing." William Gaxton, Lois Moran and Victor Moore continue as the indefatigable political plotters, President and Mrs. Wintergreen, and that pathetic victim of delayed thought transmission, Alexander Throttlebottom, receptacle of the world's woes and pet object of most of its scorn and contumely. Mr. Gaxton and Miss Moran seem, if anything, to have acquired a new gusto in their work and a multiplied vigor and forcefulness in all they do; Victor Moore, preserving the ratio, makes Throttlebottom an even more sympathetically appealing imbecile than formerly.

In Original Roles.

Examination of the printed cast will disclose Harold Moffett, Edward H. Robins, George E. Mack, Ralph Riggs and numerous others in their original assignments, to which they have added airs and graces during the passage of a year.

Diana Devereaux is missing from the present personnel, but the place of that scheming young Southern belle, who married Throttlebottom, but eloped with the French Ambassador, is largely taken by Grace Worth, as Trixie Flynn, true to Gen. Snookfield, the Army and the Navy, and an inveterate promoter of parties that always interfere with the orderly administration of government!

The score is not precisely alive with whistleable tunes, but there are many numbers that will intrigue the ear if they do not annoy the memory.

Sagacious direction, the occasional reprise of a melody from "Of Thee I Sing" and the services of an unusually competent mixed chorus add to the beguilements of an entertainment that vastly amused Vice President Garner, Postmaster General Farley and their party occupying three stage boxes last night, not to mention the rest of a capacity house.

Virginia Justice Qualifies.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.). Lem W. Houston qualified yesterday as justice of the peace and associate police justice, to which he was reappointed for a 4-year term by Judge Frederick W. Coleman.

Writ Given in Suit Over Painted Horse

Court Requires Justice to Answer Appeal.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.). An alternative writ of prohibition has been issued here for the Jefferson County Circuit Court by Judge D. H. Rodgers on appeal of the Shenandoah Jockey Club. The court directed Justice J. D. Walker, of Charles Town, to show cause why he should proceed with the "painted horse" case following the verdict he rendered last week in Charles Town.

Magistrate Walker ordered the return of the horse, valued at $300, and $298 in damages. The defense contends the full amount of the damages exceeds the authority of a magistrate's court.

The next hearing of the case will take place Tuesday.

The case had its genesis in the recent racing meeting in Charles Town. Officials declared the horse, Hustle Over, bought at hte track by Michael Krock, of Perth Amboy, N. J., had been painted to disguise its identity. The horse was held by the club and Krock was ruled from the track. He denied knowledge of any irregularity and sued for return of the horse. Justice Walker decided in favor of Krock, and the defendants appealed.

Mrs. Clara Rohman Dead.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 9 (Spl.). Mrs. Clara Rohman, 40, chief telephone operator of the Fort Cumberland Hotel and former chief operator for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad here, died yesterday.

Eastern Bows to Tech in Series Upset, 34-30; Central Five Wins

Tech Runs Score to 20-6 in First Half and Staves Off Rally.

PROVING that the dope in the interhigh basket ball series can be upset, Tech defeated Eastern, 34-30, and proving that the dopester can be right, Central trounced Western, 39-27. It all happened yesterday, on the McKinley Tech floor, before a disappointingly small series inaugural crowd of 1,200.

Tech, expected to bow before the onslaught on the Blue and White floormen of Eastern, took matters, or rather the ball, in to its own hands at the start of the game and ran up a 6-2 margin at the end of the first quarter. Three brilliant shots by Billings, Mulitz and Billings, again, gave the Techmen a starting lead that lasted throughout the game. Only at the end of the third period, with the score standing 24-18, did the Eastern five threaten.

Tech Draws Away.

Following the first quarter, Tech unleashed a second-period assault of seven baskets to draw the score at the half to 20-6. Red Daly, star guard of the Technicians, contributed some spectacular shooting, breaking through the Lincoln Parker's defense for three goals in a row.

Eastern came back strong in the third period, with the entire team working smoothly, holding Tech team to a single long shot goal by Morry Mulitz. Eastern sank half a dozen baskets for 12 points, and for a while it looked like the previously undefeated team was going to keep its record intact.

However, Tech renewed its ripsnorting scoring of the second stanza, whipping through the hoop five goals and a pair of fouls, and won the game, despite a last minute flurry by the excited Eastern five.

Daly Billings Star.

Featuring for Tech, was the sterling cut-in shooting by Daly and Billings, each sinking four shots. Gillem and Mulitz from long range, added an extra sparkle to the tiff. For Eastern Nolan was outstanding, clogging a quartet of goals, all from long range. Edelin, too looked good in under-the-basket shooting.

Wild passing and shooting, which developed into rough scrambling play marked the curtain-raiser attraction between Western and Central. Opening up as expected, Central jumped into an early lead that mounted to 19 to 6 proportions at the end of the quarter.

Bryant Starts Scoring.

Bill Bryant, elongated Central forward, opened the scoring for the series by dumping a short field goal through the Western hoop, exactly 2 minutes after play was started. From that point on, Bits Keyser and "Mussilino" Gregorio, kept beating an unmerciful tattoo on the opponents' bucket with such telling effect that the half ended, 27 to 11, in Central's favor.

It was in the third stanza that Western came back to display a brand of ball that would have beaten any team on the books. "Skat" Stadler, Frank and Corcoran combined to take the play completely away from the Central crew, dumping baskets from all corners of the floor and "stealing" the dribble continually from the more experienced Mount Pleasant team. Gregorio was not heard of from then on, except for a lucky stab toward the end of the game.

Narrow Score to 28-26.

With but six minutes to go,

With but six minutes to go, Jimmy Corcoran, who was playing the game of his life, shot a beauty from midfloor, bringing the score to 28-26. Western made its mistake at this juncture by calling "time out," its fourth of the game, and with it went all possibility of winning the encounter. Buddy Nau was inserted into the line-up for Central to stem any further change in the tide and the Coggins clan took command of the preceedings with De Lisio and Keyser, starring. The game ended after a 9-point rally by the winners.

Bits Keyser, after a loyoff due to ineligibility for a year, came back strong to be the outstanding star of the tussle. The Central center was romping up and down the floor like an electric jack rabbit. He sunk six field goals and whipped three out of four foul shots for a total of 15 points. For Western Skat Stadtler and Jimmy Corcoran scintillated. Bill Forney, Western center, was in the thick of the melee throughout, and his play off the bank board was particularly well done.

Bethesda—C. C. Girls Beat Mount Rainier

Roosevelt Takes Seventh Straight

Noses Out Washington-Lee Tossers, 21 to 19.

The Washington-Lee High Generals suffered their second defeat from the Roosevelt basketers at Ballston yesterday afternoon, 21-19. It was the Rough Riders' seventh straight victory. At the end of the first half, only ten points, all as a result of foul shots, had been made. Both teams had a great number of chances to score, but were unsuccessful.

When the whistle blew for the end of the third quarter, the score was tied at 13-all. With two minutes to go and the Generals only 3 points behind, Ball sank a long shot from midfloor and Kaminsky followed with a foul to knot the count.

During the last quarter, both teams battled hard. The District boys stayed in the lead throughout by 2 or 3 points. Three or four long shots were attempted by the Generals, but were unsuccessful.

This game was the most thrilling game played on the Generals' court so far this season.

Hunter Ties for Second In Los Angeles Golf

Los Angeles, Jan. 9 (AP).—In an anticlimax finish to the Los Angeles Open Golf championship which MacDonald Smith won yesterday, Willie Hunter, of Culver City, Calif., today earned a tie for second place with Bill Mehlhorn, of Brooklyn.

Playing the last of two holes of his fourth round, which was halted last night because of darkness, Hunter collected par 4's for a 71, giving him a total of 288 for the 72 holes. Smith's winning score was 280.

George Von Elm, Los Angeles, who picked up at the sixteenth green last night, took bogey 5's to finish with a 73—289. This put him in a tie for fourth place with Johnny Revolta, of Milwaukee, and Willie Goggin, of San Francisco.

Willaman May Accept Texas Coach Job Today

Austin, Tex., Jan. 9 (AP).—Prof. W. E. Metzenthin, chairman of the athletic council at the University of Texas, said today he was hopeful against what he considered long odds that Sam Willaman, head football coach at Ohio State University, would come to Texas to discuss the position of head grid mentor at the Lone Star school.

The athletic chairman conferred by long-distance telephone with Willaman yesterday. He said Willaman showed interest in the Texas proposition and would give his decision tomorrow. Willaman was not enthusiastic about the salary offered.

Trade to Cincinnati O. K. With Hack Wilson

Martinsburg, W. Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.). It's allright with Hack Wilson if the Brooklyn Dodgers swap him to the Cincinnati Reds. Informed of a reported offer of himself and Sam Leslie for Chick Hafey and Jim Bottomley, Hack indicated such a deal would be entirely satisfactory.

Asked if he had been offered a 1934 contract by his present owners, he said, "No."

Moore Will Captain Hampden-Sydney Nine

Mampden Sydney, Va., Jan. 9 (AP). William E. Moore, of Scottsville, Va., was elected today as captain of the Hampden-Sydney 1934 baseball nine.

Dressen Improving.

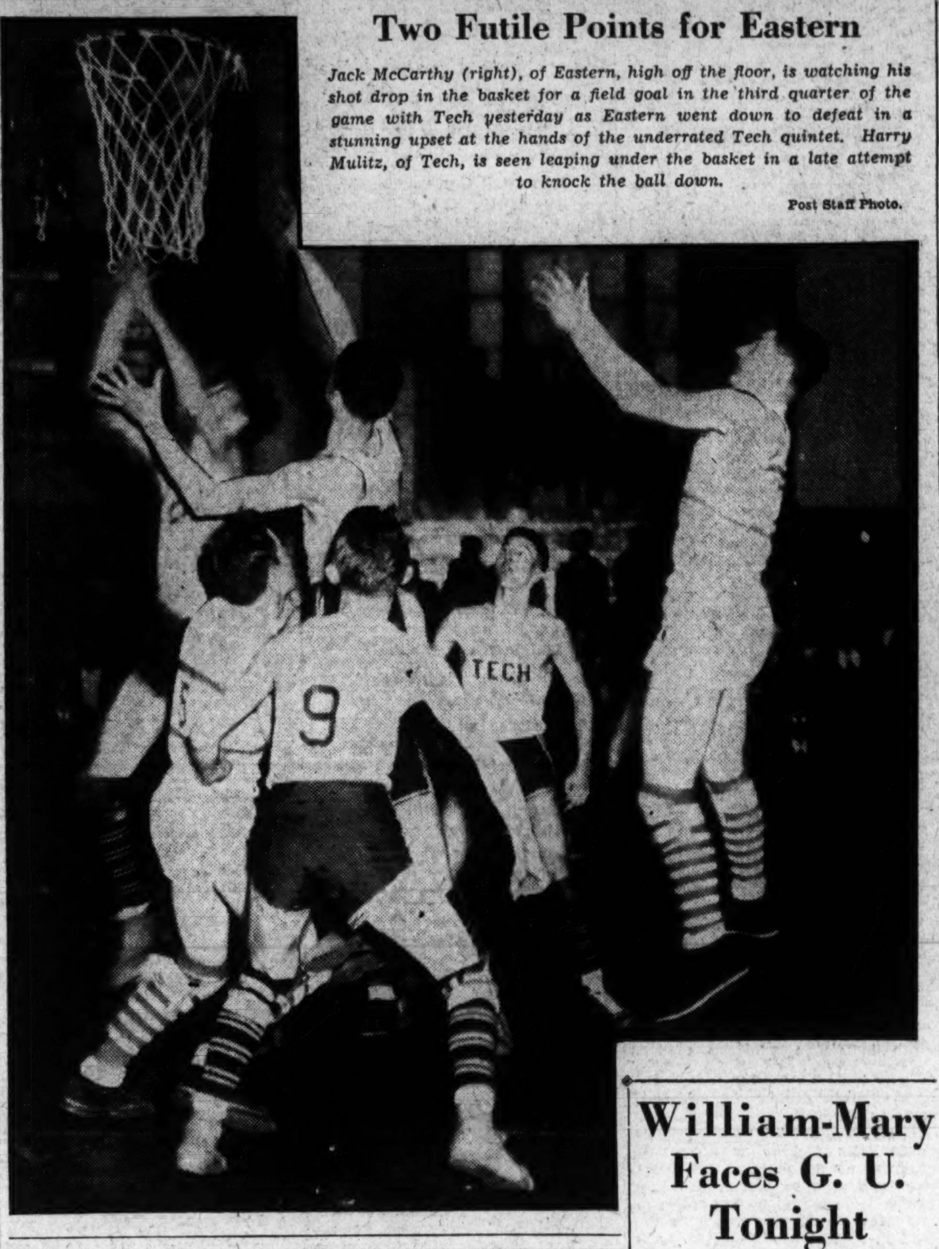
Houston, Jan. 9 (AP).—Charlie Dressen, manager of the Nashville Baseball Club of the Southern Association, was reported resting comfortably late today after a third blood transfusion.

The former major league player's condition, who is ill with typhoid fever, was believed to be slightly improved.

Columbus Buys Sweeney.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 9 (U.P.).—The Columbus Red Birds of the American Association today announced the purchase of First Baseman Bill Sweeney from Rochester. Sweeney went to Rochester from Toledo recently in a deal that also sent Art Shires to Toledo. Sweeney hit better than .300 last season and had a good fielding record.

Two Futile Points for Eastern



Jack McCarthy (right), of Eastern, high off the floor, is watching his shot drop in the basket for a field goal in the third quarter of the game with Tech yesterday as Eastern went down to defeat in a stunning upset at the hands of the underrated Tech quintet. Harry Mulitz, of Tech, is seen leaping under the basket in a late attempt to knock the ball down.

Homeward Bound Memories

By Paul Gallico.

WILLIAMS, Ark., Jan. 9 (Spl.).—Homeward bound—the roving reporter. A happy heart and head awhirl with memories—St. Louis, Dallas, El Paso, Tuscon, Los Angeles, Pasadena, San Francisco, football players, football coaches, tennis players, prize fighters, auto racers, golfers, trains, cars and aeroplanes, storm, flood and summer sun shine, Christmas eve on the Southern Pacific between Tucson and the Pacific, New Year's eve in bed with the grippe in Pasadena, New Year's Day in the Rose Bowl and Columbia's magnificent victory.

Personalities—Lou Little, Tiny Thornhill, Cliff Montgomery and Tony Matal, Bobby Grayson and Alustiza and all the gay, handsome, carefree giants of Stanford; lovely Helen Wills, Mac Smith and Leo Diegel and Wiffy Cox; Mack Gordon, the enormous, elephantine writer of sentimental songs; Skolsky, the mouse, and Mark Hellinger; Mark Kelly, the brilliant red-headed sports editor; Bill Henry and Braven Dyer, of the Los Angeles Times; Howard Jones, of the seamed face and quiet manner; the semihysterical Ted Husing, tennis with Bogart Rogers, Nunally Johnson and Harlan Thompson; golf with Jones and Dyer and Arbelbeide, the all-American end. People, places, things, events, games, fights, happenings, excitement. What a life! And how I love it.

Things I can't seem to forget—That mad game of touch football in Tucson, where the sports writers with the Columbia team, Bill Corum, Harry Grayson, uncle of the famous Bobby; Bill Henry, down from Los Angeles, and the writer, donned uniforms, chose up sides with the Columbia coaches, Little, Cordovano, McBride and Liston, and played touch football and they framed Corum, Grayson and Henry by giving them the ball and then missing tackles so that they had to run 90 yards through a broken field for touchdowns, which same being more than they had run altogether in the last 15 years.

The rehearsal, Christmas Eve in Doc Barrett's room at the Conquistador in Tucson, in which Frank, the colored porter of the Columbia special, the one who didn't want no part of that live lion up in the baggage car, was dressed in a Santa Claus suit, white whiskers and all and was being drilled by Barrett, who was sick in bed with the grip at the time, in his part as Santa Claus to the Columbia team and particularly Lou Little, whose mannerisms Barrett taught him to imitate. Frank was not an easy study. His memory had to be refreshed with gin.

My first glimpse of that Stanford team practicing on the turf of the Rose Bowl. Whew! Magnificent giants. And what football players! Wondering how our little team could ever cope with them on even terms and yet never doubting for a moment that somehow we would beat them, but having a lively curiosity as to just how this could happen. The night in El Paso when a gang of us, including a couple of most dignified members of the Columbia entourage, went to a little Mexican restaurant in No Man's Land, the disputed strip between El Paso and Juarez, and got magnificently binged on tequila and berregeata, sent over to Juarez for a Mexican table dancer who never showed up, and finally wound up teaching the little Mexican waitress to sing "Roar, Lion, Roar," and "Sans Souci," a delightfully disorderly party.

The days of the flood, the Rose Bowl completely under water, the cataracts sluicing down the sides of the stadium, the red fire engines pumping a losing battle, the stalled cars, the tons of mud and silt on the road, the landslides and the ceaseless cloudburst. The thrill of Monty galloping around the Stanford right end, Al Barabas almost loose for a touchdown in the first quarter, and the unforgetable picture of the dark-haired Austrian boy galloping around Stanford's right end, unsuspected and alone, for Columbia's touchdown on the hidden ball play that fooled one of the greatest football teams in the country.

Columbia's incredible stand on the 4-yard line, Richavich, Columbia tackle, smacking Bobby Grayson so hard that he broke two of his ribs and knocked out his uncle, Harry Grayson, who was sitting up in the press box, too. Monty's 63-yard kick from behind his own goal line that put the game on ice and made Stanford quit.

The magnificent flight to San Francisco over the Tehachapi Mountains, and then over a sea of clouds with the white-capped Sierras thrusting up through them like distant atolls of white corals. The drive down the water front, up Telegraph Hill, and out to the Golden Gate and the Presidio with Helen Wills Moody, a grave and charming Helen whose heart was filled with pride and love for the city that was her home, whose eye was for the color and the beauty of this gay and romantic city, and in whose breast there surged a tremendous and only half-spoken yearning to return to the tennis courts and wipe out the memory of something that rankled a little.

William-Mary Faces G. U. Tonight

Hargaden, Injured Star, Missing; Hoya Frosh Play Eastern.

GEORGETOWN tonight will make its first home stand since its opening game, at Tech High School, where it encounters William and Mary's cagers. At the same time, George Washington will be in New York to clash with St. John's of Brooklyn, rated second only to City College in Eastern basket ball circles. Georgetown's game starts at 8:45 o'clock, and the freshmen will play Eastern High School at 7:30 o'clock.

Ed Hargaden, who was injured in the Manhattan game, will be absen from the Hilltop line-up tonight, but he will be able to play against Carnegie Tech and West Virginia the latter part of the week in Conference games. Hargaden's eye was cut so badly that at first it was thought he would be out for the remainder of the season.

Coach Selects Starters.

Coach Fred Mesmer announced last night that "Sis" Esenstadt and Jerry O'Connor will start at forwards, with Bill Connors, at center, and Jack Crowley and Joe Corliss in the guard berths. William and Marry will have Lenback and Blaker, forwards; Wilson, center; and Franklin and Elmore, guards.

The Indians opened their season last night against Virginia and will spend the remainder of the week on the road.

Midland Nine Names O'Brien 1934 President

Midland, Md., Jan. 9 (Spl.).—At a meeting of baseball players and townspeople at the Town Hall, Patrick O'Brien was elected president of the Midland Indians, of the Cumberland and Georges Creek baseball League for the 1934 season.

Chalmer Winner was elected vice president; Gus Byrne, secretary-treasurer; Lawrence Dunn, business manager and Frank "Red" Burns, was reelected manager of the team.

Midland won the first half championship of the C. & C. C. League last season but was defeated by the Eckhart A. A., second half winners, in the post-season series for the league championship.

It was decided to hold a bazaar for the benefit of the baseball team on Friday and Saturday, January 26 and 27.

Tilden-Vines Net Match Tonight

$35,000 Gate Expected as Stars Meet First Time in Garden.

Meeting Called Natural With Tilden 2 to 1 Choice to Win.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP).—Big Bill Tilden had more worries today as a promoter than anything concerned with his role of the "old tennis master," in which he will oppose lanky Ellsworth Vines tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden in the young California's professional debut.

"Why, I can't even buy good seats for friends who are demanding them, let alone take care of all those who think they should have—ah, yes, Annie Oakleys, for this show," remarked Tilden, as he emerged from the smoke-filled headquarters of his business associate, Bill O'Brien.

$35,000 Gate Expected.

"Tickets for seats opposite the side-lines are positively a sell-out," smiled the tennis veteran. O'Brien added: "There's good prospects of a capacity house and gate receipts of more than $35,000, making this the top for any single tennis event, amateur or pro, in the United States."

Tilden has been using up plenty of energy on the "build-up" his biggest professional venture so far, but the veteran's backers still feel he is a 2 to 1 favorite to beat the 22-year-old Vines in their first match. Big Bill himself was highly pleased with his latest form in practice, but admitted his doubts as to how successfully he can handle the Californian's speed. Vines has been increasingly impressive in his workouts.

"Vines has nothing to lose against me this time," said Tilden. "Naturally he will put everything he can on the ball for this match, and I hope my experience and legs will carry me through the blast."

Calls Match "Mutual."

"I firmly believe tennis followers will see in Ellsworth an entirely different player from the boy whose game temporarily collapsed on amateur courts last season. He has undoubtedly regained confidence. I said a year ago this match was a 'Natural' and I still think so—from every angle."

The match, best three of five sets, inaugurates a rapid transcontinental tour for Vines and Tilden, as well as their professional team-mates, Vincent Richards and Bruce Barnes.

January 12, Philadelphia; 13, Washington; 15, Boston; 16, Providence; 18, Cleveland; 20, Chicago; 23, Denver; 26, San Francisco; 27, Oakland; 29, Los Angeles; 30, Pasadena.

They will return East in time to prepare for an international series with the French pair, Henri Cochet and Martin Plaa early in February.

Jefferson High Five Routed by Emerson

Emerson Institute's powerful quintet swamped Jefferson High School, of Richmond, in a free-scoring game yesterday afternoon on the Boys Club court, 66 to 36. Coach Harley Sanborn's charges chalked up 32 field goals and their opponents made 17.

Ollie Tipton and "Knocky" Thomas were high for the winners with 18 points each, but Mel Martin, of Jefferson, came through with 21.

Rockville High Loses, 32-16, to Friends Five

With Busby showing the way, Friends School defeated Rockville High School by a score of 32 to 16 yesterday on the Rockville court. Busby led both teams in scoring, sinking a half dozen field goals and a foul for 13 points. Rockville made a game fight, but could not match the smooth-working victors.

Cochet Sails for U. S.; Failed to List Matches

Buenos Aires, Jan. 9 (AP).—Henri Cochet, who has been making a professional tennis tour of South America with Martin Plaa, today boarded a train for Santiago en route to the United States, expressing disappointment at his failure to arrange matches in Argentina. The winter season has closed the tennis courts.

Cochet and Plaa, former holder of the world professional title, will play Ellsworth Vines, jr., and William T. Tilden 2d in a series of matches in the United States next month.

Mat 'Expose' Probed by Ring Body

Decides on No Decision; to Translate Hearing Into English.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP).—A most embarrassing situation developed today in the offices of the New York State Athletic Commission. There were charges that wrestling has not been conducted her on the level, and as many vehement denials.

But at the close of hearings htat brought out all the moguls of the mat game to take sides in the "expose," the commission adjourned for a week and issued the following communique:

"We have heard all the testimony. We have sent it out to be translated into English. When that is done we wil consider it. We will then announce our decision. The decision will be that there will be no decision. Meeting adjourned."

Accuses Shikat-Lewis.

As briefly as possible, the situation is as follows:

Jack Pfeffer charged in an expose published here recently that a match between Richard Shikat and Strangler Ed Lewis, which opened the Madison Square Garden Bowl on Long Island of 1932, was not on the level. This statement was received with great calm by the general public.

He said that when Jim Londos, then recognized heer as champion, refused to wrestle Shikat for the title and was forced out of New York by the commission, a new order was brought about in wrestling.

Shikat was recognized as champion because of Londos' actions, and a combination made up of Pfeffer, Jack Curley, Toots Mondt, Rudy Miller, Shikat and Lewis was formed, he said. Then, he charged, Mondt, who was Shikat's manager, received $16,000 from the rest for his grappler to transfer the title to Lewis, which, he said, was done in the bowl in May.

Londos Returns to Fold.

As the Pfeffer story goes, Londos departed under the direction of Tom Packs, of St. Louis, but evil times came upon the six-day partnership. Londos has returned to the fold. Jim Browning has supplanted Lewis as champion. All is peace among the warring factions, except that Pfeffer has been booted out into the cold. All this he wrote, and also swore under oath before the commission.

Westrope Rides First 1934 Jefferson Victor

New Orleans, Jan. 9 (AP).—Johnny Westrope, the turf's ranking jockey last year with 302 victories, won his first race of the Jefferson Park meeting today when he brought H. G. Knott's Happy Lad home in front of a large field of platers in the 1 1-16 mile feature.

Shooting the 7-year-old son of Ladkin into the lead in the final sixteenth of a mile, Westrope sent his mount driving past the judges a half length in front of A. G. Tarn's consistent Abstain. George Collins' Thistle Fyrn was third. The winner paid $8 for $2.

Abstain was out in front to the head of the stretch, but Westrope always kept Happy Lad in closest pursuit. When the little Montana jockey gave the word, the ultimate winner quickly bounded to the front and then managed to hold his advantage in a furious drive.

District Chess Champ Plays at J. C. C. Tonight

I. S. Turover, retired undefeated District chess champion, will meet all comers in simultaneous play at the Jewish Community Center at 8:15 tonight. Turover is recognized as an international master player by virtue of successful participation in master tournaments and international cable matches between Washington and London.

A fee of $1 will be levied on those who wish to play against Turover and proceeds will be used to purchase additional chess equipment for the Center. Prospective contestants are urged, if possible, to bring their own boards and chessmen. The club's quarters will be thrown open to those who wish to witness the play.

Tank Meet Delayed.

Yale Favors Michigan Staff

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP).—Developments today pointed strongly toward the engagement of Harry G. Kipke, of Michigan, 1922 all-American half back and present head coach of the Wolverines, as the next head coach of the Yale gridiron squad, despite strong administrative feeling that T. A. D. Jones, famous "Old Blue," should be recalled to take charge.

Kipke and his entire Michigan staff will be the choice in a precedent-shattering hake-up at New Haven, if the university's executive authorities accept the majority wishes of the specially selected football committee now conferring with Malcolm Farmer, director of athletics, in New York.

Six to 2 Against Jones.

The sessions of this committee of eight members, including Farmer, have been held in secret so far, but it was learned authoritatively today that it stood 6 to 2 against the reenstatement of Jones and in favor of a complete break with tradition, for the best interests of Eli football, by engaging a conspicuously well equipped "outsider."

Five of the six proponents of a "clean house," it was said, favored the selection of Kipke, while the other suggested Ossie Solem, now head coach at the University of Iowa.

Meanwhile, at New Haven, official confirmation of negotiations with Ivan Williamson, captain and star end of the 1932 Michigan team, led observers to believe that this prospective engagement as freshman coach for 1934 at Yale would be the forerunner of the hiring of Michigan's entire coaching staff.

Paper Names Kipke and Aids.

"Kipke will come to Yale, along with his chief aids, Jack Blott, Franklin Cappon and Wally Leber," said the New Haven Courier-Journal. "Williamson is slated to be installed as the coach of the freshmen."

Pending another meeting of the football committee here tonight or tomorrow, Yale men understood no definite commitments had been made as to the next head coach, although it was certain that Reginald D. Root, the youthful graduate who had charge of the 1933 squad, will not be reengaged.

Athletic Director Farmer, it was said, held steadfastly to a belief that a Yale man, preferably Jones, should be picked. In this he was reported to share the view of James Rowland Angell, the university president, and reflect the opinions of a number of the most influential and wealthy alumni, notably Edward S. Harkness.

Despite such influences, as well as the weight of tradition, a majority of Old Eli graduates appear definitely to have swung over to the conviction that a complete "new deal," effective this year, is essential to recouping Yale's sagging football fortunes.

Central Swimmers Beat Baltimore Poly

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 9 (Spl.).—Central High School's swimming team defeated Baltimore Polytechnic Institute's team this afternoon, 49 to 26. Joe LaSalle starred for the Central High swimmers, winning the 100-yard breast stroke in 1:20 and being anchor man on the triumphant relay team.

100-yard breast stroke—Won by Hucht (B.); second, Burns (C.); third, Kundahl (C.). Time, 1:20.1.

40-yard free style—Won by La Salle (C.); second, Morris (C.); third, Pardew (B.). Time, 0:20.3.

220-yard free style—Won by Hauser (C.); second, Latrobe (B.); third, Shultz (B.). Time, 2:56.2.

100-yard back stroke—Won by Fitzhugh (C.); second, Thacker (C.); third, McCready (B.). Time, 1:18.9.

100-yard free style—Won by Kelley (C.); second, Patterson (B.); third, Clomel (C.). Time, 1:03.5.

Fancy diving—Won by Shoemaker (B.); second, Tarbett (C.); third, Shipley (C.). Points by Shoemaker, 59.6.

Perry Werden Dies; Was Home Run King

Minneapolis, Jan. 9 (AP).—Perry Werden, 63, who established an unofficial record of 45 home runs in 1895 while playing with the Minneapolis club of the old Western League, died today of heart disease.

Werden, in 1890 and 1891, played with the old Baltimore Orioles when that team was comprised of such stars as John McGraw, Hughey Jennings and Steve Brodie.

Three years later Werden performed with the Louisville club, then in the National League, numbering among his teammates Hans Wagner.

Werden at times was associated as player, coach or manager with New Orleans and Memphis, the St. Louis Browns, the Washington National League Club, and Indianapolis.

Fredrick Captures Feature at Tropical Park, Halting Parade of Long-Shots

Porter Rides Choice to Victory

Designate and Dancing Mack Pay Better Than 20 to 1.

TROPICAL PARK, Fla., Jan. 9 (AP).—After four straight long shots had accounted for all the money and put form players in anything but a rosy mood, along came that nearly unbeatable combination of the B. B. Stable, Trainer Hirsch Jacobs and Apprentice Earl Porter to break the ice in the fifth race here today. The staggering talent flocked to Frederick in the Oklawaha Purse and only after a hard-fought stretch duel did Porter urge the $3.30 for $2 shot to the front to score by a length. The Shandon Farm's North Mill was a full eight lengths before L. H. Miner's General LeJeune for the place.

Numerous heavy showers had the track in muddy condition, which seemed to play havoc with the figure experts. Frederick needed 1:14 to negotiate the six furlongs distance.

North Mill Threatens.

North Mill gave backers of the favorite a few chills up and down the spine before conceding the spoils to the B. B. representative. Porter allowed Frederick to run head and head with North Mill until approaching the far turn. Then Porter eased back and North Mill darted into a daylight advantage. However, Frederick moved after the pacemaker at the turn for home and finally wore him down under pressure. General LeJeune had weak contention for the show.

Don "Long Shot" Meade lived up to his reputation in the first race when he lifted Designate over the line a nose winner at $45.60 for $2. Twidgets took the place from Curling by two lengths. Chastity, heavily backed, never could get up in the bad going. Designate had plenty of speed but it took all his courage to maintain a slight advantage over Twidgets.

Dancing Mack Pays $48.60.

Another long shot won by a nose in the second event, Dancing Mack getting up in the final stride to return $48.60. Two Tricks, also lightly regarded, beat Plumage by nearly two lengths for second money. Dancing Mack, never far from the pace, battled all through the stretch with Two Tricks and had to be soundly whipped to make the grade. Blackmock and Hernando drew most of the play. The former was lost in the going, while Hernando tired from forcing the early pace.

The parade of upset winners continued with the running of the third contest, which Chimney Sweep captured by a length and a half. The gelding was a 13-to-1 chance. The winner beat the gate by plenty of daylight and, under Coucci's hustling ride, raced clear of the field throughout. Lauretta Nash, with few supporters, made up a world of ground in the last quarter-mile to nab the place from the Bailiff by more than a length.

Fourth Long Shot Wins.

The fourth race brought no relief to the talent. Darkling earned the purse after a drive with Quick Step, the MaCaw filly having a length and a half to spare at odds of $31 for $2. Bichloride was a distanced third. Boilee and Just Fun, carrying most of the money, followed noses apart. Quick Step opened up a three-length lead, disposing of Gibby's Choice. Darling, coming with a rush from the head of the stretch, ran over the pacemaker in the last furlong.

Any airplane, in fact anything the speed and direction of which can be controlled, can be properly called a dirigible. The air craft which we commonly call the dirigible came to be called this to distinguish it from the free balloon—thus it was a dirigible balloon.

* * * *

Ella Ewing, the "Missouri Giantess," was born at La Grange, Mo., the only child of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Ewing, in 1873. At birth she weighed 6½ pounds, but at the age of 12 her abnormal growth was apparent. Even then she wore a size 12 man's shoe.

At 18 she made her first public appearance. Miss Ewing continued growing until she was 24, reaching a height of 8 feet 4 inches. Her shoes were then size 24; they were 18 inches long.

According to D. J. Buford, who was for many years her manager, it took 40 yards of silk to make a dress for her such as she is wearing in the above drawing—enough cloth to clothe a dozen modern maidens. It took two strong men to lift her up from the water after she was baptized.

She traveled with various shows, made fairs and other attractions where she was billed as the tallest woman in the world. Failing health later forced her to retire on her farm in Missouri, where she died in 1912 at the age of 39 years.

V. P. I. Wrestlers Prep for 5 Meets

Three Lettermen Return From 1933 Team.

Blacksburg, Jan. 9 (Spl.).—With a new coach at the helm, Virginia Tech's varsity wrestlers are preparing for a schedule of five dual meets and the annual Southern Conference tournament. The grand scramble for conference team and individual championships will take place here in Memorial Hall, March 2 and 3.

Only three lettermen are back from the '33 outfit—Capt. Nelson Waldrop, of Beaverdam, who holds the 175-pound title, and Rowland Fisher, 155, and Joe Gibbs, 135.

Tom Hall, a Richmonder, who loomed as a star last year, looks like a comer at 115 or 125 pounds. Bill Blair, of Chatham, is going great in the daily drills and looks to be a worthy successor to George Allison, star 145-pounder last year.

Others who are showing promise are M. J. Bogese, E. A. Henry, J. C. Price, W. Harvey, B. H. Adkins. Newcomers include a quartet of hustling matmen comprising B. M. Priode, W. Catlin, T. J. Carroll and Russell Minter, the latter a Blacksburg boy, who won every bout in freshman togs a year ago.

The schedule: January 20, North Carolina, at home; February 3, Davidson, at home; 10, North Carolina State, at Raleigh; 17, V. M. I., at Lexington; 24, W. and L., at Lexington; March 2-3, Southern Conference tourney at Blacksburg.

Dear Al: Tropical Park Race Track, Jan. 9.

Then came the mud. At least that's a pretty fair excuse for the fact that I could chase home only one winner during the afternoon. And that was an odds-on favorite. I missed Mike tonight when I dragged out the mud books and started digging for tomorrow. So I wrote him a letter and told him that the first day I was shutout I would let him return to the Bennings camp. You know I banished him, believing he was the jinx. I wonder who officials at this track believe has his fingers crossed on them. The people are here each day in goodly numbers, but the mutuel play is far below normal. Some say that the big racing money will not show up until Hialeah opens.

BILL

First race—Polydenna has as much right winning this hop, skip and jump as the others in this field of baby racers, although one guess is as good as another in this kind of a test. Merrybud and Irle Victory to fill out the money picture.

Second race—Dornoch carried on here where he left off at Charles Town and appears to have another winning end of a purse within his grasp. Abode Post for the place and Phantom Legion for the show The last named will favor the going.

Third race—Baboo is dangerous in this field due to the distribution of weights. Gets in with 105 and is crying to run, I've been told. Battling Knight and Tevas Knight heavily weighted, like off tracks and will be ready to battle it out if the top one makes mistakes.

Fourth race—Sandwrack was beaten two heads the last time. Fits in this field nicely and, as his name implies, likes the mud. Surety must tote 115 pounds but has to be considered. Village Vamp for the rest.

Fifth race—Chatmoss gets a nine pound pull in the weights from Monel and I like them in the order named. The former is reported fit and ready. Charlie K and Stroll Along, coupled, are as dangerous as usual. However, I like Chatmoss on the off course.

Sixth race—Chrysmute might prefer a longer route but comes to me highly recomended by the clockers. Showed me a lot of speed up at Bowie last fall. May get home here at sizeable odds. King's Minstrel and Inflate for the other awards.

Seventh race—Arab should find the slow going to his liking in this small field. Elizabeth Fox and Papyrograph to take care of the others.

By a Staff Correspondent.

RICHMOND, Jan. 9.—Proposals to legalize horse racing in Virginia took definite form tonight when a track bill was drafted for submission to the General Assembly this week. Great demand for revival of the "Sport of Kings" with pari-mutuel betting was reported by the author of the measure, Delegate Wilbur C. Hall, Loudoun County, chairman of the House finance committee. At the same time, reformers combined forces in hopes of killing the bill. Hall contended racing would yield the State between $225,000 to $750,000 annually. He said new sources of revenue were sorely needed.

One-fourth of the income would be divided among county fair associations throughout the State, regardless of whether tracks were located within their borders. The remainder would go to general State funds.

Would Tax Admissions.

Instead of receiving a percentage of pari-mutuel machine wagers—a practice general in other States permitting racing—Virginia, under the Hall bill, would benefit by a tax on admissions. Such a plan, the sponsor declared, would eliminate commercialization evils.

A racing commission of three members would be appointed by the Governor. The board would be clothed with wide powers, including jurisdiction over selection of tracks and authority to remove or suspend track officials for misconduct.

The number of tracks would be limited to three. One of the plants has been suggested for the Washington area with Virginia Beach in line for a second and the third indefinite.

Commission members would be paid $10 a day while performing official duties. They would be required to prevent races for purses of less than $600. Tracks of at least a mile in length were contemplated.

Hall said the primary prpose was to promote breeding of thoroughbreds.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DESIGNATE, $45.60, $23.10, $10.70; TWIDGETS, $6.50, $5.00; CURLING, $7.50.

DESIGNATE liked the muddy going, broke fast, showed good speed, saved ground and held on gamely under good handling. TWIDGETS moved up with a rush, raced along with the pace and ran a game race. CURLING dropped back around turn, but was gaining at end. CHASTITY broke slow and did not like the going. DOLICE ran a fair race.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start poor. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:33. Off at 2:34. Winner, A. G. Weston's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DANCING MACK, $48.60, $20.90, $15.20; TWO TRICKS, $15.40, $12.50; PLUMAGE, $7.60.

DANCING MACK, at home in the going, moved up very fast turning out of the back stretch, caught TWO TRICKS at the sixteenth pole and outgamed her at end. TWO TRICKS displayed keen speed and held on gamely. PLUMAGE closed a big gap to gain the show. HERNANDO ran well for three furlongs, then dropped out of it. PREMEDITATE quit badly. BLACKMOCK did not like the going.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start bad. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:03½. Off at 3:05½. Winner, Greentree Stable's ch. g. (3), by Dominant—Fresnay. Trained by M. Lilly. Value to winner, $360; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $15. Time, 1:15 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHIMNEY TOP, $28.00, $10.10, $8.00; LAURETTA NASH, $32.70, $17.40; THE BALIFF, $6.90.

CHIMNEY TOP beat the gate by several lengths, opened winning lead and just galloped along in front. LAURETTA NASH broke slow and suffered early interference, but came to the outside and finished fast. THE BALIFF, well up all the way, ran good race. BICKERING was unable to untrack herself in the going. CANONAZO ran fair race. HASTY BELLE stopped badly. REGIUS had early speed.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 3:36½. Off at 3:37. Winner, E. Craigie's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DARKLING, $31.00, $10.20, $5.10; QUICK STEP, $5.70, $3.60; BICHLORIDE, $6.80.

DARKLING, badly outrun in the early part, began to close ground in run down back stretch, circled field close with a rush and won going away. QUICK STEP opened wide gap early, but tired suddenly in last sixteenth. BICHLORIDE liked the going and ran a much improved race. BOLILEE closed a big gap. JUST FUN was unable to extend himself at any part of the journey. GIBBY'S CHOICE tired chasing the pace.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $600; claiming. The Oklahoma. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 4:08. Off at 4:10½. Winner, B. B. Stable's blk. g. (5), by The Porter—Slow and Easy. Trained by H. Jacobs. Value to winner, $425; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:14.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FREDRICK, $3.30, $2.40, $2.20; NORTH MILL, $2.80, $2.70; GENERAL LEJEUNE, $3.00.

FREDRICK was on the inside in early part, but turning out of back stretch, Porter eased him back and came around NORTH HILL. He took lead at sixteenth pole and won going away. NORTH MILL displayed excellent speed in the going and held on gamely. GENERAL LEJEUNE came from far back in stretch. LONGFORD ran a good race. HAPPY ANNE and SCOUT MASTER did not like the going.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:37½. Off at 4:38½. Winner, B. B. Stable's ch. g. (6), by Waygood—Queen of the Water. Trained by H. Jacobs. Value to winner, $425; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:48.

MARCASITE	106½	1	1	3^{1}	5	5	5	5	Jones	2.90

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WATERWAY, $5.10, $3.20, out; SOUTHARD, $5.90, out; DON GUZMAN, out.

WATERWAY got away fast, was rated off the pace for six furlongs, then moved up, raced DON GUZMAN down, drew away and won nicely in hand. SOUTHARD made a determined bid around turn, but weakened badly in stretch. DON GUZMAN jumped away to a fast lead, showed good speed for seven furlongs, then tired. FIELD GOAL was never a contender. MARCASITE did not like the going and dropped out of contention early.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place easily. Went to post at 5:08. Off at 5:08½. Winner, G. K. Allen's ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—COLUMN RIGHT, $9.50, $5.10, $4.50; EVERFAIR, $5.10, $3.10; ZEMBLA, $5.10.

COLUMN RIGHT, much the best in the mud, was sent to the front with a rush and, rated along, easily held race safe. EVERFAIR made a determined bid around turn and was next best. ZEMBLA closed a big gap. GRACIAS had no mishaps. NINERA had plenty of early speed. SWINWOOD was badly outrun.

3 V. M. I. Teams To See Action This Week

Tar Heel Five Guest on Friday; Old Line Boxers on Saturday Card.

LEXINGTON, Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.). Three V. M. I. teams will get into action on the home floor in Ninety-four Hall this week. On Friday night, the Cadets will entertain North Carolina's basket ball team. Boxing with Maryland and wrestling with Davidson will form the double attraction on Saturday night. The events on both nights will start at 7:15.

The Cadet boxers and wrestlers will be meeting their first opposition of the season, while the cagers will be trying to redeem their defeat at the hands of a polished St. John's quintet last week. Coach Bill Raftery will send the same boys into the game who played brilliantly in spots against the Johnnies.

Travers, Heerdt Guards.

Capt. Stumpy Travers, who was slightly injured in the opener, and Emmett Heerdt will team as guards. Bill Downey and Irvin Smith will be the forwards. Charlie Hancock, who was V. M. I.'s stand-out player against the Annapolis club, will jump center.

Coach Al Martin is combing the barracks for a light heavyweight, but otherwise the Cadet boxing line-up is pretty well set. Willis Caedo will take care of the 115-pound class, and George Curfman will be the featherweight entry unless Selden McMillen can make the weight, which appears doubtful. Capt. George Bain will be the V. M. I. 135-pounder.

Either Curtis Burton or Jack Baker will enter the welterweight division, and Jim Troutt will be the 155-pounder. Bill Tyree will enter either the 165 or 175-pound class, leaving the heavyweight class to Charlie Oatley.

Good Wrestling Talent.

Coach Mooney Landis will have two wrestlers for each weight ready for the Davidson Wildcats. The first man named in each class will probably get the call: 118, Charlie DeCamps and Bill Seay; 126, Winfred Holt and Ed Bailey; 135, Charlie Lathrop and Jim Sherman; 145, Gene Venable and George Travis; 155, Bill White and Bob Rust; 165, Bill Currence and Charlie Stubbs; 175, Capt. Charlie Dorrier and Ernest Farley; unlimited, John Burgess and Jim Vanderslice.

Moundsville Mayor Potomac Grid Coach

Keyser, W. Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.).—Paul Ruble, who served as athletic director at Potomac State College, Keyser, from 1922 to 1925, and now the mayor of Moundsville, W. Va., it is announced, will return to his first love—football.

Not only will Mr. Ruble continue to act as mayor of the town but he will coach the Moundsville High School athletic teams starting September 1, the appointment having been made by the Marshall County Board of Education. He will replace Charles Edwards, former Pitt quarter back.

While at Potomac State, Ruble served as aid to George Parrish as line coach of football teams. He also coached baseball at State. Paul learned his football at Wheeling High and later starred at Wash-Jeff College. He has been active as an athletic official for the past several years.

Stocks Resume Climbing in Quiet Trading

Extreme Gains Trimmed in Late Dealing; Sales, 879,932 Shares.

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—Stocks improved quietly today. Extreme gains were shaded in the later dealings, but the list, on the basis of the averages, managed to retain a net advance of almost a point. Trading was more active than yesterday, although transfers totaled only 879,932 shares.

Tobacco and communication issues were strong and considerable business was done in rails and motors. The first-named group rallied briskly on news of higher cigarette prices, rising 1 to 6 points before profit-taking reduced the range. Apparently a sizable short interest had been built up in that division.

American Telephone climbed more than 3 points. Western Union, postal preferred and International Telephone contributed to the showing of wire company issues, though their final prices were under the highs. Rather isolated strength was noted in other sections, notably the thinly traded Gulf States Steel shares, up 3 or 4 points, and Kansas City Southern Railway equities which rose about 3. J. C. Penney was helped by the $1 extra dividend.

Chrysler's Gave Up Gains.

Chrysler's early gain of a point was more than surrendered, but General Motors and Nash firmed. Auburn traded briskly, losing a major fraction net.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, New York Central, Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, General Electric, Westinghouse, Du Pont, American Smelting, Case, Seaboard Oil and Consolidated Gas gained franctions to approximately a point on the day.

Aside from the cigarette price increase, the market had little business news to work on and dealings seemed largely of the professional variety. Covering shorts found offerings scarce, with the result that prices in selected groups rose easily. The short interest itself is currently small.

Expectations on Loadings.

Last week's freight loadings on railroads thus far reporting indicate improvement over both a week and a year ago and estimates of the probable total place it as much as 50,000 cars over the last week of December.

The Department of Commerce noted that the decline during the earlier part of last month was less than seasonal; it interpreted this and other basic indices as indicating that the production decline which started with the collapse of speculative markets in July, 1933, had ended.

Strength of communication shares on the stock exchange started in American Telephone, suggesting that the company's November earnings figures had impressed the reputedly numerous holders of the short position in the stock, and that traders inferred other wire systems had also enjoyed an upturn in business. Telephone's next dividend meeting comes around the middle of February.

Wool Market.

Boston, Jan. 9 (A.P.)—(U. S. Department of Agriculture).—A scattered quiet business was transacted in 64s and finer territory wools. Sales were mostly very moderate in volume. Strictly combing graded 64s and finer territory wools were quoted at 84@86 cents, scoured basis, with very little of this class moving. Demand ran more to shorter staple wools. Graded French combing 64s and finer territory wools moved occasionally at 81@83 cents, scoured basis, while graded clothing staple brought 78@80 cents.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

By Ralph West Robey.

Some of the points made in the annual business review of the American Federation of Labor are almost startling in the degree by which they differ from impressions that have been created by governmental statements. Outstanding in this particular are the figures on employment. Only a little less significant are the statistics given on the actual purchasing power of labor today as compared with a year ago.

With regard to employment the American Federation of Labor says that "1,800,000 men who were out of work last year-end now have positions in industry." In addition, "4,600,000 have temporary work under the CWA, the PWA and the CCC." This gives a total, then, of 6,400,000 receiving wages that last year were out of work. Quite obviously, however, the vast majority of these can not be considered as employed under ordinary standards.

In other words, those receiving wages under the Civil Works Administration and the Civil Conservation Corporation must be classed as individuals who are on an Americanized dole. It is quite possible, too, that a substantial proportion of those receiving wages from the PWA deserve to be classified in the same way.

Real Gain Is 2,000,000 Rather Than 6,400,000.

The real gain in employment, then, instead of being the 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 that is given by governmental spokesmen, is, say, only 2,000,000, according to the estimates of the American Federation of Labor. Whether these figures are correct, I have no way of knowing, but it seems to me there is no question that in counting gains in employment one must leave out those who are, in effect, on a dole.

In connection with the real purchasing power of labor the figures are equally surprising. In November, 1932, the average weekly income of workers in the "16 chief producing and distributing industries" was $20.53. In November, 1933, this had increased 3 cents, or to $20.56. Meanwhile, the report emphasizes, there had been a substantial increase in the cost of living.

Specifically, according to it, food prices have advanced 7 per cent, while the prices of clothing and furnishings have increased 21 per cent. The report concludes, therefore, that "workers' real buying power is considerably lower" today than it was a year ago. It is pointed out that those who got jobs during 1933 are better off, but "those who had jobs at more than a minimum wage have lost ground."

At the same time, there has been a substantial increase in mass buying power during the year. Industry has increased wage payments, according to the American Federation of Labor figures, by $243,000,000 a month. The CWA has added another $240,000,000 and the PWA has contributed $60,000,000 a month, making a total increase of $543,000,000.

Improvement Shown by Considering Aggregates.

If one considers labor in the aggregate, therefore, rather than by individuals, it is clear that there has been a distinct improvement within the past year. Even a gain of only 2,000,000 in private employment is a substantial increase. When one adds to this the aid which has been extended by the Government it is easy to understand why we have enjoyed a substantial increase in purchasing power and an increase in the volume of business activity as compared with the end of 1932.

The American Federation of Labor, nevertheless, quite properly has not let such gains blind it to certain dangers that are ahead. Its main worry in this connection is the fear that the Government may turn to the printing presses. This, it emphasizes at great length, would hurt the position of labor by taking money from the workers and giving it to the wealthy. It urges in strong language, accordingly, that the Government stay clear of this easy method of raising funds.

Unfortunately, however, the American Federation of Labor apparently does not realize that it is just as possible to have inflation on the basis of bank credit as it is on the basis of paper money, and that both would be equally damaging to the position of labor. In fighting for the welfare of our working classes, therefore, the officers of the American Federation of Labor should not limit themselves to a campaign against the start of the printing presses, but should turn their attention to an incredible spending program being financed by credit inflation.

Bonds Display Hopeful Tone; Close Higher

National Obligations Drop; Sales Volume Rises to $15,983,000.

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—Corporation loans displayed a more hopeful tone today, in restricted trading, but the picture was somewhat marred by the further heaviness of United States Government securities.

Sales totaled $15,983,000, par value, with Federal transactions accounting for about $6,000,000 of this aggregate. The average for 60 domestic corporate issues recovered three-tenths of a point.

While there was some support accorded the Governments in late dealings most of the Libertys and Treasurys finished around their lows of the day. Declines in this list ranged from 2-32 to 23-32 of a point.

On Improving List.

As National obligations dropped, the secondary rails, utilities, industrials and the majority of foreign bonds recorded their best improvement in some days.

Impetus to the recovery in the domestic section was attributed partly to the firmness of stocks and to continued optimistic reports concerning business and industry generally.

Rails, up 1 to 2 or more points, included some liens of Alleghany Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian Pacific, St. Paul, Rock Island, Erie, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Southern and Wabash. Issues of Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Chesapeake & Ohio and similar roads were steady, but not in unusual demand.

On Active List.

Among the more active utilities and industrials up 1 to more than 2 were bonds of Bethlehem Steel, Gulf States Steel, International Telephone, Lackawanna Steel, Louisville Gas, Postal Telegraph and Youngstown Sheet & Tube.

While German dollar loans registered losses of 1 to as much as 6 points, largely attributed to profit taking, there were a number of outstanding advances in the foreign division. Among these were Royal Dutch 4s, up 6; Rotterdam City 6s, up 5¼; Copenhagen City 4½s and 5s, up 3 and 3½, respectively, Antwerp City 5s, up 5½; Brisbane City 5s, up 3, and Batavia 4½s, up 5⅝. Other gains of 1 to 2 or more were held by issues of Australia, Denmark, Dutch East Indies, Norway, New South Wales, Japan and some of the French cities. As of January 1, the stock exchange reported, there were 1,568 listed bond issues with a total market value of $34,861,038,409. On December 1, there were 1,564 issues listed with a total market value of $34,179,882,418. The par value of the list on January 1, was $41,828,968,115, while on December 1, the par value totaled $42,010,304,065.

Stocks—Prices improved in quiet trading. Extreme gains were shaded in later dealings, but the list averaged nine-tenths of a point up. Sales increased slightly to 879,932 shares.

Bonds—Corporate loans displayed a more hopeful tone; national obligations dropped. Sales volume increased to $15,983,000.

Curb—Specialty issues pushed the curb to higher ground in firm trading. Gains were mostly small, but tire and rubber stocks soared 11 points. Sales volume increased to 150,000 shares.

Wheat—Enlarged buying, due to code outlook and unfavorable crop reports, sent prices higher. Corn and oats joined the advance. Wheat closed firm, ⅝ to 1 cent up. May wheat sold at 85; July, at 83½.

Cotton — Prices made further small gains in a fairly active market. March sold at 10.76. The general market advanced 4 to 5 points. January sold at 10.69.

Rubber — Crude rubber futures closed dull, 1 to 3 points higher. January sold at 8.76; March, at 8.96.

Gold—Bar gold in the United States was unchanged and stood at $34.06 per ounce. It sold in London at 126 shillings and 8½ pence.

Dollar—The United States dollar advanced again on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $5.05¼ to the English pound; 6.10¼ cents to the French franc, and 37.07 cents to the German mark.

Riggs Bank Votes Regular $2 Dividend

Following the regular monthly meeting of the board of directors of Riggs National Bank, held Monday, Robert V. Fleming, president, stated the board had declared a quarterly dividend of $2 per share, payable January 15, 1934, to stockholders of record December 30, 1933, and a further quarterly dividend of $2 per share, payable April 16, 1934, to stockholders of record March 31, 1934.

At a meeting of the board of directors a regular semiannual dividend of $1.80 per share was declared on the total outstanding stock of the Terminal Refrigerating & Warehousing Corporation, payable January 10 to stockholders of record January 8, 1934.

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—Directors of J. C. Penney Co. yesterday declared an extra dividend of $1 a share, payable January 30 to stock of record January 20. A statement by the directors said the payment was made because of the general upward trend of business.

A special dividend of 25 cents a share was ordered by directors of American Cyanamid Co. on the Class "A" and Class "B" stocks, payable February 1 to stock of record January 19. These are the first payments since July, 1930, when quarterly payments of 40 cents a share were made. A statement by the company said establishment of a dividend policy for the future would not be attempted at this time.

Directors of American Smelting Co. declared a dividend of $2.50 a share on the 7 per cent first preferred stock, payable March 1 to stocks of record February 2. Three months ago directors resumed declaration of dividends on this stock, on which there is an accumulation of $8 a share.

The Hat Corporation of America, for the fiscal year ended October 31, last, reports a profit of $222,178, equal to $6.02 a share on the preferred stock issued. The company started on May 1, 1932, after acquiring the business and assets of Cavanagh Dobbs, Inc., and the business and certain of the assets of Knox Hat Co., Inc. A loss of $326,444 was suffered during the first six months' operation. As of October 31, last, the consolidated balance sheet showed current assets of $2,817,167, of which $476,582 was cash. Current liabilities aggregated $233,515.

Net income of the Lee Rubber & Tire Corporation for the fiscal year ended October 31 totaled $260,607, equal to more than $1 a share on the capital stock, compared with $150,032, or 55 cents a share, in the previous year.

Directors of the corporation have declared a dividend of 20 cents a share, payable February 1 to stock of record January 15.

Net loss of $75,799 was shown by the Peerless Corporation, formerly the Peerless Motor Car Corporation, in its annual statement issued today, covering operations for the fiscal year ended September 30, 1933.

The corporation recently announced its entrance into the brewing business and changed its name. In a letter to stockholders, J. A. Bohannon, president, stated the company's Cleveland plant was being remodeled and equipped to brew ale, and operations in this line were expected to be started around February 1, 1934.

Cleveland, Jan. 9.—Directors of the City Ice & Fuel Co. have declared the regular dividend of $1.62½ per share on the preferred stock, payable March 1, 1934, to stockholders of record February 15, 1934. Regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents per share on the company's common stock also was declared, payable March 31, 1934, to stockholders of record March 15, 1934.

Curb's Prices Pushed Higher By Specialties

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—Specialty shares held the center of attraction in quiet but rather firm trading on the crub exchange today. Many advances of fractions to around a point were recorded at the close by utilities, metals and alcohols.

Although comparatively inactive, General Tire & Rubber soared 11 points at one time, closing at 73, up 8. Bunker Hill & Sullivan showed a net gain of 5, after getting up 8. Sherwin Williams finished 1¾ higher. Axton Fisher responded with a similar advance, coincident with the advance in cigarette prices.

Oils were a shade irregular. Miscellaneous issues closing fractions to a point higher included Aluminum Co. of America, American Cyanamid "B," Commonwealth Edison, Hiram Walker and Newmont. Parker Rust Proof reacted 2.

Transfers approximated 150,000 shares, compared with 141,000 yesterday.

Dr. McClellan Joins Board of Riggs National

Dr. William McClellan, president Potomac Electric Power Co., elected a director of Riggs National Bank yesterday, was born in Philadelphia in 1872 and is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania. He has had wide experience as an electrical engineer, first with the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co. from 1900 to 1905 and with Westinghouse, Church, Kerr & Co. from 1905 to 1907.

During the succeeding 20 years he was a member of the engineering firms of Campion-McClellan Co., Paine, McClellan & Campion and McClellan & Junkerfield, serving also as consulting engineer for the New York Public Service Commission from 1911 to 1913, and as dean of the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania from 1916 to 1919.

His experience has included the operating management of electric power companies as well as construction and other phases of electrical engineering. In 1925 he was selected by President Coolidge as a member of the Muscle Shoals Commission.

Since 1929, Dr. McClellan has been vice president of the Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation and in that capacity has served as consultant during the last few years for Potomac Electric Power Co. He is a past president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Cotton Gains Again Under Trade Buying

January Closes at 10.69 as General Market Rises 4 to 5 Points.

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—Cotton made further small gains today in a fairly active market. Prices later advanced into new high ground for the movement.

March contracts after selling off to 10.67, or 5 points net lower, advanced to 10.77, and closed at 10.76, with the general market ending firm at net advances of 4 to 5 points.

After opening 3 to 5 points lower the market steadied on reports of a good business in cotton goods and a continued firm spot situation.

Market in Firm Position.

There was further trade buying or price fixing, and the prompt absorption of the early realizing seemed to have left the market in a firmer position.

The highest prices of the day were reached in the late trading when January sold up to 10.69 and May to 10.93. The close was at or within a point of the best.

Reports from Washington that Congressional action to confer upon the Secretary of Agriculture additional broad powers to regulate production of farm products appeared to be contemplated, attracted attention and may have been a contributing factor on the late advance.

Local spot men reported a very firm basis in the South with a better inquiry particularly from New England.

Exports today, 62,408, making 4,459,035 so far this season. Port receipts, 24,678. U. S. port stocks, 3,964,513.

Cotonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was irregular but generally steady today on covering and commission house buying influenced by the steadiness of cotton, lard and grains. Offerings were comparatively light. Final prices were 1 point higher to 2 net lower. Sales 21 contracts, including six in exchanges from March for July at 39 points and May to July at 20 points.

There were six deliveries on January contracts today, making the total so far this month eight. Bleachable spot nominal; January closed 4.50, March 4.68, May 4.87, July 5.07.

Paris Restores Full Quota to United States

The French government has restored to the United States for products previously under quota restriction the full proportionate quantities formerly allocated, only one-fourth of which were allocated on December 31, according to cablegram from Charge d'Affaires Theodore Marriner, Paris. At the same time, for those products on which new quotas are established, quotas up to the full quantities imported into France from the United States during 1932, on a quarterly basis, have been allowed. This action was announced in a note from the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs to the American Embassy at Paris, reading as follows:

"In conformity with the accord reached between the French Government and the American Government and with reference to the provisions of the arrangement of May 31, 1932, the Ministry for Foreign Affairs has the honor to advise the Embassy of the United States that the part reserved for American products in the quotas of foreign products imported into France is fixed for the first quarter of 1934 at 100 per cent of the proportion which this American merchandise represented in relation to the total foreign importations during the course of the pertinent year."

Exception to the above arrangement is made in the case of apples and pears, tools of the mechanical industry other than agricultural as well as for radio apparatus and tubes, for which the figures for the United States already published represent the full 100 per cent of the quantities imported in the base periods.

Under the provisions of the agreement of May 31, 1932, referred to above, the quotas on industrial products allocated to the United States are to be not less than 10 per cent of total French imports during 1931 of the products concerned if the United States supplied 10 per cent or more during that year, and are to be not less than 1931 imports from the United States if the United States supplied less than 10 per cent of total French imports during that period.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Cotton Goods — Selling quarters report a well sustained demand for some constructions of print cloths, broadcloths and sheetings. Prices are up ⅛ cent a yard from the quotations of last week on certain lines.

Chemicals—Trade has increased moderately in some lines. Sellers are counting on freer buying by the glass, textiles and other leading consuming industries during the first quarter.

Pig Iron—Foundries in the New York district have been buying small quantities for immediate use, and the movement although seasonally light, is a trifle ahead of recent expectations of makers.

Fuel Oil—Consumption has fallen off somewhat because of milder temperatures, but prices continue firm with some interests predicting that the next change will be upward.

Wheat Renews Advance on Heavier Buying

Unfavorable Crop Reports and Code Approval Aid Price Upturns.

Chicago, Jan. 9 (AP).—Enlarged buying, apparently due a good deal to reports the new grain exchange code would be unobjectionable to traders, gave grain prices a lift today.

Unfavorable crop reports, with forecasts pointing to continued drought conditions over important parts of the United States winter wheat belt, were also a stimulus to upturns of prices.

One leading unofficial authority said that fully three times the usual amount of moisture Southwest and West must be received between now and the heavy growing period, if severe trouble on top of damage already done was to be averted.

Wheat Closes Firm.

Wheat closed firm within ½ cent of the day's top, ⅝ to 1 cent above yesterday's finish; corn, ½ to ¾ cents up; oats, ⅛ to ¼ advanced, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 10 cents.

Strength of demand for wheat available to be used at once was a feature no less evident than speculative buying of wheat for future delivery.

Friends of higher prices contended that only the uncertainties of political action and especially in regard to monetary matters were preventing wheat from a sharp advance. The maximum gain today was 1¼ cents.

Influence of Weather.

From the outset, wheat was bullishly influenced by persistent lack of soaking rains Southwest and by reports of sales to mills. Besides, primary receipts of wheat were meager, 239,000 bushels, and there were less favorable European crop advices.

Cables said winter wheat conditions abroad were worse than was the case of a year ago, very changeable weather having prevailed with much freezing and thawing, the worst possible thing against root development.

Corn and oats prices were helped upward by improvement of shipping call here, and by continued scantiness of receipts. It was asserted corn had become the cheapest feed available, $9.50 a ton below wheat.

Provisions averaged higher with hog values and with grain.

Business Grows

Harris & Ewing.

ROBERT C. JONES, president, Robert C. Jones & Co., investment bankers, who reports a record increase in business in 1933.

British Trade Conditions Are Seen Climbing

A steady improvement in British industry and trade is reported to the Commerce Department by Assistant Commercial Attache C. E. Lyon, London.

November exports, he points out, were heavier than in any single month except one in the past 34 months, while imports were the highest in 21 months. The increase in export trade was chiefly in manufactured goods, while the import increase was mainly in non-competitive raw materials from which export goods are manufactured.

This favorable condition, the report states, was accompanied throughout by a very easy money market and by decreasing unemployment. At the same time the Government budget has been accumulating a surplus, adding to trade factors the incentive arising out of a possibility of moderated taxation on industry.

For the eleven-month period ended November, British imports had a value of £613,017,716, which was more than £29,000,000 under the figure for the corresponding period of 1932. Exports during the 1933 period, on the other hand, amounting to £337,012,335 were £4,370,000 in excess of those for the eleven months of 1932.

In connection with British import trade, the report calls attention to the changes which have occured during 1933 both as to volume and value. In many instances, it is pointed out, a larger volume of goods entered the British market at a smaller total cost than the smaller volume involved during 1932, a situation especially evident in connection with foodstuffs.

Bank's Deposits Gain.

Chicago, Jan. 9 (AP).—The Live Stock National Bank has reported total deposits of $9,277,000 as of December 30, an increase of approximately 50 per cent from the $6,210,000 reported June 30, 1933.

German Coal Production Is Seen Gaining

Conditions in the German coal industry during 1933 registered a decided improvement over those prevailing in the preceding year, according to a report to the Commerce Department from Assistant Trade Commissioner Rolland Welch, Berlin.

Pit coal output during the ten months ended October, 1933, totaled 90,011,000 metric tons, compared with 85,452,000 during the corresponding period of 1932. Lignite coal production aggregated 109,455,000 metric tons during the January-October period of 1933 as against 101,142,000 tons in the corresponding period of 1932. Coke production in the 1933 period rose to 17,067,000 metric tons compared with 15,727,000 tons for the ten months of 1932.

Imports of pit anthracite into Germany during the first half of 1933 totaled 1,774,472 tons, compared with 2,232,701 tons during the corresponding period of 1932. Great Britain was the outstanding supplier of this type. Germany imported somewhat greater quantities of lignite in the 1933 period compared with 1932, totals for the first six months of 1933 and 1932 being, respectively, 745,454 and 711,981 metric tons. Practically all of the lignite imports originated in Czechoslovakia.

Exports of pit anthracite coal during the first half of 1933 amounted to 8,691,399 metric tons compared with 6.21,659 tons during the corresponding period of 1932. The bulk of these exports went to the Netherlands. German coke exports increased from 2,371,215 tons in the first half of 1932 to 2,429,948 tons in the corresponding period of 1933.

R. M. Gidney Appointed.

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—Ray M. Gidney, former assistant deputy governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, has been appointed deputy governor in charge of cash and collection functions, succeeding the late Arthur W. Gilbart. Allan Sproul, former assistant deputy governor, has been made assistant to the governor, a new position.

Capital Office Of Investors Joins Upturns

James Milton Sherrill, local manager for Investors Syndicate, reports that the company's business in November exceeded that of October by 55.3 per cent, while October was 5 per cent better than September. November was 45.3 per cent better than any other month this year (with December totals not yet tabulated). He also reports that November, 1933, was 18 per cent better than November, 1932, and even 2½ per cent better than November, 1929—back in the days when "good" business was the rule rather than the exception.

"This increase in our business," remarked Mr. Sherrill, "is a fairly accurate barometer of National conditions. Before people can begin to accumulate money they must have the money to accumulate. And many things which seem really important are permitted to come ahead of the building of a reserve.

"Consequently, the decision to secure a Living Protection Certificate is often deferred while other and supposedly more necessary things are obtained. Even so, there has been a very noticable increase in our sales, which shows that there is money in hand after these other things have been puschased. Or, in other words, the public is again accumulating a surplus.

"These reports are highly encouraging to business here. They show a steadily reviving confidence and give evidence that we are really on the upgrade to more prosperous times."

Mr. Sherrill and his salesmen will attend the Investors Syndicate Sales Conference to be held January 12, 13, and 14 at the John Marshall Hotel, in Richmond, Va.

Wall Street Briefs.

National banks in New York and throughout the country are holding their annual stockholders meeting today. State banking institutions will hold their meetings later this week and next week.

Final notice of dissolution of the Ahumada Lead Co. has been mailed to stockholders of the company and states that there will be no liquidating dividend. Any remaining balance of cash will be paid, the notice said, to the United States Government to apply against income tax claims.

Baltimore Grain Prices.

Baltimore, Jan. 9.—WHEAT—Receipts, 1,001 bushels by car. Shipments from elevators, 21,792 bushels. Stock in elevators, 1,264,288 bushels.

Receipts of corn from the nearby territory are running light and trading is moderate. For yellow and high-colored mixed there is a fair domestic demand.

COB CORN—Quoted at 3.00@3.25 per barrel for carloads prime nearby yellow on spot. Offerings not burdensome.

Receipts of oats show considerable variation in weight, being mostly light. Demand fair in a jobbing way. Good, heavyweight oats are relatively scarce and such command a good premium.

No. 2 white oats, 48@52 per bushel, as to weight and position.

Note—On all sales of oats to the local trade excepting those on track there is an additional charge of 1¼c per bushel for storage and elevation, which is paid by the buyer.

HAY—General hay market is quiet. No surplus of good timothy. Prices range from $12 to $14 per ton, as to grade, and kind. The poorer grades of hay are hard to sell at any price. Market irregular on everything below 3 timothy.

Farm Product Prices Continue To Drive Irregularly Higher

Advances of Live Stock Encouraging as Year Opens; Tone of Dairy Markets Better After Early Break; Cotton Is Active; Grain Sales Light.

(U. S. Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Economics.)

Many farm products showed the irregularly upward trend of the general commodity markets the first ten days of January. The price gains on live stock the early part of the month were especially encouraging after the weak market of late 1933. Cotton and grain advanced slightly.

Tone of the dairy markets became slightly better after the early break, although recoveries did not bring the butter price much above recent low points.

Cheese market action strengthened. Trend of the egg and dressed poultry market was irregular, but mainly upward. Potatoes and onions advanced quite sharply on limited market supplies. Some varieties of apples sold higher.

Cotton More Active.

Greater activity developed in the cotton market during the first week of January, with small price advances. Although buying for foreign markets continued unimportant, on the whole, increased demand was reported from domestic mills, particularly in sections of the industry lately exempted from the curtailment order.

Cloth prices in domestic markets were higher with more general buying. Exports lost additional ground and are now below those for the previous season to date.

With the size of the 1933 crop now certain, attention is beginning to be focused on the consumption and preparations for the 1934 crop under the planned curtailment of 25,000,000 acres. Conditions have been favorable for early plowing.

Grain Marketings Light.

Unusually light marketings featured the wheat situation during the first week of January. Market stocks have been reduced to about 133,000,000 bushels compared with 171,000,000 bushels at the beginning of 1933.

Market inquiry for wheat was not urgent; but with offerings light prices gained slightly on practically all classes. Spring wheat strengthened. Foreign wheat markets strengthened slightly.

Rye markets continued firm as a result of very light offerings. Cash grain advanced more than futures. Corn markets strengthened with wheat. With more farmers availing themselves of Government loans on corn, farm marketings were relatively light, but market stocks continued to increase, totaling around 70,000,000 bushels compared with about 30,000,000 bushels a year ago. Domestic requirements have apparently been about the same as last year, with no material change in live-stock numbers. Oats markets held practically unchanged. Marketings were very light. Barley markets were independently firm, reflecting the continued active inquiry for malting types and the limited supplies of high-grade barley this season.

Medium-weight and heavy steers again predominated in the cattle receipts at Chicago. Weighty steer prices declined 25 cents the first week of January, while the better grades of light and long yearlings and comparable grades of light steers were 25 to 35 cents higher.

The market has been burdened with heavy cattle since July, and although the run continues liberal the receipts of good and choice grade kinds appear to be diminishing. Numerous loads of long yearlings sold at $6. The supply of bulls suitable for sausage purpose was the lightest in months, most desirable weighty offerings selling at $3 to $3.25. Trading in stocker and feeder cattle was small.

The early January hog market at Chicago was active and prices advanced slightly. The average cost of packer and shipper hogs at Chicago for the first week of January was $3.38, as compared with $3.28 for the preceding week and $3.03 for the week ended January 7, 1933. Fat sheep and lamb prices advanced fully 25 cents at Chicago, despite increased receipts, sending the top in fat lambs to $8.25, the highest since mid-August. Fat range ewes sold up to $4, the highest since mid-April, 1932. Demand for Ohio and similar light wools was limited, and prices firm. French combing 64's and finer quality were held at around 30 to 31 cents in the greases, and semibright fleeces of similar grade and class were selling at 77 to 79 cents, scoured basis. Demand for Western grown wools was confined largely to 64's and finer. Graded French combing wools sold at 81 to 83 cents, scoured basis.

Bank Deposits Increase As Faith Revives

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—Restoration of confidence and increased volume of general business activity have tended to restore bank deposits throughout the country, year-end statements published this week by many leading banks indicated.

This has been foreshadowed by the consolidated weekly condition statements of all Federal Reserve member banks in 90 leading cities. On December 27 last, they had total deposits of $16,030,000,000, virtually duplicating the total as of December 28, 1932, which was $16,032,000,000. It appeared, therefore, that the reduction in deposits during the early months of 1933 had been restored.

The Chase National Bank, largest in the country, reported total deposits as of December 30 of $1,364,339,000, against $1,358,560,000 at the end of October, and $1,466,039,000 a year ago.

The Guaranty Trust Co. of New York reported $1,019,582,000, against $1,007,638,000 three months ago, and $1,018,967,000 a year ago.

The Continental Illinois Bank & Trust Co. of Chicago, largest in the Middle West, reported deposits at the end of 1933 at $629,944,000, against $627,125,000 a year previously.

The Bank of America, of California, reported deposits of $826,051,000, or substantially above the $749,658,000 of a year previously.

Clothing Plant to Reopen.

Jacksonville, Ill., Jan. 9 (AP).—J. Capps & Sons, Ltd., announced today their clothing manufacturing plant, closed since September, will reopen at once, giving employment to approximately 400 persons.

Baltimore Tobacco.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 9 (Spl.).—Leaf tobacco: Maryland—For the first week in 1934 receipts were 80 hogsheads, against sales of 164 hogsheads. No change in prices.

Ohio—Nothing new to report.

Swiss Fighting To Maintain Gold Franc

Geneva, Jan. 9 (U.P.).—Switzerland, after an agonizing financial and economic year, enters 1934 hoping, but not sure it can keep its franc on gold.

The Swiss are fighting what experts fear is a losing battle.

Monetary developments in France within the next few months will determine whether Switzerland can retain its prewar gold currency. Switzerland and Holland are the only European nations which during or after the war did not depreciate their money.

But a heavy adverse trade balance, a gigantic state railway debt, a large national deficit and banking difficulties have been pushing the country toward inflation. If it comes it will be against the desire of the Swiss, who have been the severest critics of President Roosevelt's experiments.

Restrictions of the most drastic nature have been piled up to overcome Switzerland's unfavorable balance of trade, which in 1932 totaled $228,300,000.

The tourist trade, which formerly wiped out about half of Switzerland's visible trade deficit, has decreased in an alarming manner. In good years foreign tourists spent approximately $150,000,000 in Switzerland. Now they spend less than half that.

The national unrest, due to high prices and high taxes, has been expressed in the Socialist trend of recent municipal and cantonal elections. The canton of the Republic of Geneva recently was the first in Switzerland to vote in a Socialist government. It is the aim of the Socialists to establish cantonal banks guaranteed by the government.

Developments of the past year all indicate that Switzerland still faces the most critical phase of its financial and economic crisis.

Australia Buys U. S. Electric Refrigerators

A revival of imports of American electric refrigerators into Australia is reported to the Commerce Department by Assistant Trade Commissioner Wilson C. Flake, Sydney.

For about three years, Flake points out, heavy import duties and unfavorable exchange have made the landed cost of the United States product too high for successful competition in the Australian market.

The removal of the surcharge which took place last March and the recent improvement in the exchange situation have changed this condition and American refrigerators can now be landed in the commonwealth at a price which permits competition with the domestic product.

During the period from July to December, approximately 500 household models were imported into Australia from the United States. In addition, there has been a substantial importation of American compressors for use in commercial units, the cabinets of these being built locally.

During the past year, the report states, there has been a noticeable improvement in sales of electric refrigerators in the commonwealth, the increased business going to Australian manufacturers before United States refrigerators reentered the market. It is estimated that 5,000 units were produced by domestic manufacturers in 1933, a figure which includes both household and commercial models.

Along with the revival of imports of complete refrigerators there has been a fair increase from the United States of supplies used by Australian manufacturers, such as tubing, thermometers, cabinets and other equipment.

The continuation at the present level of imports into Australia of electric refrigerators and equipment, Flake points out, is dependent to a large extent on exchange developments.

Member Banks' Statement

The Federal Reserve Board's condition statement of weekly reporting member banks in 90 leading cities on January 3 shows increases for the week of $86,000,000 in net demand deposits and $12,000,000 in time deposits, and decreases of $81,000,000 in loans and investments and $113,000,000 in Government deposits.

Loans on securities decreased $8,000,000 and "all other" loans $9,000,000 at all reporting member banks. Holdings of United States Government securities declined $63,000,000 in the New York district and $62,000,000 at all reporting member banks. Holdings of other securities increased $19,000,000 in the Boston district, and declined $18,000,000 in the New York district and $2,000,000 at all reporting banks.

Borrowings of weekly reporting member banks from Federal Reserve banks aggregated $25,000,000 on January 3, practically unchanged from the week before.

Licensed member banks formerly included in the condition statement of member banks in 101 leading cities, but not now included in the weekly statement, had total loans and investments of $957,000,000 and net demand, time and Government deposits of $995,000,000 on January 3, compared with $955,000,000 and $980,000,000, respectively, on December 27.

A summary of the principal assets and liabilities of the reporting member banks in 90 leading cities that are now included in the statement, together with changes for the week and the year ended January 3, 1934, follows:

U. S. Iron and Steel Output Rises in '33

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—The American Iron and Steel Institute estimated that the ingot output of all steel companies during 1933 totaled 22,878,571 tons compared with 13,322,833 tons in 1932. Average production during the year was 33.95 per cent of capacity against 19.75 per cent in 1932.

For the month of December the institute estimated 1,819,648 tons were turned out compared with 1,540,882 in November and 861,034 tons in December, 1932. December production was 33.48 per cent of capacity, compared with 27.26 in November and 51.31 in December, 1932.

Production in March, which was at the rate of 15.50 per cent of capacity, proved to be the low point of the year and the peak was reached in July when mills were operating at the rate of 58.95 per cent of capacity.

Czechs Aided By Reforms In Land Laws

How the land reform movement in Czechoslovakia has served to reallocate land holdings in that country is revealed in a report to the Commerce Department from Assistant Commercial Attache Sam E. Woods, Prague.

One of the first acts of the republic, after its establishment in 1918, it is pointed out, was the seizure of 4,000,000 hectares of land, almost 29 per cent of the total area, for the purpose of alloting it under the land reform.

Latest available figures show that on September 1, 1933, 42.4 per cent of the seized land, or 1,722,755 hectares, had been allotted to new owners; 39.5 per cent, or 1,602,233 hectares, had been returned to the former owners, and 734,847 hectares, or 18.1 per cent, still remain under the administration of the government land office.

The main result of the land reform, the report states, has been the allotment of small parcels of land, whereby more than 450,000 families have been able to increase their land holdings that formerly averaged less than 10 hectares. Furthermore, some 8,700 farms of an average size of 12 hectares have been newly established, including 3,000 official colonization projects in 321 municipalities, involving a total of 40,000 hectares of land. In addition, about 80,000 smaller allotments were made for building sites, gardens, small farms, and for other purposes.

The money received for the land purchased from the land office, the report shows, is distributed as follows: Sixty per cent to the former owner; 7 per cent to the state (equivalent to the property tax); 16 per cent to the fund for relief of former employes of the seized land, and the remainder distributed for payment of cost of surveying, unkeep of the land office, and to provide a reserve fund for possible losses.

The price received for the land, the report points out, is based on prewar prices, which were only 10 to 15 per cent of the postwar value. (Hectare equals 2.47 acres.)

Home Owners' Bonds Advance to New High

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—Bonds of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation reached a new high above $93 on the New York Real Estate Exchange today following a $6 rise Saturday on reports that the principal as well as interest may be guaranteed by the Government.

Federal Land Bank bonds likewise were strong, rising about $1 to $4 per $100 par value in spirited trading.

Sales Representatives Hold Monthly Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Washington Sales Representatives Association was held in the Harrington Hotel yesterday. C. W. Thompson, president of the association, presided, and representatives of the Nation-Wide Stores, District Grocery Stores, United Stores and Ideal Stores were present as guests of the association.

Expenditures Planned for 1934.

St. Paul, Jan. 9 (AP).—Expenditures planned for 1934 by three railroads announced here today included: Great Northern, $7,000,000 for maintenance of way and $4,175,000 for maintenance of equipment and new equipment; the Soo Line, $3,000,000 for maintenance of way, $4,175,000 for maintenance of equipment and $1,500,000 for new equipment; the Northern Pacific, $6,000,000 for maintenance of way; $7,000,000 for maintenance of equipment and $1,250,000 for new locomotives.

Coffee Imports Gain.

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—The New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange estimates coffee imports into the United States increased 7.5 per cent in 1933, total arrivals amounting to 11,734,769 bags, compared with 10,913,876 in 1932. Of the total, Brazil shipped 8,856,447 bags.

France Leads In Supplying U. S. Liquors

France was the chief supplier of the $890,000 worth of wines and liquors imported into the United States during November.

According to the Commerce Department's Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, imports under the classification of "spirits, cordials, liquors, &c.," during the month amounted to 32,494 proof gallons, valued at $208,642; champagnes and other sparkling wines totaled 40,263 gallons, valued at $316,245, while receipts of still wines amounted to 132,263 gallons, valued at $263,242.

Spain ranked after France as a source of spirituous liquors and along with Italy was also an important supplier of still wines.

Tennessee River Valley Mapping to Begin Soon

Bristol, Va., Jan. 9 (Spl.).—Airplane photographers and ground survey crews will swing into action in southwest Virgina within the next week or 10 days, beginning the mapping of the headwaters area of the Tennessee River for the Tennessee Valley Authority.

At the request of the TVA, the gigantic task was placed in the hands of the United States Geological Survey. D. H. Watson, acting division engineer of the survey, said here today the work on the Virginia part of the basin alone would require him to maintain headquarters in Bristol five months or longer.

Annual Statement By Bankers Trust

S. Sloan Colt, president of Bankers Trust Co., New York, has issued the following analysis of the annual statement of the company as of December 30, 1933, which was published today.

Capital and surplus, aggregating $75,000,000, remains the same as of December 31, 1932. It is to be noted that as of April 10, 1933, $15,000,000, was added to contingency fund, reducing undivided profits at that time to $12,202,652.70, and increasing contingency fund to $20,000,000. The company's undivided profits now stand at $10,030,598.90, contingency fund, $15,849,892.45. At the end of the current year, $5,907,651.22 was charged off on banking premises.

The statement shows that Bankers Trust Co., has issued its capital note in the amount of $5,000,000. Deposits aggregate $611,725,753.74 in comparison with the December, 1932, figure of $621,867,430.91. The statement further indicates large holdings in short term U. S. Government securities, and the company's assets reflect a high degree of liquidity. For the year Bankers Trust Co., has continued to pay its regular dividend at the rate of $3 per share, or a total of $7,500,000.

WORK—EARN MONEY

Doubting Thomases pass on. Seventeen years of successful training and in placing its graduates in select positions is REAL PROOF that the best training PAYS in the end. It is NOT how long you attend school, but what you actually learn and can demonstrate. Usually the dumbest are in school the longest.

EVERY STUDENT at Boyd's is treated as an individual and is advanced on merit. ACTUAL RECORDS. A student in school 23 days, without previous training in stenography, placed $25 week. Another, 5 months night school, placed $1,500 year. Another, 2 months, without previous training, placed $22.50 week. Scores of similar records. These are exceptions, yet actual records, and are matchless in this city. New and Review Courses 2-9 months. Position guaranteed graduates. New classes now starting.

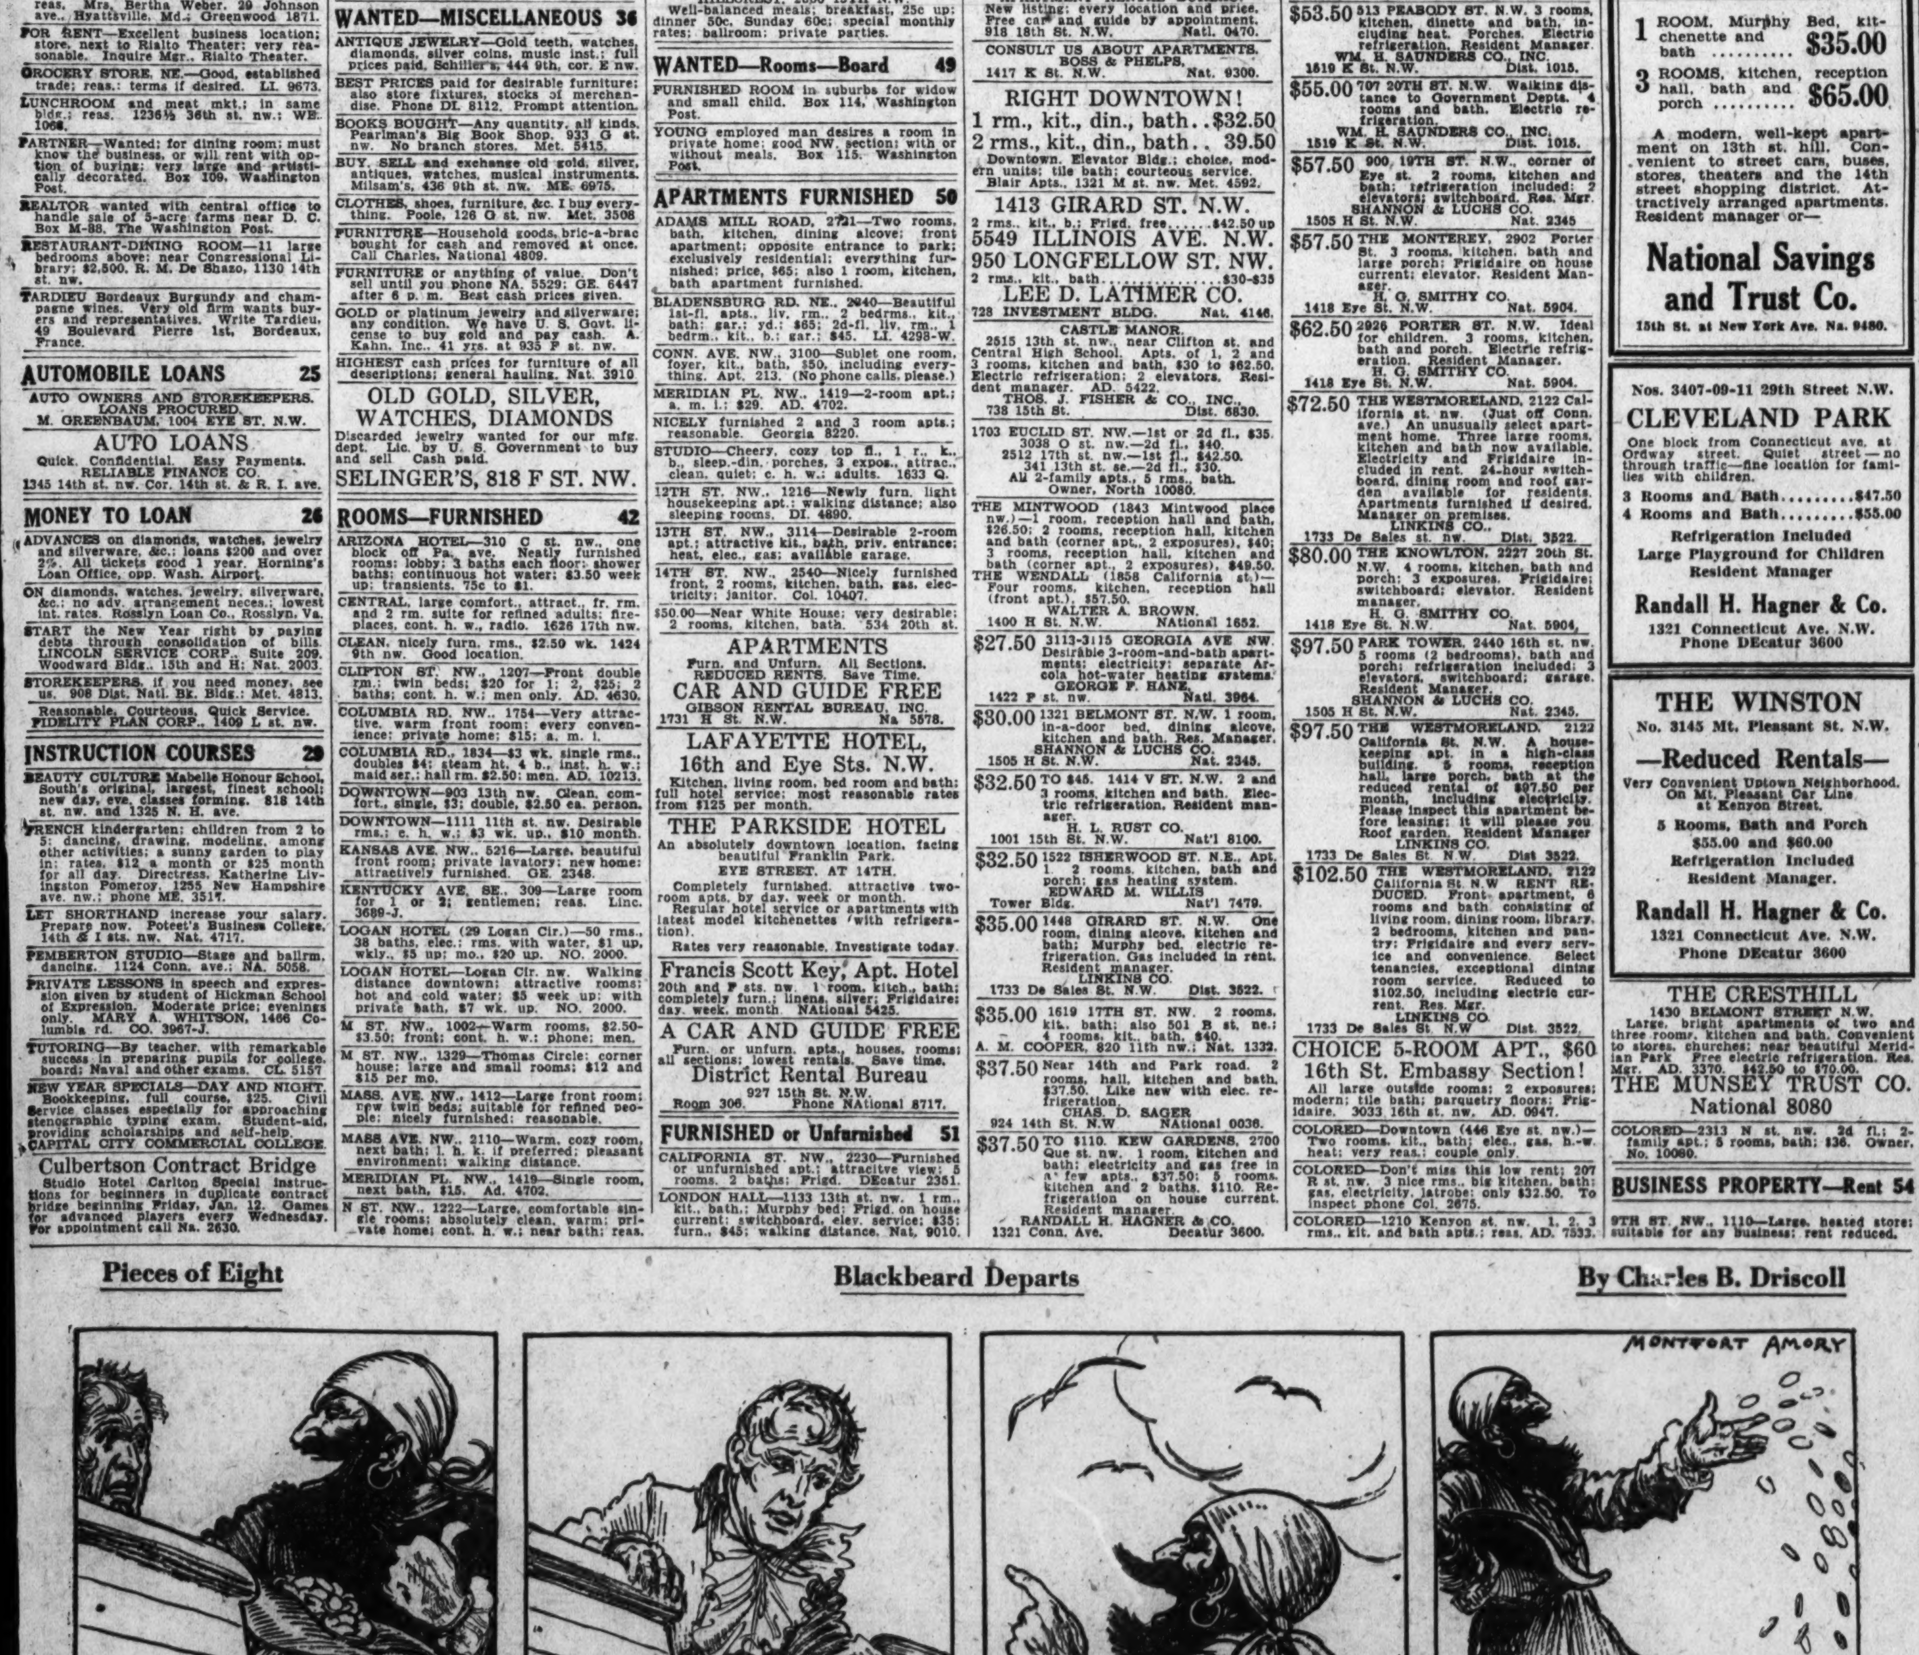
Blackbeard Departs

By Charles B. Driscoll



MONTFORT AMORY
McNaught Syndicate, Inc., N. Y.

"Understand, young lady-catcher," said Blackbeard to Worley, as he prepared to go over the side with his hatful of gold under his arm, "I'm sending my boys after the chest of doubloons, and those boys are apt to be cross if they don't get quick service."

"Sorry to lose you company, Capt. Teach," said the confused Capt. Worley, "and I hope we haven't treated you badly aboard the Eagle. Really, I intended to make you a handsome present, but where should I give you a whole chest of doubloons?"

Blackbeard was in his boat, setting out for his own ship, sailing close to the Eagle. He laughed his wicked laugh. "The only reason why anybody ever gives me gold is that I know how to take it!" he said, as he waved farewell.

When Capt. Teach arrived aboard his own ship, Queen Anne's Revenge, he began tossing gold coins from his overflowing hat to the men of his crew. Soon he had all hands scrambling for the beautiful yellow doubloons. "Help yourself, dogs!"

PUBLIC SALE

BEAUTIFUL DEVELOPMENT LANDS AND BUILDINGS

Known as "Annapolis Roads," on Severn River and Facing Chesapeake Bay

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in the mortgage from the Annapolis Roads Company, a body corporate, to The Equitable Company of Washington, a body corporate, dated the 2nd day of December, 1927, and recorded among the Land Records of Anne Arundel County in Liber F. S. R. No. 22, folio 387, the undersigned, as the assignee of said mortgage by short assignment thereof in due form (default having occurred in the covenants of the said mortgage), will offer for sale at the Courthouse door, in the City of Annapolis, Maryland, on

All of the property described in said mortgage, the same consisting of a tract of land, containing approximately 341 acres, more or less, formerly known as "Belmont," and now known as "Annapolis Roads," located on the southwest side of the Severn River, at or near the mouth thereof. Saving and excepting therefrom all conveyances made subsequent to the date of the said mortgage, a schedule of which conveyances may be had by application to the undersigned.

EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENTS

The improvements on the land above described and covered by this sale include the Beach and Tennis Club, directly on the shore of the Severn River, which is a building of unique attractiveness and especially adapted for club purposes.

Also the Golf Clubhouse, being a two-story and basement stucco building. Also included in this sale, as a part of the real estate, is the nine-hole golf course which is one of the most attractive in this section of the country.

TERMS OF SALE—A deposit of $1,000.00 will be required of the purchaser or purchasers at the time of sale, and the balance of the purchase money in cash upon ratification of sale. Taxes to be adjusted to the day of sale.

Hang-Over.

That splendid boon is ours at last, the boon denied us in the past, and we may purchase pints and quarts, and demijohns of divers sorts, and beakers, flagons, stoups and bowls which will rejuvenate our souls, and forty drops, and williewaughts, to fill our domes with rosy thoughts. So let us drain the brimming glass, enjoy the night hours as they pass, and shake the rafters with our song, forgetting grief and woe and wrong; oh, let us raise a joyous din until the coppers run us in. A hundred bards have sung of wine as something wonderful and fine; a hundred bards have gone to roost with all the bliss their wine produced; and who could see a hundred bards all stewed and loaded to the guards, without indorsing their decree that wine's the base of joy and glee? But when we see these bards next day they are no longer blithe and gay; they are distressed and dismal gents who would be dear at fourteen cents if offered at a rummage sale, they are so sick and sad and stale. The morning after always dawns, when jugs and flasks and demijohns, as they are borne to bottlers' yards, suggest no rhymes to passing bards. The poets' hearts are bruised and sore, from thinking of the night before.

Prof. Bliss to Describe Evolution of Lamps

The development of electricity will be described and demonstrated to Roosevelt High School students at 9 a. m. today by Prof. Louis D. Bliss, president of the Bliss Electrical School.

He will trace the development of the incandescent lamp from its beginning in the laboratory of Thomas A. Edison to the present day. He will exhibit lamps, representing each stage of development. The demonstration will be repeated at the same hour tomorrow.
